Exclusive Story of the Mutiny on the S. S. Algic—Log Reveals Murder, Desertion and Insurrection

Stock Surge Sets 4-Year Mark Ending 2-Day Panic

Average of 60 Issues Up to Within 20 Cents of Saturday.

Tickers Fall Behind as 4,336,000 Shares Are Traded.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Oct. 20.—The psychology of fear was swept out of Wall Street today by the biggest stock market advance since the first day of trading after the banking holiday in March, 1933.

A buying power which gained new force overnight, after yesterday's closing surge upward, carried prices of leading shares up $1 to $7, with occasional advances of considerably more, and virtually wiped out the losses suffered in the panicky selling of Monday and early Tuesday.

Selling Had No Effect.

Not even sporadic spells of profit-selling deterred the day's rally, which was the most sustained that "the street" has witnessed for some weeks.

Whereas on Monday and Tuesday trading opened with a heavy accumulation of selling orders, the opposite was true today and the ticker tape frequently was behind on the upswing instead of on the down.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks on the "big board" was $48.70, only 20 cents under the closing average of last Saturday, and $3.40 above yesterday—the largest gain since the $4.10 advance in the averages on March 15, 1933.

4,336,000 Shares Sold.

The day's turnover was 4,336,000 shares, compared with 7,287,000 yesterday.

The advance of stock prices on the exchange spread into the curb market and bonds were higher. Wheat closed on the Chicago Board of Trade up 1¾ to 2¾ cents, and corn prices were stronger. Commodities closed irregularly.

After appraising the rapid recovery in the stock market yesterday, brokers, bankers and industrialists quickly advanced the belief the wave of fear which spread over the exchanges Monday and early Tuesday had disappeared.

U. S. Steel Dropped.

Of the long list of leading issues, only United States Steel failed to show a gain. It closed down 25 cents at $61.87½. Bethlehem and other steel shares were up. Many shares closed at their highest of the day, including Chrysler, up $5.50 at $86.50. Other leaders in the advance were General Motors, up $2 at $40.25, and J. I. Case, up $8.50 at $102.50.

Germans Blame Roosevelt.

The newspaper Der Angriff said it believed the present situation was caused by the Administration's veering away from its isolationist policy.

"Roosevelt prosperity doubtless has passed its apex," Der Angriff said. "While elsewhere in the world prosperity still is increasing, in the United States it is over."

'Red Napoleon' Routs Japanese Along 500-Mile Front in North

Copyright, 1937, by the United Press.

Shanghai, (Thursday) Oct. 21.—Chinese military sources reported today that China's northern armies spearheaded by China's famed "red Napoleon," Chu Teh, had delivered a stunning setback to the Japanese along a broken 500-mile front from Shansi to the sea.

The reports said Chu Teh's veteran eighth routers, hard-bitten remnants of China's old "red army," had cut through the Shansi border into Hopei province and were attacking the Japanese from the rear.

One report, which was not confirmed even by Chinese sources, said Paotingfu, seat of the Chinese military academy in Hopei, had been recaptured.

The Chinese said Chu Teh, who has been breaking up the Japanese advance into Shansi, isolating divisions and destroying small detachments, had carried his "flying tactics" across the Hopei-Shansi border and was attempting to split the Japanese rear-line communications at Hsinlo, between Paoting and Chengting on the Peiping-Hankow Railroad.

The Communist tactics, which call for swift, mobile action in flying columns, are not suited to holding positions, however, and military experts doubted the Chinese could hold Paoting long, even if they have retaken it.

Most surprising of the reports came from Shantung, where the Central (Chinese) News Agency reported the defending Chinese army, which had been driven backward along the Tientsin-Pukow Railroad toward Tsinanfu, capital of Shan-

Duce Yields, Will Remove Spain Army

'Volunteers' to Withdraw on 'Token' Basis as Powers Asked.

Surprise Gesture Is Laid to Fear of Franco-British Action.

By the United Press.

London, Oct. 20.—Premier Mussolini, running up against a dangerous Franco-British threat, suddenly dropped his defiant attitude tonight and agreed to collaborate in a plan to withdraw his Fascist Black Shirts and other foreign "volunteers" from Spain.

Il Duce's conciliatory gesture, which came as a surprise even to Italian diplomats in Rome, held out hopes of solving a three-way deadlock within the nonintervention committee and averting a crisis crammed with possibilities of war.

Opportunity Seized.

The nonintervention delegates, quick to seize upon Italy's consent to sending a neutral "volunteers" commission to Spain at once, agreed that it constituted "a substantial degree of progress" and asked that immediate steps be taken to put the proposals into operation.

Italy and Germany announced that they had withdrawn their objections to Franco-British proposals whereby belligerent rights will be withheld from both Spanish factions until "token" withdrawals of volunteers have been carried out. Until today the Rome-Berlin axis demanded simultaneous recognition of belligerency.

Mussolini Believed Convinced.

Statesmen believed that Mussolini, unable to budge Britain and France from their demands that he clear out of Spain, had come to the conclusion that he could count on no further capitulations to his menacing policy.

Until the Italian delegate on the nonintervention sub-committee, Ambassador Dino Grandi, announced Il Duce's surprise offer the group appeared doomed to a hopeless deadlock.

Survey to Be Made.

1. Immediate dispatch of a commission to Spain to estimate the numbers of volunteers in both the insurgent and loyalist ranks, and finding the most feasible means of withdrawing them.

2. Studies by the commission to determine the best method of granting belligerency rights to the Spanish factions.

3. An immediate and equal "token" withdrawal of volunteers from both sides without waiting for the commission's report.

Situation Was Gloomy.

When the Nine-Power sub-committee adjourned Tuesday night in an atmosphere of pessimism and recriminations, Italy demanded that belligerency rights — particularly for Generalissimo Francisco Franco's insurgents to whose victory she is committed—be established simultaneously with the "token" withdrawals.

The French delegate, Ambassador

Officers Who Faced Mutiny

A Staff Correspondent.
Copyright, 1937, by The Washington Post.

Her weary skipper, Capt. Joseph Gainard, handed over to anxious Federal investigators a log telling one of the most amazing stories in American maritime history.

Murder—the drowning of a would-be deserter—mutiny—sit-down strikes led by radical leaders—defiant conduct that led to a Maritime Commission order to throw crew members in irons unless they behaved—and, to the moment the freighter completed its 13,000-mile journey to South America and return, constant brawling, fighting and insurrection.

FOLLIARD.

Federal investigators impounded the Algic log and plans were made for a hearing tomorrow that may result in criminal action. Dan S. Ring, labor representative of the Maritime Commission, congratulated Capt. Gainard on his handling of a cruise that one high Government official said "made Mutiny on the Bounty sound like a Sunday school picnic."

Capt. Gainard, salty New Englander, sat in his cabin on the Algic today and told his story, wearily smoking a cigarette, and from other officers and Federal officials the complete story of the tumultuous three months of bloodshed, insurrection, and labor intrigue was obtained.

Seamen Submit Demand.

The sequel of the cruise of the Algic will probably be criminal prosecution by the Bureau of Marine Inspection and Navigation, which is now making an investigation.

Here is the story of the history-making cruise as told to me today:

On July 8, the Algic, under charter to the American Republic Line, was ready to sail from Baltimore for South America with a cargo of lumber. The officers in addition to Capt. Gainard were all New Englanders—First Mate Weston Healy, Fall River; Second Mate E. B. Waters, Nahant; Third Mate John E. Pike, Rosyndale, and Fourth Mate Edward B. Serafin, Worcester. All are graduates of the Massachusetts Nautical Training School.

KENNEDY.

On the day before the ship was to sail, while a large quantity of perishable stores were on the dock waiting to be loaded, a delegation of three from the crew handed Capt. Gainard an ultimatum that he and the other officers join a maritime union or else take the consequences of a sit-down strike.

The crew's demand follows:

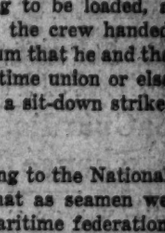
"To the Master, S. S. Algic:

"We, the crew of the S. S. Algic, belonging to the National Maritime Union 100 per cent, realizing that as seamen we are all interested in forming a national maritime federation and knowing that the only way we can advance the interest of the maritime workers as a whole is by working with the licensed personnel (officers) that have shown a willingness to co-operate towards the ultimate consummation of the National Maritime Federation, it is hereby resolved that we will only sail with members of the M. E. B. A. (Maritime Engineers Beneficial Association) and the M. M. P. A. (Master Mates and Pilots Association) and if the licensed personnel (officers) do not join the organization of their calling we the unlicensed personnel will sit down at once and continue until they are relieved.

"JOHN C. MELVIN (Eng. Div.)
"JOHN BURGESS (Deck).
"MELVIN NEILSON (Steward)."

Gainard Goes Ahead.

What Capt. William Blythe, of the H. M. S. Bounty, or Jack London's "Sea Wolf" would have done in the face of such an ultimatum may be conjectured. Capt. Gainard did nothing except to go ahead with plans for sailing, either with the crew he had or another if it became necessary to recruit one.



RING.

After a day of sitting down, during which some of the supplies on the dock became spoiled, the crew decided to get up and go to work. Neither Capt. Gainard nor any of his mates had heeded the ultimatum, yet only two members of the crew had to be replaced.

Partly loaded with lumber, the Algic cleared for Jacksonville, Fla., there to take on more lumber for South America. It was in Jacksonville that the first fatality was recorded. How it happened was really a matter for the Jacksonville police, not Capt. Gainard.

The prelude to the murder was a bitter forecastle feud between Able Seaman John Burgess, of California, and another deck hand. It started in Baltimore about the time

U. S. Gets Bids On 'Ghost Fleet' Of Cargo Ships

Obsolete Vessels Offered for Scrapping or Use by Foreign Lands.

Moving forward in its program of disposal of obsolete ships in its laid-up fleet, the Maritime Commission yesterday opened bids for purchase of 25 of the steel cargo vessels, 8 at Fort Eustis, Va., and 17 at Staten Island, N. Y.

Sale was offered on three alternative conditions: for scrapping anywhere, for foreign operation, and for scrapping in American yards.

High individual bids for scrapping anywhere totaled $645,250 for 17 vessels. High bidders were Simpson, Spence & Young, of New York, acting for British customers who bid $559,350 for 15 ships, and the Hyman-Michaels Co., of Chicago, offering $85,900 for two vessels. The former concern offered bonuses running up to $12,000 if awarded ten or more ships.

High individual bids for foreign operation totaled $562,036 for seven ships. Boyd, Weir & Sewell, of New York, for a Greek customer, offered $367,536 for four ships, and G. E. Marden, New York, bid $194,500 for three ships.

Bids Total $658,505.

For scrapping in American yards, high individual bids totaled $658,505 for all 25 ships. The Union Shipbuilding Co., of Baltimore, offered $252,655 for 10 of the craft; Hyman-Michaels Co., Chicago, bid $237,350 for nine, and the Northern Metal Co., Philadelphia, proposed to take six for a total of $168,500.

The ships at Norfolk which were offered for sale are the Kittegaun, Rockport, West View, Yosemite, West Geleta, West Zucker, West Zula and the Wathena.

Lewis Invites Free Maritime Unit Into C.I.O.

The Committee for Industrial Organization striking boldly for a united front of West Coast maritime workers against the A. F. of L., last night invited the Sailors Union of the Pacific to affiliate with it.

John L. Lewis, moving to incorporate the Sailors Union, independent stronghold of the unlicensed seamen of the West Coast, in his own organization, extended the invitation yesterday to Harry Lundeberg, head of the Pacific Sailors.

Lewis asked Lundeberg to attend a C. I. O. maritime convention in San Francisco January 17.

Autonomy Implied.

The invitation implied that the sailors would retain complete autonomy if they joined the C. I. O. The inference was termed "bait" by informed sources here, who pointed out that this was one of the points of contention that resulted in the ousting of the Pacific Sailors by the American Federation of Labor in 1935.

The sailors have been unaffiliated since. But their key position as an independent, numbering an established and large majority of West Coast unlicensed seamen, has made their organization attractive to both the A. F. of L. and the C. I. O. since 1935.

If the C. I O is successful in taking in the sailors, their forces will be solidified into a wide and solid front against the federation

May Return to A. F. L.

Recognizing the necessities of the situation, the federation executive council obtained power at the recent Denver convention to recognize once again Lundeberg's ousted union as well as other federation marine unions in order to battle the spreading power of the forces of Lewis and

USHA to Hire 600 From PWA Housing Unit

Straus Says Staff Will Be Transferred to New Agency.

By William M. Nesly.

Nathan Straus, newly appointed administrator of the United States Housing Authority, yesterday reassured 600 employes of the PWA housing division who had feared loss of their jobs when the new authority starts to function. He announced that the entire staff will be transferred, by executive order, to the new organization.

Following a conference with President Roosevelt and Secretary of Interior Ickes yesterday he told reporters:

"In justice to the thousands of people seeking jobs, and in justice also to the existing staff of the housing division of the PWA, which will be transferred to the new housing authority by executive order shortly, I ask the press to announce that I do not contemplate engaging any personnel at this time. I intend to work with the staff that Howard Gray, former head of the division, tells me has loyally served him and the interests of housing."

Of the employes, about 400 are employed in Washington and 200 in the field.

Out of the White House conference came, also, it was learned, decision to transfer to Straus' authority, created by the Wagner-Steagall housing act, the 51 housing projects of the PWA.

The slightly-built, quick speaking business executive and housing expert, chosen by President Roosevelt to put into effect the Nation's new $500,000,000 slum-clearance and housing program, interpreted his job as calling for "action and very little talk." It is, he said, "to get the slums razed and get decent houses built."

In order to lay out the broad policies of the authority, he said he would consult with Senator Robert

Credit Reform Prosperity Key, Roosevelt Says

Perfection of the country's monetary and credit machinery and its co-ordination with all other instruments of government must precede the achievement and maintenance of "an enduring prosperity," President Roosevelt said yesterday.

Dedicating the new $3,500,000 home of the Federal Reserve System, the President made no direct mention of current stock market fluctuations but he was emphatic in his praise of banking reforms initiated in his Administration to protect investors and combat "practices which were evil in their results."

He spoke to a capacity audience of some 1,200 Federal officials, diplomats and presidents and officers of the 12 Federal Reserve banks. His hearers included Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia, "father of the Federal Reserve" and an outspoken critic of many of Roosevelt's policies, and Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, in whose husband's first Administration the system was founded.

The Federal Reserve, said the President, has an important role to play in bringing the largest degree of economic security and stability to the American people.

"To advance the country toward this goal is the real mission of the Federal Reserve System," he asserted. "It cannot be attained by that system alone, but neither can it be reached without the proper functioning of our monetary and credit machinery.

"That machinery must be steadily perfected and co-ordinated with all other instruments of government to promote the most productive utilization of our human and material resources. Only in that way can we hope to achieve and maintain an enduring prosperity, free from the disastrous extremes of booms and depressions.

"Only in that way can our eco-

War Before 1940 Will Annoy H. G. Wells Greatly, He Says

A new complication was added to the international crisis yesterday. H. G. Wells arrived in town for a 24-hour visit and announced flatly that "if a world war breaks out before 1940, I shall be very much annoyed."

H. G. WELLS.

Wells has been prophesying all along that peace will last until that year, and obviously is opposed to any change in his plans.

The British writer and prophet will call on President Roosevelt this morning and probably will lunch with him. He dropped no hint as to the topics they will discuss.

Among those who greeted him at Washington airport yesterday was Jesse H. Knight, chairman of the executive board of the Washington Forum. Wells is scheduled to speak here under the auspices of the forum November 3. "I shall discuss encyclopedias, universities and education," he revealed. "Does that sound interesting?"

Continuing his dissertation on war, he explained that "the average Englishman is too stupid to become frightened about anything"—including an enemy invasion. "We are used to war scares," he added.

Mrs. Prichett Died On Way to Parents

Announcement by George Palmer Putnam at Los Angeles that Mrs. Campbell Prichett, Washington, was en route to visit him when she was killed in the crash of the Mainliner plane in Utah, was denied last night by Mrs. Sidney A. Cloman, with whom Mrs. Prichett made her home here.

Mrs. Prichett was on her way to visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Henry Campbell, Long Beach, Calif., Mrs. Cloman said.

"Knowing that Mrs. Prichett would land in Los Angeles late, friends here probably wired to Mr. Putnam to give her a lift from the airport to Long Beach or to some convenient connection," Mrs. Cloman said. "The Associated Press dispatch quoting Mr. Putnam as saying she was to visit him was probably taken from the fact that he was to meet her. Mrs. Prichett was a friend of Amelia Earhart, his wife, but she had previously met Mr. Putnam on only one occasion."

Windsor to Be a 'Salesman' For Time Clocks, U. S. Hears

The Duke of Windsor, who, with the Duchess, will arrive November 15, ostensibly to study the American working man's condition, will in reality, it was reported here yesterday, tour the country as the trade representative for a business efficiency system and as a salesman for business machines.

BEDAUX.

His employers are represented as Charles E. Bedaux, the Windsors' host in France, and Thomas J. Watson, president of the International Chamber of Commerce, with headquarters in Paris, and president of the International Business Machines Corporation of New York. Bedaux is head of the International Bedaux Co. and the multi-millionaire inventor of a system for increasing labor production known as the "Bedaux Hour." He himself is making all personal appointments for the Duke of Windsor, and through an advertising agency all other ones, and will announce in Paris Monday the Duke's American itinerary.

Watson, as president of International Business Machines, received in 1934 the

Byrnes Finds Landon Taking Shot at Hoover

Reorganization Bill Carries Same Powers Voted by G. O. P., He Says.

By the Associated Press.

Chairman Byrnes (Democrat), of South Carolina, of the Senate Reorganization Committee, suggested yesterday that Alf M. Landon, in criticizing the Roosevelt reorganization bill, was "shooting at" former President Hoover.

Landon's statement in his speech Tuesday night that the Administration reorganization bill would place Federal employes "under the thumb of the President" was sharply challenged by Byrnes.

"Gov. Landon's statements as to reorganization show he has not read the bill or is simply shooting at President Hoover because Hoover has always advocated giving to a President the powers contained in my bill," Byrnes said.

"The reorganization powers are in the exact language of the bill passed in 1933 and supported by every Republican and practically the same as the powers given to Hoover in 1932 which were likewise supported by every Republican."

Edge Would Bid Democrats.

Also in Washington, Walter E. Edge suggested yesterday that the proposed midterm Republican national convention transcend party lines to include "outstanding opponents of the New Deal," whether or not they are Republicans.

The former Republican Senator and Ambassador to France advanced his proposal for a consolidation of forces opposed to "Rooseveltian dictatorship" in a letter to D. E. Pomeroy, national Republican committeeman from New Jersey. The national committee meets in Chicago November 5 to consider the proposal of former President Hoover for a party convention before the 1938 Congressional elections.

Meanwhile, in Boise, Idaho, Senator William E. Borah, candidate for the 1936 Republican Presidential nomination, said the program for a preconvention party meeting does "not reach beyond the leaders and a few distinguished persons."

N. Mex. Governor Caustic.

"They will have no authority to speak for the voters upon questions of platform principles," Borah said in a prepared statement.

In New York, former President Hoover was asked what he thought of Alfred M. Landon's radio address.

Here is his comment:

"It was a good speech."

In Santa Fe, N. Mex., Gov. Clyde Tingley, a Democrat, said, "I think that if Ex-Gov. Landon makes another speech, President Roosevelt could carry Maine and Vermont."

U. S. Aide Willing To Debate Gannett

By the Associated Press.

Robert H. Jackson, an assistant to Attorney General Cummings, offered today to debate with Frank E. Gannett, Rochester, N. Y., publisher, the question:

"Was President Roosevelt justified in sending his court proposal to Congress?"

At the same time Jackson declined repeated challenges by Gannett that he debate Albert Levitt, former assistant to the Attorney General, on the proposition:

"Resolved: That President Roosevelt intends and plans to abolish the Supreme Court of the United States and to destroy the present Constitutional powers and duties of its judges."

That proposition, Jackson wrote the publisher, "is an issue only in your mind."

"It does not reflect any issue raised by the President in his court reform proposal or in any speech of mine, if a speech which I might make could be considered as important enough to raise an issue."

As for Levitt, who recently made an unsuccessful effort to oust Justice Hugo L. Black from the Supreme Court; Jackson said he could not take him seriously and that he is "of course out of the question."

LaGuardia, Foe Exchange Barrage

New York, Oct. 20 (AP).—Cries of recrimination and mutual accusations of chicanery and skullduggery in the New York mayoral campaign rose in volume tonight as the day of the showdown, November 3, drew nearer.

Having denounced as a "fake" a Mahoney meeting billed as a labor rally, LaGuardia then ironically called upon Mahoney to help him "estimate the gross graft under Tammany."

Mahoney replied that the word "fake" "more fittingly" described LaGuardia, and went on to attack the mayor's sanitation department.

Pact With Vatican Deferred by Slavs

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Oct. 20 (AP). Premier Milon Stoyadinovitch withdrew the church issue from politics today by announcing submission of a Vatican-Yugoslav concordat to the Senate had been deferred indefinitely.

There had been prolonged controversy between the government and the Yugoslav Orthodox Church over ratification of this proposed concordat with the Roman Catholic Church. Demonstrations and riots caused serious national turmoil after the Chamber of Deputies indorsed the concordat last summer.

Costa Rica to Join Border Arbiters

San Jose, Costa Rica, Oct. 20 (U.P.). The Costa Rican government tonight accepted an invitation from the United States to try to settle the Nicaragua-Honduras frontier dispute which grew out of the "postage stamp" incident between the two countries. Venezuela and possibly one or two other Latin American nations also will take part.

In the Day's News

Trailed ever since the President called Congress back to consider a farm program, Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace was brought to bay yesterday by reporters. It was his first press conference since the call.

Mystery—what would the new farm program be? Hotly pressed, Wallace ducked, weaved and dodged through staccato questioning.

Asked about compulsory crop control, Wallace discussed "surplus control." Asked about surplus control, Wallace said it might and might not involve compulsory control. Asked what the program would cost, he said it depended on the program. He "hoped" there would be a corn loan. He "couldn't say" how much the loan should be.

An impatient reporter spoke out in meeting and said he thought the Secretary should be more "frank."

"I'm not free to talk yet," he said.

Representative John J. O'Connor, Democrat, New York, chairman of the House Rules Committee, told some of his Congressional intimates yesterday to "cheer up." He wrote them:

"It looks as though, if we could complete the special program in the autumnal session, we might be able to get out of Washington about April 30, back home to primaries, family, constituency and the 'fences.' There does not appear to be much in sight at the moment—mark you—for the regular session in January except the appropriation bills and the small run of the mill."

The Sino-Japanese war has almost destroyed the tung oil supply, resulting in a drastic situation for United States varnish factories, said L. P. Hart, of the scientific division of the National Paint, Varnish and Lacquer Association, here yesterday.

Tung oil imports, averaging 130,000,000 pounds a year from China, have nearly ceased, said Hart. The domestic supply, he said, produced on the Southern Gulf Coast, is "just a drop in the bucket," and is entirely inadequate. As yet varnish prices and tung oil prices here have remained fairly steady.

John D. M. Hamilton, chairman of the National Republican Committee, said in Concord, N. H., last night that President Roosevelt's special session of Congress "is just another impediment to recovery," according to an Associated Press report.

In New England for a conference with Maine, Vermont and New Hampshire Republican chiefs, Hamilton also asserted there are definite signs of increasing Republican strength in local elections.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull, en route to Toronto, Canada, for a speech there Friday afternoon, passed through Ottawa yesterday, stopping briefly for a visit with Governor General Lord Tweedsmuir, a Canadian Press dispatch said last night.

Secretary Hull was greeted by Prime Minister Mackenzie King and Arthur Redfern, Lord Tweedsmuir's secretary. Hull, who will receive an honorary degree from the University of Toronto, is expected to discuss momentous international questions in his keenly-awaited address.

White House attaches and correspondents who accompany President Roosevelt on his trips are become almost as familiar with Poughkeepsie, N. Y., as with Washington. On the President's numerous trips to his home at Hyde Park, the staff and newspapermen maintain headquarters at nearby Poughkeepsie. Following his recent Western trip, Mr. Roosevelt went directly to Hyde Park. He came to the Capital on Friday, October 8, but four days later returned to Hyde Park. He came to Washington yesterday to dedicate the new Federal Reserve Building, but plans to go to Hyde Park again Saturday. One member of the party returning yesterday said he was thinking of buying a house and moving his family to Poughkeepsie, so he could see them more often.

Federal grants totaling $460,654.82 were made to the six States of Connecticut, Kentucky, Michigan, North Dakota, Texas and Wyoming yesterday for administration expenses of their State unemployment compensation agencies, the Social Security Board announced.

These six States have between them contributed well over $56,000,000 to the United States Treasury's unemployment trust fund, from which benefit payments will be made after specified waiting periods beginning, in Connecticut and Texas, as early as January 1, 1938.

The Southern States Industrial Council, continuing its intensive drive against the proposed wages-hours bill, concentrating its fire against features of the bill harmful, so it says, to the farmer, yesterday quoted Representative Howard W. Smith, of Virginia (Democrat), to the effect that the proposed bill will work hardships on dairy farmers not members of dairy co-operatives and on farmers employing hired men to thresh their grain and bale their hay, who will be forced to accept cuts on milk prices and pay higher wages to their hired hands.

Firms Upheld In Abrogating Foreign Pledge

Non-Natives Must Accept Payment in Dollars, N. Y. Jurist Rules.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Oct. 20.—Promises of American corporations to pay obligations in foreign currencies cannot be enforced by foreigners in this country's courts, State Supreme Court Justice Samuel I. Rosenman ruled today in a test case brought by a Swiss concern.

The ruling, which Justice Rosenman said was contrary to the ruling of two Federal courts, was in a suit brought by the Zurich General Accident and Liability Insurance Co., Ltd., against the Lackawanna Steel Co., the Bethlehem Iron Mines Co. and the Bethlehem Steel Corp. Its action sought to gain a greater amount of money through having an interest it holds in the defendant's bonds paid in Swiss francs rather than American dollars

The court held the plaintiff would have to accept American dollars and barred it from enforcing a promise made by the defendants on their coupons to pay in United States gold, British sterling, German gold marks or French, Belgian or Swiss francs.

Congress intended its resolution of June 5, 1933, by which this country left the gold standard, to prohibit alternative currency payments as well as payments in gold, the decision asserted.

One of the contrary Federal opinions was reversed for another reason and the second, denial of a writ of certiorari in the case of Anglo-Continentale Treuhand against the St. Louis Southwestern Railway Co. would not affect the present case, as merits were not determined, justice Rosenman said.

Gen. Craig Also Invested as Scottish Rite Knight Commander.

Dr. C. T. Wang, Chinese Ambassador to the United States; Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia, and Gen. Malin Craig, chief of staff of the United States Army, were among those investitured as knights commander of the court of honor last night by the Supreme Council of the Scottish Rite.

The knights were inducted by an honor team from Baltimore. Others investitured included:

George A. Bauer, Baltimore; Louis Brandt, Baltimore; Peter M. Fey, Baltimore; David S. Hynes, Baltimore; Charles A. McGeehan, Baltimore; Elwood Mozier, Towson, Md.; Charles E. Mumford, Willards, Md., and Neal A. Sibley, Baltimore.

Stenographer Admits to FCC Signing Dummy Application.

How she signed four applications for radio stations at request of Paul M. Segal, without first reading them, was related to the Federal Communications Commission yesterday by a pretty law office stenographer, at a hearing on disbarment proceedings against Segal and his legal associate, George S. Smith.

As the case went into its second day before six of the seven commissioners, Commissioner George Henry Payne, accused of "personal malice, bias and prejudice" against the defendants and disqualified from sitting at the trial vehemently criticized his disqualification.

The witness, Mrs. Ethel C. Manning, testified under immunity granted her by the commission. Previously she had prepared a note asserting her answers might tend to incriminate her.

Signed Maiden Name.

Applications she signed were for stations at Portland, Me., Lewiston, Me., and Cheyenne, Wyo., and one for the Commercial Broadcasting Co., Inc., for a station at Moorhead, Minn.

In the applications she was represented as president of the Palmer and Commercial companies. She told the commission she did not know this at the time.

"It's all right," Segal told her, she informed the commission. She "took his word for it" she said, and signed, using the signature "E. C. Murphy," her maiden name.

Payne Sees Law Flouted.

Commissioner Payne, in criticising his disqualification yesterday, said the action of the commission "leaves the way open for absolute control of the commissions in Washington by lawyers whose public interest is subordinate to the interests of their clients."

"The action taken by five members of the Federal Communications Commission Tuesday afternoon in disqualifying me from sitting in this hearing, is, I believe, without warrant of law and may lead to grave consequences in the future," said Payne.

Segal and Smith are charged with setting up "dummy" corporations for "the purpose of deceiving and misleading the commission." Both have practiced before the commission.

I. C. C. Adjourns Rail Proceedings

The Interstate Commerce Commission adjourned yesterday until February 28 the reorganization proceedings of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway Co.

The adjournment was requested by all attorneys appearing before the commission to permit the working out of a formula segregating revenues and expenses of the carrier's various mortgaged lines for the last half of 1936.

Czechs Remain Calm in Midst Of War Clouds, Dr. Kose Says

Nazis' Autonomy Request Unlikely to Disturb Peace, He Adds.

DR. JAROSLAV KOSE.

The danger of European peace being disturbed by the demand of Konrad Henlein, leader of the Studeten Deutsch, camouflaged Nazi Party in Czechoslovakia, for immediate autonomy of German areas in that country, was minimized here yesterday by Dr. Jaroslav Kose, founder and president of the American Institute in Prague.

Dr. Kose, who, with Mrs. Vlasta Kose, a graduate of Vassar, is on a two-month lecture tour of the United States, will leave Washington this morning for Pittsburgh. He will lecture in various Western and Southern cities and sail from New York in December.

Czechoslovakia, declared Dr. Kose, in an interview, was calm and confident in the center of a European situation admittedly fraught with dangerous possibilities. He stated the Czechoslovakians trusted first of all in their small but well-trained and modernly equipped army and in their treaties with the Little Entente, with Russa and with France, to maintain peace.

Dr. Kose pointed out that with Germans constituting only 22 per cent of the Czechoslovakian population, there were 3 German members in a cabinet of 14. He deprecated reports of internal troubles in his country and said that with the number of unemployed reduced from a peak of 960,000 to the present 240,000 the people were contented.

The increasingly cordial relations between the United States and Czechoslovakia were praised by Dr. Kose.

Dr. Kose also is deputy director general of the Czechoslovak Export Institute, and secretary general of the Czechoslovak League of Nations Union.

The United States is now second only to Germany in both its import and export trade with Czechoslovakia, said Dr. Kose. Eventually, he asserted, the United States would lead all nations in trade with his country.

Nazi Editorials Stir Czech Protest

Berlin, Oct. 20 (AP).—Czechoslovakia's envoy to Berlin, Dr. Vojtech Mastny, today protested to Foreign Minister Baron Konstantin von Neurath against an "aggressive, menacing German press and broadcast campaign," which has strained relations betwen the two countries.

The protest was made after German newspapers supported editorially the position taken by Konrad Henlein, leader of the Sudeten Deutsche Party, who wrote an open letter to the Czech President, Eduard Benes, insisting on autonomy for German districts of the republic.

Windsor's Friend Weds.

London, Oct. 20 (U.P.).—Mrs. Dudley Ward, friend of the Duke and Duchess of Windsor when he was Prince of Wales, was married today to the Marquis Casa Maury at the Marylebone registry office. The ceremony was witnessed by huge crowds. The couple will honeymoon in Paris.

4,000 Ask Return Of Coughlin to Air

Cincinnati, Oct. 20.—Officers of the Cincinnati Social Justice Union announced today they had obtained 4,000 signatures on a petition addressed to Pope Pius XI, by which they seek to overcome what they termed radio censorship imposed upon the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, of Detroit.

Mrs. Beatrice Lammert, moderator, said in a cablegram addressed to the Vatican:

"Astounded by the fact that Archbishop (Edward) Mooney has seen fit to censor the . . . radio broadcasts and feeling that his (Father Coughlin's) keen intellect . . . has lit the light of Christianity to millions of Americans and knowing that the welfare of Americans will be affected if this voice is stilled, we . . . do earnestly petition your holiness to extend your graciousness in returning the Rev. Mr. Coughlin to us on the air."

White House Asks Six Seats to See Roosevelt Satire

By the United Press.

Baltimore, Oct. 20.—Somebody at the White House plans to see the play "I'd Rather Be Right" in which George H. Cohan satirizes President Roosevelt, it was indicated today when six seats were reserved for "Mrs. Roosevelt's secretary" and Col. E. W. Starling, of the Secret Service.

The play comes here next Monday, continuing a pre-Broadway tryout which began in Boston. George S. Kaufman and Moss Hart are the authors.

The reservations did not state who would use the seats. Mr. Roosevelt has not attended the theater since he became President.

Duperrey Joins D. C. Rotarians In Anniversary

Club Associations Develop World Peace Basis, President Says.

Expressing the hope that Rotary and Rotarians always may be in the vanguard of forces striving for better international understanding, President Maurice Duperrey of the Rotary International, joined the Washington club in celebrating its silver jubilee anniversary last night at the Mayflower Hotel.

More than 500 members and guests of the Rotary Club of Washington greeted Duperrey on the occasion of his first official visit to the Capital.

"In the field of international relations, Rotary does not endeavor to solve the complex problems confronting the nations," he said. "But Rotary, through a world-wide association of leading business and professional men, may create and develop what basis of good-will and mutual understanding without which peace cannot be established on a firm basis."

Duperrey stressed the need for better relationships between nations.

Participates in Forum.

Yesterday afternoon, Duperrey took part in a forum discussion, sponsored by the Rotary Club of Washington at Memorial Continental Hall.

Advancement of understanding in the Americas through the channels of commerce, education, culture and the Rotary Club were discussed by Secretary Roper, Dr. George F. Zook, president of the American Council on Education; Dr. Thomas H. Healy, Dean Georgetown University School of Foreign Service, and Duperrey.

The meeting was dedicated to "the advancement of international understanding, goodwill and peace through a world fellowship of business and professional men united in the ideal of service."

"The only safe way to safeguard against national misunderstandings and war is diligently to seek for the truth and mutual understanding," Secretary Roper declared. "One of the effective instruments to this end is commerce through understanding."

Secretary Roper offered four suggestions for better relationship, including one for the abandonment of "high-powered salesmanship methods" by this and other countries.

The other points in his proposed program were:

1. United action through the Americas for the publication of verified facts about every country, stressing constructive events and objectives rather than specializing on prejudices, crimes and disrupting happenings.

2. Provision for the study of other languages in the educational system of each nation.

3. Encouragement of tourist travel by truthful advertising and better travel facilities.

No Cultural Boundaries.

The practice now employed between the Americas of exchanging students and teachers has made great progress in the advancement of understanding between the nations, he said.

"Educational pipe lines as well as those in commerce and culture should be opened up now and they should flow in both directions, in as well as out," Dr. Zook said.

Similarly, Dean Healy said culture never can be exclusively national. "Culture," he said, "knows no national boundaries; it is international heritage and should belong to all mankind, wherever located."

Duperrey, who recently returned from a two-month tour of the Latin-American countries, said that Rotary Clubs there are in a position to exert a beneficial action in preparing the ground for solutions based on understanding and conciliation.

Earlier in the day, Duperrey called at the White House and paid his respects to President Roosevelt. He was accompanied by Jules Henry, Charge d'Affaires of the French Embassy, and George W. Harris, of the Washington Rotary Club.

Wives of Rotarians entertained Mme. Duperrey at a luncheon yesterday at the Congressional Country Club. Officers and directors of the Washington Rotary Club tendered a luncheon for Duperrey at the Army and Navy Club.

Coroner Says Woman Was Drunk When Slain

Testimony that Mrs. Henrietta Anderson, 36-year-old Veterans' Administration clerk, was "incoherently drunk" at the time she was slain with a furnace shaker August 22 in her apartment at 1633 L street northwest was offered in District Court yesterday after William (Major) McAfee, diminutive 61-year-old colored janitor of the building, went on trial for her slaying.

An analysis of the contents of Mrs. Anderson's blood and organs showed, Deputy Coroner Christopher J. Murphy said, that there was a 17 per cent saturation of alcohol. Mrs. Camille Balas, 1462 Rhode Island avenue northwest, Rebecca Rossi, Glenn Raburn and Max Keedy, 1619 L street northwest, also testified.

Ten Junior Leaguers Will Sell Hot Dogs to Help Lunch Fund

Food Concession at 3-Day Inter-American Horse Show Granted to Aid Campaign; First $10,000 Given Officials.

Washington residents will have another chance to contribute to the free school lunch fund today, tomorrow and Saturday. Hot dogs and pop corn will be sold at the three-day Inter-American Horse Show by a corps of ten Junior Leaguers, whose profits will be turned over to the fund.

The food concession, which was granted the Citizens Emergency Committee for Feeding Hungry School Children by Maj. Frank Whittaker, will be managed by E. E. Harrington, local restaurant man. Harrington had the food contracts for the free lunches in 1934 and volunteered his services to the committee this year. He will be assisted by Mrs. Jessica Thies.

The first $10,000 raised in the drive was turned over to the District yesterday. Beginning next Monday, District officials will be responsible for the purchase of food and its distribution to the buildings.

Another $10 000 will be added to the fund when policemen and firemen make complete returns on their sale of fight tickets, the committee believes.

The benefit dance and show to have been held Tuesday at Murray Casino has been postponed until next Tuesday. Sponsors are the Washington Tribune, the Howard Theater and the Delta Phi Kappa Sorority.

50 Pastors Are Sought For Lutheran Vacancies

Atlantic City, N. J., Oct. 20 (AP).—In the midst of unemployment, the United Lutheran Church in America has more jobs than it has young ministers to fill them. This unusual situation was disclosed here today by the national body's committee on personell, which reported that nearly 50 points needed pastors immediately and that no unemployed qualified men were available.

U. S. Seizes Log Of Murder and Mutiny on Algic

Strike-Battered Vessel Returns to Baltimore From Montevideo.

that Burgess, a fiery individual, was playing a leading role in demanding that Capt. Gainard join a maritime union or take the consequences of a sit-down strike.

The quarrel between Burgess and the other seaman flared up many times in the crew's quarters, and for a time it looked as if it would bring about a riot. The blood-spilling, however, actually came on a July night while Burgess, his enemy and other members of the crew were whooping it up in a Jacksonville waterfront dive.

Burgess Slain; Foe Cleared.

Burgess, wielding a long-bladed knife, had just slashed his foe's neck when a pistol shot sounded. Burgess slumped to the floor and the knife tumbled from his hand. He died shortly thereafter.

The sailor he slashed was taken to a hospital, where surgeons performed a quick sewing job and saved his life. He later was taken back to the Algic.

Another sailor, one as unmanageable as Burgess was hired at Jacksonville, and then Capt. Gainard headed the Algic toward the equator and Montevideo. On the way down the crew grew more and more sullen. Noisy meetings were held in the quarters aft.

They were ready for any action by the time the Algic reached Montevideo, where the lumber was to be unloaded and hides and canned corn beef taken on.

Capt. Gainard had been stricken with flu just before the ship reached the Uruguyan port. On the morning of September 10, he was in his cabin, covered with blankets and running a high fever, when one of his mates notified him that the crew had called another set-down strike.

Firemen Stop Winches.

Gainard was astonished. What possible reason could the men give for striking on a Government-owned ship in a foreign port? Did they not know, he demanded, that this was mutiny?

He was to learn that this was a "sympathy strike." The foreman of the organized Uruguayan longshoremen had struck one of his men and now the longshoremen had called a strike. The crew of the Algic took a vote and announced that they would sit down until these syndicate workers were pacified.

"Free," or nonunion, longshoremen were rounded up to handle the cargo, but the Algic sailors refused to lift a hand, if the nonunion men were employed. Since the engine room force refused to fire the boilers and provide steam for the winches, it was impossible to move cargo.

Capt. Gainard, rising from his sick bed, confronted his men and demanded that they observe his "lawful orders"—the language of Rules of Navigation in connection with mutiny—and go to work. Sullenly the men refused, saying they had taken their stand. Either the union longshoremen would have to handle the cargo or it just wouldn't be handled.

By this time Vice Consul Hector R. Adams had taken a hand in the situation. He, too, confronted the men, reminded them that they were on a Government-owned ship in a foreign port, and asked them to go to work.

"We know what we're doing," a seaman yelled at him. That seaman later was to die.

Kennedy Consulted.

Capt. Gainard had made up his mind that a harsh course of action was called for. But he thought that under the circumstances he should communicate with Washington.

From the American consular office, he telephoned to Chairman Joseph P. Kennedy of the Maritime Commission, 5,000 miles away in Washington.

Kennedy gave the Algic skipper his now famous "place them in irons" order. He followed it up with this cablegram:

"Instruct crew to proceed with your lawful orders. If they still refuse warn crew that all still refusing to perform duty will be placed in irons and prosecuted to full extent of law on return to United States. If they still refuse, place ringleaders in irons. If other crew members still refuse duty, have them removed from ship and replace with Americans, if available, and if not, foreign seamen. In case you experience any difficulty, request assistance local authorities."

Crew Abandons Strike.

Capt. Gainard again confronted the crew, told them of his instructions from Washington, and suggested that they take their choice of returning to work or landing in irons. The crew held a meeting, voted and agreed to return to work.

The boilers were fired, steam flowed into the engines, and the cargo was handled by the nonunion lingshoremen.

From Montevideo, the Algic proceeded to Santos, Brazil, where more coffee awaited it. The men were working, but there was still turmoil in the quarters. When it was time to sail, three members of the crew were missing, and the ship left Santos without them.

The next port of call was Victoria, Brazil. Here came the final tragedy of the hair-raising voyage. In view of what happened at Santos, shore leave was denied the crew. The ship, meantime, was anchored off shore, a coffee barge tied alongside.

Four Men Slip Over Side.

Four members of the crew entered into a plot to desert the ship. Two of them, according to the officers, had been ringleaders at Montevideo and thus had reason to fear what might happen to them back in the United States.

In the darkness, the four men climbed over the side of the Algic and clambered down to the coffee barge. Tied to the barge was a small dugout type of boat, barely large enough to carry more than one person.

Into this piled all four of the runaways, taking their clothes. It was an exhibition of insane seamanship, all aboard the Algic now agree.

About 150 feet from the Algic, the dugout boat capsized, hurling the four men into the water. Three of them managed to swim to the shore; the fourth was drowned.

Body Is Recovered.

This man was Able Seaman H. B. Gill, of Savannah, Ga. It was he who told Vice Consul Adams that "we know what we're doing." His body was found two days after the Algic left Victoria.

Now the Algic was headed for home, with Jacksonvile scheduled as the first stop. Here another entry concerning a member of the crew was made in Capt. Gainard's log. The seaman, who was hired to take the place of the murdered Burgess, "jumped ship" in Jacksonville, the same port where he had signed on.

Shortly after the Algic came through the murk hanging above the Patapsco this morning, at the very time, in fact, that Federal investigators were talking to Capt. Gainard and the other officers, the deckhands, the "black gang" and the stewards were holding a union meeting in their quarters.

When this meeting broke up The Post representative asked the delegate for the deck force for the crew's side of the story. The answer was that there would be no statement.

In making public the instructions that were cabled to Capt. Gainard at the time of the strike in Montevideo, the Maritime Commission insisted that, since the Algic was owned by the United States Government and the crew paid with a check from the Treasury, the strike was one "against the Government" and therefore not to be tolerated.

Situation "Impossible."

Joseph Curran, general organizer for the National Maritime Union, a C. I. O. affiliate, denounced the Maritime Commission's action as "high-handed" and denied that the Algic strike was one against the Government, since the ship had been chartered by the American Republic Line.

What amounted to an answer to Curran came today when Ring, labor representative of the commission, boarded the Algic to congratulate Capt. Gainard on his handling of the ship throughout its tumultuous cruise. Ring did this on orders of the commission, following a special meeting.

The Algic case, according to American shipping men, has simply dramatized a labor situation in the Merchant Marine which they described as "impossible." American ships, they say, are now merely "floating soap-boxes" for radical agitators. The masters of the ships, they add, have had to "abdicate" to the well-organized crews, backed in many cases by radicals with unwholesome records.

his West Coast lieutenant, Harry Bridges.

The federation's teamsters, led by Dan Tobin, are now fighting the C. I. O. on the Coast, but are receiving powerful support only in Seattle, where Federation Leader Dave Beck has ousted the C. I. O. almost entirely.

The chief flaw in the situation, from a C. I. O. point of view, is the standing enmity between Bridges and Lundeberg. Since Bridges, once a fast friend of Lundeberg, was appointed Coast chieftain of the C. I. O., Lundeberg has been negotiating with both sides. He has been handicapped by the growing extent of Bridges' power, as Bridges dominates the longshoremen and hundreds of warehouse workers on the Coast.

Missing Va. Mayor Is Found a Suicide

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., Oct. 20.—Two weeks ago Mayor John W. Morrison of this town, a leader in civic and political affairs in western Virginia, went to Washington on undisclosed business.

At 10:15 a. m. today Mayor Morrison's body, a bullet wound through the head, was found under an apple tree at Rockland Hill, 14 miles south of here.

Almost simultaneously with the finding of the body, the mayor's nephew, Charles Morrison, of Shenandoah, Va., received a note written by the mayor. The missive revealed the mayor on his trip to Washington had ascertained the cost of his own cremation. The note contained a check for the amount of this expense and the request that the ashes be scattered from an airplane over Hampton Roads.

8,000 Stevedores Make Strike Truce

Tampa, Fla., Oct. 20 (AP).—Coastwise operators late today accepted terms of a truce offered by the International Longshoremen's Association, ending the strike of 8,000 stevedores, which had crippled shipping in nine South Atlantic and East Gulf ports since last Friday, V. E. Townsend, Southern representative of the union, announced.

HELP KIDNEYS PASS 3 LBS. A DAY
Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.
Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.
An excess of acids or poisons in your blood, when due to functional kidney disorders, may be the cause of nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.
Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills. Adv.

Bishop Ireton To Preach at Mass at Aquia

Feast of Christ the King Will Be Observed Sunday, Oct. 31.

The Most Rev. Peter L. Ireton, coadjutor bishop of Richmond, will preach at the eighth field mass in historic Brent Cemetery, Aquia, Va., Sunday October 31, the feast of Christ the King. The mass will be celebrated at the Father Walter Nott Memorial Altar by Dr. Francis J. Byrne, managing editor of the Catholic Virginian and superintendent of schools in the diocese.

The memorial altar has been erected beside the graves of the first English Catholic settlers in Virginia, who came to that colony from Maryland in 1647, under leadership of Giles Brent.

The field mass this year will celebrate the clearing of the debt incurred by the erecting of the great bronze crucifix near the cemetery on the Fredericksburg-Washington highway. The $7,500 debt was assumed by the historical committee of the Catholic Women's Club of Richmond.

A monument also has been erected in the cemetery to eight Spanish Jesuit missionaries who were martyred by the Indians near the site of the settlement.

Slaughter of the Jesuits is said to have occurred in 1571, antedating the arrival of Capt. John Smith and his followers in the colony. The monument was erected by Catholic Students Mission Crusade.

The land at Aquia was purchased as a Catholic historical shrine by the late Archbishop Dennis J. O'Connell. The development of the shrine was assigned to the late Father Walter Nott, who was assisted in the work by the Catholic Women's Club historical committee headed by Mrs. P. Jefferson Archer.

Elliott Roosevelt Contracts to Give Radio Comment

Los Angeles, Oct. 20 (AP).—Irving Fogel, representing Elliott Roosevelt announced today that the son of the President had signed a contract for a commercially sponsored twice-a-week 15-minute radio broadcast. He will comment on news incidents "in the lives of Mr. and Mrs. Average Citizen."

Windsor to Sell Time Clocks to Labor, U.S. Told

highest corporate salary reported to the Securities and Exchange Commission. He received $365,358 that year and attributed his success to clock watching and punching holes in cardboard.

The duke's task, it was reported, will be to reconcile labor to increased use of the efficiency system and of the machine. He will, of course, be expected to sell the method and the machine to employers.

The duke's well-known friendliness to labor, evidenced as the Prince of Wales and King Edward VIII, is expected to win a favorable response from labor. Qualities developed through his long service as the supersalesman of the British Empire are expected to win him customers among American businessmen.

There was naturally some surprise as these reports gained circulation. No doubt was expressed as to the genuineness of the duke's wish to study the working man's condition and to improve it so far as it lies within his power to do so.

Nothing Incongruous Seen.

Bedaux, who is arranging his tour, has received from Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes a list of WPA projects, particularly low-priced resettlement projects. Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins has offered resources of her department to the duke.

Nevertheless the duke's visit, as has been stated so often, is entirely unofficial. There would be nothing incongruous in his engaging in a commercial venture while on this trip. It was learned yesterday, however, that his itinerary when announced Monday probably will not list Hollywood as one of the duke's stopping places.

Labor is reported now as unfriendly to the Bedaux system, which is described as "separation of work periods by rest periods in such a way as to bring most efficient results from labor." But the system has been so profitable to the inventor that he recently added a new German castle to his already extensive real estate holdings in Europe.

Duchess Acknowledges Gesture.

Watson recently consulted Bedaux in Paris on planning of the duke's tour. The head of International Business Machines has always punched a time clock with the rest of his workmen and in his plants the workmen's activities are timed and tabulated minutely on I. B. M. machines.

Dr. Louise C. Ball, president of the Society of Virginia Women in New York, reported yesterday, according to the Associated Press, she had received a cable from the entourage of the Duke and Duchess of Windsor acknowledging the society's action in electing the duchess an active member.

The cable from Nurnberg, Germany, stated:

Dr. Ball had cabled the duchess Tuesday notifying her of the election.

Man With a Limp Drove Away in Car From Bus Station.

Police investigating the murder of Elmer J. Davidson last night were up against the same impasse that has blocked them for two weeks—the identity of a car which might have given the murderer a ride.

After locating the motorist who unknowingly drove the suspected murderer from Triangle, Va., to Frederick, Md., shortly after the crime, police found that the suspect was believed to have hitched a ride in another car out of Frederick.

Their lead to the second car, described as a black Chrysler airflow, came from a bus driver in Frederick, who told police the man who might be the murderer came into the Frederick bus terminal between 1:30 a. m. and 2 a. m. October 4, the morning after the murder.

In a Dazed Condition.

The suspect, appearing in a dazed condition, said he was in a hurry to reach Baltimore to visit a sick relative. Informed that the first bus for Baltimore left at 2:55 a. m., the suspect decided he would get there faster by hitch-hiking.

He left the terminal and went next door to an all-night restaurant. Soon afterward the driver left the terminal, went to the restaurant and found the stranger there.

While they were there the Chrysler stopped outside the restaurant. The driver came into the restaurant, leaving another man asleep in the front seat.

The bus driver returned to the terminal, and a moment later the suspected murderer and the driver of the Chrysler entered. He saw them talk together, leave the terminal and return to the Chrysler. They woke up the man sitting in front and made him get in back.

The bus driver said he saw them sitting together in the front seat. They kept the motor running and the lights on for almost five minutes before they drove off.

He saw the Chrysler reach the intersection of Routes 240 and 15. Instead of turning toward Baltimore they turned north on Route 15. He suggested they might have gone either to Gettysburg or to Baltimore by way of Liberty.

License Number Unknown.

He told police the suspected murderer was a young man about 5 feet 6 inches, and 150 pounds. He wore a dark suit, without overcoat or hat. The right knee of his trousers was badly torn and he limped on his right leg. The left knee of his trousers was soiled as though he had kneeled on damp ground. He appeared to be under considerable nervous strain.

Meanwhile, it was found the murdered man had left an estate of approximately $45,000, when Davidson's sister, Mrs. Laura Hurlie Dow, yesterday filed a petition for the probate of his will. Mrs. Dow was made sole beneficiary.

Expert Laments Low Wages Paid For Brains in U.S.

Americans probably pay less for capital invested in "brains" than they do for any similar amount invested in business, Dr. William Dow Boutwell, of the United States Office of Education, yesterday told Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, president of the Washington Board of Education, in a Nation-wide radio program sponsored by the National Congress of Parents and Teachers.

Mrs. Doyle interviewed Dr. Boutwell, Dr. Ivan Booker, president of the Arlington Parent-Teacher Council, and Dr. Howard Dawson, using questions which District of Columbia educational leaders last year discussed as covering some of the most pertinent school problems—especially the "eternal" one of school costs.

Average cost of education in the United States is but 44 cents a day and, from this amount, "persons without children benefit just as much as parents with children to educate," Dr. Boutwell said.

Red Cross Sends $8,000 To Nanking for Relief

Action followed recommendation of the United States Ambassador, Nelson T. Johnson.

In his announcement of this allotment to China, which was transmitted through the State Department, Admiral Cary T. Grayson, Red Cross chairman, said this sum would cover 9,000 Chinese dollars for emergency medical relief work at the Margaret Williamson Hospital, in Shanghai and 15,000 Chinese dollars to be used for the relief of civilian refugees at Soochow.

FAT WOMEN SMOTHER IN TIGHT GIRDLES

Tight girdles and stiff foundation garments actually make many women look fatter. Instead of squeezing your fat, why don't you try to get rid of it? Why not have a slim, lovely, youthful figure that needs but little girdle control?

Thousands of overweight women have found that the Marmola way is the easy way to get rid of ugly fat. Just take 4 Marmola Prescription Tablets each day, and in place of starchy foods like potatoes and pastries, eat more salads, fruits, green vegetables, and go slow on fatty meats. That's simple, isn't it? Yet what a difference Marmola and this little change in your diet may make in your weight. Losses of 5 to 8 pounds a week have been reported in many cases from this simple, easy method of reducing. Marmola Prescription Tablets contain the same element prescribed by many doctors in treating their fat patients. Get a box at your druggist today and send that ugly fat on its way.

Ickes' Rebuff Fails to Halt District Plan to Speed Traffic

Only One Federal Agency Has Agreed to Van Duzer's Proposal to Stagger Hours of Workers; Rep. Palmisano to Seek Congressional Action.

Despite the refusal of Secretary of the Interior Ickes and other officials of the Government to cooperate, Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer announced yesterday that he will go ahead with his plan for staggering the working hours of Federal workers.

In a letter to Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen yesterday, Ickes declined to order his employes to work at 8:15 o'clock in the morning during the winter. He also criticized traffic conditions here.

"He didn't tell us anything we don't know about traffic," commented Hazen.

Van Duzer disclosed that only one Federal agency, the Federal Trade Commission, had agreed to the new staggered-hour plan, whereas the Labor Department and the Home Owners Loan Corporation refused, as did Ickes.

The traffic director explained that his hope was to take about 25,000 more Federal workers away from the 56,000 that now go to their offices at 9 a. m. About 60,000 more he said, already are on a different schedule.

"We could handle about 30,000 at 9 o'clock without much trouble," he said. "The street car companies also could function more efficiently on such a schedule."

Van Duzer pointed out that the department stores and other business houses recently went on a 9:30 a. m. opening schedule and thus took thousands off the 9 o'clock traffic load.

Chairman Palmisano, of the House District Committee, meanwhile said that he will call a conference with District officials when Congress convenes in an effort to work out a system of traffic relief.

Ickes in his letter called attention to several traffic violations which slow up traffic. He mentioned loitering by drivers, cars spraddling traffic lanes, wrong turns, disregard of stop signs, and violation of one-way traffic signs.

"There is never an occasion, during my travel to and from office, that I do not see numerous violations of regulations or the tenets of good driving."

Ickes suggested that the main thoroughfares be patrolled more vigorously and said that traffic would be accelerated without resort to staggered hours.

"We all know we need more policemen," Hazen said, "but if we ask for all the policemen needed to watch traffic, the citizens will complain that we are bringing on more taxes by increasing the budget estimates."

Firemen Tell Clew In Arson Plot Trial

Media, Pa., Oct. 20 (AP).—A jury hearing charges or arson and attempted murder against Albert R. Knight, 55, was told today that kerosene "dripped" from inflammable material firemen found in the Knight basement.

Assistant District Attorney William R. Toal charged Knight with attempting to kill his four children to collect $120,000 insurance. Knight's daughters, Ruth, 23; Susan, 19, and Mary, 17, have said they will testify in his behalf. He has a son, David, 15.

Death of Treasury Aide Called Suicide

A certificate of suicide was issued last night by Coroner A. Magruder McDonald in the death of Mrs. Ida May Harrington, 55, of 6335 Thirty-first street northwest. She was found yesterday noon by a neighbor, Mrs. M. S. Posey, 6160 Thirty-first street, suffering from effects of poison.

Her physician, Dr. John A. Logan, 6001 Nevada avenue northwest, pronounced her dead. Police say she left a note, addressed to "Olga," which said a letter in her office would "explain everything." Police last night had not located either the letter or the person to whom it was addressed. Mrs. Harrington was employed in the Treasury Department.

Thefts Charged To Reputed Kin Of '61 Guerrilla

Two indictments charging robbery to Carmon Gale Quantrille, 33, said by police to be a descendant of the guerrilla chieftain of Civil War days, William Clark Quantrille, were returned by the District Grand Jury yesterday as a result of an inquiry into his activities following his arrest here on a Maryland request.

The local charges alleged Quantrille and some companions robbed Leroy Richardson, 73 Florida avenue northwest, of $156 last July. The second charge is that he and others, not named, looted the safe of the Washington Beef and Provision Co., of about $1,000.

Police said the arrest led from an attempt to cash a small Government check that was in the safe. Henry Raymond Milton, 35, was named with Quantrille in the latter presentment.

The grand jury returned 64 indictments.

Those indicted were: Arthur H. Johnson, John J. Ring, Walter M. Lee, James R. Haywood, William H. Harrison, James L. Baker, Frank H. Davis, Robert Crawley, James Craig, Lester Samuels and Harry W. Gaither, joy riding; Evan T. Glenn, Dorothy Gladden, James R. Milner, Delaine Simpson, LeRoy King, John Gaines, Chauncey McKoy, Harry B. Maddox, Michael Mounts, Nannie B. Dennis, Ellsworth P. William Woodward Expires Here at 48

William Walter Woodward, 48, real estate dealer and resident of Washington for a number of years, died yesterday at his home, 2845 Myrtle avenue northeast, after a three-week illness.

A native of Maryland, Woodward came to Washington in 1923 and later entered the real estate business, forming the firm of Woodward & Veith. Following the death of his partner in 1932, Mr. Woodward carried on the business alone.

One of the first builders to operate in Woodridge, he built a number of homes there and was the owner and operator of Kenwood Beach, Md.

Surviving Woodward are his wife, Mrs. Minnie W. Woodward; two daughters, Mrs. Marie Gaskins and Miss Mildred Woodward, and two sons, Garnet and Ralph Woodward.

Funeral services will be held Saturday at his late residence at 2 p. m. Burial will be in Fort Lincoln Cemetery.

Gonzales, Editor, Diplomat, Dies, 71

Columbia, S. C., Oct. 20 (AP).—Capt. William Elliott Gonzales, editor and publisher of the State, Columbia's morning newspaper, and former United States diplomat, died today. He was 71 years old.

Capt. Gonzales' military title dated back to his service in the American Army in Cuba in the Spanish-American War. Except for that war service and a period in which he held the posts of Minister to Cuba and Ambassador to Peru in the Wilson Administration, his entire life was devoted to the newspaper, which was founded by his two older brothers.

Mrs. Fahnestock Is Buried Today

In presence of more than 100 of her friends, the funeral service for Mrs. Gibson Fahnestock was held yesterday afternoon in the Great Choir of Washington Cathedral with the Rev. Oliver J. Hart, D. D., rector of St. John's Church, Lafayette Square, officiating. He was assisted by the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, D. D., LL.D., Bishop of Washington, who offered the closing prayers. The Very Rev. Noble C. Powell, dean of the cathedral, and Anson Phelps Stokes marched in the procession.

The honorary pallbearers were William R. Castle, former Undersecretary of State and member of the Cathedral Chapter; Admiral Joseph Strauss, Rear Admiral Mark L. Bristol, Rear Admiral William H. Bell; Charles Henry Butler and Arthur B. Lisle, of Providence, R. I.

Ushers were Lynch Luquer, secretary of the Washington branch of the English-Speaking Union; C. F. R. Ogilby, secretary of the Cathedral Chapter, and Edwin N. Lewis, executive secretary of the National Cathedral Association.

Immediately after the service the body was placed in the Chapel of the Holy Spirit in front of the beautiful altar and triptych, which Mrs. Fahnestock gave to Washington Cathedral in memory of her mother.

Interment will take place in Woodlawn Cemetery, New York City, this afternoon, the Right Rev. Ernest M. Stires, D. D., Bishop of Long Island, officiating.

Native Jury Sworn To Try Montague

Elizabethtown, N. Y., Oct. 20 (AP). Twelve rugged natives of this Adirondack Mountain country reluctantly forsook their deer rifles and took their oath as jurors tonight to try John Montague, dapper pal of Hollywood notables, on a seven-year-old robbery charge.

Mrs. Turner, Union Widow, Is Dead at 90

Mrs. Martha D. Turner, 90, widow of Capt. William Turner and resident of Washington more than 25 years, died yesterday at her residence, 2030 Sixteenth street northwest.

Born in Logan County before the State was divided in territory which is now West Virginia, Mrs. Turner was married at the age of 18. Mrs. Turner later moved to Raleigh County, W. Va., where she lived for 40 years.

Her husband, Capt. Turner, served in the Union Army and was wounded at Cross Keys in the famous Seven Days Battle. A surveyor by profession, Capt. Turner never completely recovered from injuries received in the Civil War and retired from active business upon moving here in 1911.

The daughter of Capt. M. V. Hinchminn, who also served in the Union Army, Mrs. Turner is survived by seven children, three of whom are doctors.

Active for her years, she attended the Metropolitan Methodist Episcopal Church regularly.

Surviving Mrs. Turner are four daughters, Mrs. M. A. Chamberlin, of Huntington, W. Va.; Mrs. S. A. Meador, of Bedford, Ind.; Mrs. J. Ward Mankin, of Washington, and Mrs. J. E. King, of Richmond, Va.; three sons, Dr. John R. Turner, of New York City; Dr. M. T. Turner, of San Diego, Calif., and Dr. W. W. Turner, of South Bend, Ind., and 18 grandchildren and 20 great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at the S. H. Hines funeral home, 2901 Fourteenth street northwest, at 11:30 a. m. Burial will be in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

Postlude

Columbia Opera Company of New York presents Gounod's "Faust" in the Rialto Theater Wednesday night, under direction of Umberto Mugnai. The cast:

Marguerite .. Marthe Errolle
Faust ..... Lee Sherman
Mephistopheles .... Lloyd Harris
Valentine ..... Jeffrey Gould
Siebel ..... Rita Taft
Martha ..... Gretchen Haller

Surprising us with that rare dispensation in serious opera, an all-American cast, the visitors from Manhattan presented last evening a spirited and enjoyable performance of Gounod's "Faust" and aroused the enthusiasm of the largest audience that has thus far assembled in the Rialto Theater in the current engagement. In the roster of principals, the one name that had a foreign semblance simply proved that appearances are deceptive. For Martha Errolle is the daughter of Ralph Errolle—and it is an open secret that the family actually belongs to one of the great American clans: Brown, Jones, Robinson and Smith.

If ever a singer deserved that time-worn but indispensable epithet, promising, it is Miss Errolle who sang the role of Marguerite with an ingratiating charm of voice and personality. She has an artistic conscience, an excellently trained technique and a salient talent for the stage. Her voice has a refreshing purity of color and she uses it with the discretion of one who knows the value of restraint as well as the danger of vainglorious ostentation. She is, unless my surmise goes astray, well aware of the capabilities of her voice and wisely conserves them.

Her skill in tone production was disclosed patently in the garden scene by adroit use of disparate styles. The ballad about the King of Thule was sung in the simplest lyric mode with veiled softness of tone that matched the wistful dreaminess of the mood, while the "Air des Bijoux" was endowed with sparkling brilliance of tone. Throughout its range her voice was supple and smooth and evenly sustained on the breath.

Priority among men in the cast must be accorded to Lloyd Harris, whose robust and pliant voice was capably applied to the basso role of Mephistopheles. His characterization had the requisite diablerie and there was abundant vitality in his singing.

Lee Sherman was sincerely lyrical in his impersonation of Faust and he attained at times a soaring sonority. But the natural beauty of his tenor voice is not consistently allowed to prove itself, having to make its way through a disguising vibrato. The Valentine of Jeffrey Gould was also marred by some unsteadiness of tone in a voice of pleasant resonance.

U. S. Names Big Muddy River Big Muddy River, After Study

The Department of the Interior announced yesterday that its United States Board on Geographic Names has decided to call the Big Muddy River out in Illinois the Big Muddy River.

This apparently simple decision actually was one involving tact and inspiration. It seems that there are three branches, namely, East Fork, West Fork and Little Muddy. Residents along each of these tributaries claimed that theirs was the proper name of the whole stream. The harassed postmaster appealed the matter to the board, which, taking Little Muddy as a base, added the others, and arrived at Big Muddy, which seems to satisfy all concerned.

The people who think up the names for Pullman cars have an easy time of it compared with the Board of Geographic Names, which must take into account such matters as local pride, local jealousies, changing populations, folklore and history. Among tough problems with which the board must wrestle are certain places along the Eastern seacoast, for which seafaring residents insist on using one designation and the landsmen another.

Sometimes, however, it is merely a matter of indorsing change of mind by the residents themselves, as when, for instance, the Colonial Council of the Virgin Islands voted to change the name of St. Thomas to Charlotte-Amalie. This latter was the name given it 250 years ago in honor of his Queen Consort by King Christian V. of Denmark, then ruler of the islands.

Under Secretary Ickes, the board has established a policy of declining to name places after living personages. The idea is to discourage the use of geographic nomenclature for political purposes.

Corwin Price, 68, Succumbs in D. C.

Corwin T. Price, 68, for 50 years a District resident, died last night at the home of his daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Parke P. Jones, 3389 Runnymede place northwest, after a long illness.

Mr. Price, who formerly was in the office of the Alien Property Custodian, also is survived by his wife, Blanche; a son, George; two sisters, Mrs. Joseph E. Braitmayer and Mrs. Henry B. Moore, and two brothers, Harry N. and George E. Price. All are residents of Washington except Mrs. Moore, who lives in Phoenix, Ariz.

Burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Will you invest 50¢ to discover a truly fine Whisky

Down in Old Kentucky there is a distiller who has been making truly great whiskies in the same slow, expensive way for 67 years. The name is Brown-Forman.

Bottoms Up is one of these famous whiskies by Brown-Forman—and it's one of the smoothest and richest-flavored straight bourbons that has ever passed your lips. That's because the "Brown-Forman way" of distilling whisky demands longer time — more grain — and greater expense.

For 50 cents, you can get a half-pint of this fine Kentucky whisky. We know you'll enjoy its smoothness — its vigor — and its rich, full-bodied flavor. The name Brown-Forman assures its quality.

Try Bottoms Up — if you want a truly fine Kentucky whisky at a moderate price.

Last Fliers Flee, Leaving Gijon To Mobs, Fire

Six Planes Land in France as Basques, Asturians Fight in Streets.

By the Associated Press.

Biarritz, France, Oct. 20.—A group of Spanish government fliers who fled from Gijon today said the city was in flames and further defense against Generalissimo Franco's advancing army appeared impossible.

Anarchy was spreading, they said, with Basques and Asturians fighting each other in the streets. Food supplies were nearly exhausted, and only a few militiamen still were ready to hold out against the insurgents.

(Reports from Hendaye said Franco's forces were crushing all resistance after having occupied the cities of Villaviciosa and Infiesto, less than 12 miles from Gijon, objective of the insurgents in the Asturian campaign. They were reported to be massing forces for a "decisive blow.")

The government fliers, who said they were the last of Gijon's air force, sought refuge in France with six planes. Five of the planes came to Parme airport and the sixth landed on the beach at Cape Breton. Its wings were smashed by the sea.

"There are no more planes in Gijon," one officer said. "Against Franco's aviation no defense is possible. Bombs rain on the air field. There is no more ammunition for the anti-aircraft guns."

(Government reports to Madrid said an insurgent air raid on Gijon Tuesday killed many persons and sank an English ship in the harbor. Heavy damage, they said, was inflicted by 14 insurgent bombers carrying out the daily raid. Several buildings were said to have collapsed, trapping their occupants.)

Valencia, Spain, Oct. 20 (U.P.).—Two of the highest military leaders of loyalist Spain in the first eight months of the civil war, Gen. Jose Asensio and Gen. Toribio Martinez Cabrera, were arrested today for "conspiracy against the republic."

Charges against them were based on the loyalists' loss of the southern seaport of Malaga last February 8. Gen. Asensio, undersecretary of war in the cabinet of Premier Francisco Largo Caballero, was in charge of loyalist military operations at the time throughout Spain. Gen. Cabrera formerly was chief of the loyalist general staff.

Mussolini Agrees To Recall Troops

Charles Andre Corbin, still pressed his demands today for a "proportionate" withdrawal of volunteers instead of an equal one on the grounds that the insurgents have at least three times as many mercenary troops as the loyalists.

But it was authoritatively revealed that France, under British persuasion, was in a mood to arbitrate the point rather than see a complete breakdown of the "hands off Spain" negotiations and be forced to the point of taking "independent freedom of action."

The biggest question remaining in the minds of the Nine-Power delegates tonight was: What will Russia do?

The Soviet delegate, Ivan Maisky, yesterday turned against Russia's military ally and rejected a French compromise plan calling for "proportionate" withdrawals of volunteers to be followed by settlement of the belligerency question. Russia, staunchest supporter of the Spanish loyalists, refused to consider belligerency until every volunteer was out of Spain.

The Italian offer went beyond the five-point French proposal and back to the ill-fated British plan of last July 14, providing that an airtight system of frontier and coastal patrol be established around Spain. After that "limited" belligerency rights would be granted and the recall of volunteers put under way. Once the recall of mercenaries was well under way full belligerency would be provided.

Grandi told today's meeting that Italy accepted the British definition of belligerency rights—permitting naval blockade, but prohibiting interference with neutral shipping off Spanish coasts—without reservations.

France Is Suspicious.

Paris, Oct. 2 (U.P.).—French diplomats warned tonight that "grave difficulties" will arise if Italy or any other power attempt to exploit the new nonintervention proposals as a means of obtaining an advantage for either of the warring Spanish factions.

The foreign office revealed that it is suspicious of the motives underlying Italy's surprise gesture—backed by Germany—in proposing that a neutral commission be dispatched to Spain immediately to arrange for the withdrawal of all foreign "volunteer"

Pact Sponsor Urges Umpires In Chinese War

Predicts Failure of Brussels Parley Due to Absences.

By the United Press.

Chicago, Oct. 20.—The man credited with being the father of the Kellog-Briand pact urged tonight that President Roosevelt take the lead in world attempts to settle the Chinese-Japanese crisis by advocating appointment of three disinterested nations empowered to pass final judgment on the dispute.

Salmon O. Levinson, graying corporation lawyer, declared the Nine Power Far Eastern Conference at Brussels already is doomed to failure, because "actually it will not be a Nine Power conference.

"Japan has indicated she probably will not attend. Russia, largest power on the Pacific, probably would accept such an invitation, but if she were present Italy and Germany certainly would not be. Portugal probably would follow Italy, and Belgium and Holland are too small to count except morally. China will be present, but in the role of plaintiff.

"That leaves, to all intents and purposes, the United States, Great Britain and France."

Levinson believes that any attempt by these nations to curb Japan would be futile as well as dangerous.

"On the other hand," he said, "these nations all are signatories of the Kellogg Pact which outlawed war."

Davis Sails to Parley.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Oct. 20.—Stressing that the United States has "no commitments," Norman H. Davis, head of the American delegation to the Nine-Power nference on the Sino-Japanese conflict, sailed with his delegation today on the United States liner Washington.

The conference, called at the invitation of the Belgian government, will begin October 30 at Brussels.

"We are open-minded. We have no commitments. We are determined to study every possibility for a peaceful solution of the Sino-Japanese conflict and an early termination."

Asked if Russia would be invited to attend, Davis replied that he could not say, inasmuch as the United States had not extended the invitations to the conference.

Howling Storm Moves Arctic Camp 19 Miles

Moscow, Oct. 20 (A.P.).—The Soviet Union's Arctic campers disclosed today they had ridden out a howling windstorm which shoved their ice floe westward about 19 miles in 24 hours. The camp's radio aerial was silenced for 18 hours—the first such incident since the meteorological research base was established five months ago.

'Show Yourselves!' Nazi Crowds Cry, Heiling Windsors

Stuttgart, Germany, Oct. 20 (A.P.). The Duke and Duchess of Windsor received a welcome here today said by officials to have been equal to the receptions given Chancellor Hitler on his visits.

After the couple, aided by police, had made a difficult entrance into their hotel, thousands stood outside and chanted in unison:

"Dear duke, dear duchess, come show yourselves."

The former king and his wife appeared on the balcony for a few minutes and thanked the "heiling" crowd.

tung, had stemmed the Japanese advance and was driving the enemy back.

The reports said Chinese troops had re-entered Hopei, slicing through the Japanese communication line to Tientsin and recapturing Ningtsen, 40 miles northeast of Tehchow.

If these reports are true—and there was skepticism in neutral quarters—it means two Chinese forces are striking at Hopei from the east and west, endangering both lines of Japan's north-south communications.

New Supply of Planes.

The Central News reports said the Chinese struck first with new warplanes, of which they appear to have mysterious supplies on all fronts, and had surprised the Japanese defending forces at Pingyuanfu, which lies about half way between Tsinan and the Hopei border.

The reports said a Japanese munitions depot at the railroad station had been destroyed.

Reports from the northwest said a detachment of Chu Teh's forces had administered a definite defeat to Japanese troops at Hsinkow Pass, and that a "do-or-die" regiment of eighth routers had made a suicidal night raid with hand grenades on a Japanese airport at Yangpingpao, destroying 24 Japanese planes.

Meanwhile Lieut. Gen. Iwane Matsui, supreme commander of the Japanese forces around Shanghai, was reported to have gone to the front to direct personally a massed Japanese offensive against Tazang, 6 miles northwest of the International Settlement.

Chinese asserted that Matsui and Vice Admiral Kiyoshi Hasegawa were worried about the inability of the Japanese troops to advance and were seeking "new strategems and tactics."

BelaKun, Killer Of 1,000, Faces Death in Russia

By the United Press.

Moscow, Oct. 20.—Bela Kun, archplotter of bolshevism, has fallen victim of the Soviet Russian "purge" that today reached more merciless proportions than the trail of terror which he blazed through post-war Hungary.

Arrest of the 51-year-old Hungarian on charges that almost unfailingly result in death before a red firing squad was officially revealed by the official communist Internationale magazine.

It was significant that his arrest, based on condemnation of his "133 days of terror" in Hungary 18 years ago when he had more than 1,000 persons executed, was revealed almost at the hour when the killings in Dictator Josef V. Stalin's Russian purge passed the 1,000 mark.

The Soviet press disclosed death sentences on 70 more "enemies of the regime" which brought the known total of deaths to 1,031, according to published reports.

It had been reported several times in recent months that Kun, leader of the Communist revolution in Hungary a year after the World War and dictator during a short-lived Communist republic, had fallen victim of the Soviet "liquidations."

But each report was followed by his reappearance and new activities.

The Communist Internationale magaine said the imprisoned Hungarian, who fled to Russia to escape death at the hands of his enemies, was charged with "Trotskyist" activities which undermined the Communist Popular Front in Hungary at the time his followers overran and looted wide areas of the country.

It was generally believed here that Kun's bloody career was near its end.

Felix Warburg, International Banker, Is Dead

Jewish Leader Donated Millions to Charity and Arts.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Oct. 20.—Felix M. Warburg, 66, banker, philanthropist and Jewish leader, died at his Fifth avenue home today of heart disease.

Warburg, senior partner of the international banking house of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., was stricken Sunday night, but his condition was not regarded as critical until today.

His widow, the former Frieda Schiff, and their five children were with him at the end.

Warburg, German-born scion of a famous financial family, had devoted much time recently to the task of expatriating German Jews and to the development of Palestine as a Jewish homeland.

Foe of Partitioning.

Recently he attended sessions of the Jewish Agency for Palestine in Zurich, Switzerland, and led a revolt by American non-Zionists against a British proposal to partition Palestine into sovereign Jewish and Arabian states. A compromise providing for a round-table conference of Jews and Arabs was effected.

A year ago Mr. Warburg was named chairman of the American Division of the Executive Committee of the Council for German Jewry, a world-wide organization formed to co-ordinate efforts to expatriate 100,000 German Jews within four years.

Like his brother, Paul, who died in 1932, Mr. Warburg gave time, energy and money for bettering humanity.

He was organizer and chairman of the Federation for the Support of Jewish Philanthropic Societies of New York City, and chairman of the American-Jewish Joint Distribution Committee, which was organized during the World War to co-ordinate relief work in distressed Europe.

In 15 years the committee dispensed $80,000,000 in 46 sections of the Old World. Herbert Hoover, then President, called it "one of the world's outstanding pieces of human engineering."

Warburg was born in Hamburg, Germany, January 14, 1871. In 1894 he came to the United States, where he and his elder brother, Paul, became partners in Kuhn, Loeb & Co. He was naturalized in 1900. Two other brothers, Max and Fritz, remained in Hamburg to carry on the family banking business.

Headed Protest Group.

A year after his arrival, Felix Warburg married the daughter of Jacob H. Schiff, the "grand old man" of philanthropy. They had five children, Gerald F., Frederick M., Paul F. S., Edward M. M. Warburg and Mrs. Carola Rothschild.

In 1930, Mr. Warburg figured in an international furor when he and Dr. Chaim Weizmann and the late Lord Melchett, of England, led a protest against the "Passfield white paper." They declared that state document revoked Great Britain's policy of encouraging Jewish settlement in Asia Minor.

In the same year, 1930, Mr. Warburg was awarded the Gottheil medal by Zeta Beta Tau Fraternity for his work in behalf of Judaism. The citation placed his benefactions during the post-war decade at $10,000,000.

His death marked the passing of the fifth outstanding capitalist-philanthropist during the last few months, the others being John D. Rockefeller, sr., Andrew Mellon, George F. Baker and Ogden L. Mills.

Mr. Warburg was a heavy contributor to the Fogg Art Museum and the graduate school of education at Harvard. He served on the boards of the Teachers' College of Columbia University, the Jewish Theological Seminary, the American Museum of Natural History, the Hebrew University of Jerusalem and numerous other institutions and agencies.

A Universe Maker.

Though known and honored by the world of science for his epoch-making researches in the field of experimental physics, Lord Rutherford was little more than a name to the great masses of people both in England and abroad.

This is a significant commentary on our times. Rutherford unquestionably will eventually be classed in the very first flight of those whom Bernard Shaw once called the "universe makers." He was kin to Copernicus and Galileo, to Darwin, Newton and Einstein. He was an explorer of mysteries who, in his own way, surpassed the most adventurous efforts of Columbus, Magellan and Vasco da Gama.

Titles and honors and medals were heaped upon him by governments, universities and learned societies. Yet he was an obscure figure, so far as the general public was concerned, in comparison with a host of completely second-rate individuals, ranging from movie stars to politicians.

Not that Rutherford resented his relative obscurity. Far from it. Like all true scientists he was interested only in forever pushing outward the frontiers of knowledge. And in this task he and those he inspired did surpassingly well. Their efforts have brought about a tremendous revolution in the world's concept regarding the composition of matter.

The times in which we live are troublous. There is growing gloom regarding the future of civilization and the continued ascent of man. Standards and values once regarded as impregnable are going by the board while mediocrity or worse is everywhere acclaimed.

But pessimism on this score, while not wholly unjustified, arises out of too great a preoccupation with political and economic manifestations. There is another world of activity—the world of science of which Lord Rutherford was a shining ornament—in which man's intellect and ingenuity have been harnessed to great rather than ignoble ends, to constructive rather than destructive purposes. In that world progress remains continuous.

One may well speculate, however, as to how much more could be accomplished in ferreting out the secrets of the universe if the money and energy and intelligence now devoted to war and preparations for war, to the spread of passions and prejudices, to the conquest of ephemeral gains by ephemeral people, could be employed in a concerted effort to extend man's understanding of the world in which he finds himself.

Strange Move At The FCC.

The disqualification of Commissioner Payne of the Federal Communications Commission from participation in disbarment hearings against two attorneys charged with unethical conduct raises some very important issues. Mr. Payne maintains that the action taken by vote of five members of the commission is not only illegal but is likely to constitute a most dangerous precedent for disqualifying any member of any commission whose judgment interested persons have reason to fear.

It appears that Mr. Payne, on request of his colleagues, had pursued an investigation into the activities of the lawyers whose case is now before the commission. Perhaps his inquiries helped him to form an opinion as to the truth of the charges preferred against them. But it has to be kept in mind that the FCC, like other independent \regulatory commissions, is an administrative agency as well as one exercising judicial functions. Commissioners are not expected to preserve a cold judicial aloofness. It is, on the contrary, their duty to keep in close touch with developments that have a bearing upon enforcement activities. The more they know about the persons with whom they deal and whom they may be forced to discipline, the greater the likelihood that the law will be efficiently administered.

In his statement to the press Mr. Payne asserts that the communications act of 1934 does not authorize the commission or the courts to disqualify a commissioner from sitting in a case. Nor is there any other Federal law containing such provisions. This is an argument which challenges the majority decision and calls for an answer. But quite apart from questions of legality, Mr. Payne's disqualification by vote of a majority who refused his request for a statement of his position in court makes a bad impression.

If a majority of five can, for reasons deemed sufficient by themselves, prevent another member from sitting in a case, what is to prevent a majority of two or three from taking similar action against a minority of one or two members of any regulatory body? And what is to prevent that majority from picking the cases in which it prefers to dispense with a colleague's advice? In case of the FCC, the varied duties of a commissioner would make it extremely easy to disqualify any individual on the ground of bias, leaving him without a voice in deliberations whenever it pleased the majority to listen to the protest of interested parties.

Mr. Landon's Appeal.

Former Gov. Landon's radio attack upon President Roosevelt would seem to foreshadow a more active opposition to New Deal policies during the next few months. It was clearly designed to arouse the G. O. P. from its lethargy and to prepare the way for the 1938 Congressional campaigns. Citizens who realize the importance of an alert and vigorous opposition in a democratic system of government will applaud the sincerity of Mr. Landon's effort, despite its obvious shortcomings.

The first part of the address was really effective. Mr. Landon singled out the chief weakness of the New Deal—its choice of impractical and in some cases unconstitutional means of attaining various worthy objectives. On this point virtually all the opposition to Mr. Roosevelt unites. And the strength of the case here is suggested by the decisive victory of John E. Miller in the Arkansas Senatorial race. Despite the charges by Gov. Carl E. Bailey, regular Democratic nominee, that Representative Miller had helped to block the President's court plan, the latter won a substantial majority on an independent ticket.

Mr. Landon again demonstrated, as he did in the campaign, that he agrees with the humanitarian objectives of the Administration. That tends to sharpen the division over the means by which those aims should be attained. The most important domestic question confronting the American people is whether power to deal with economic and social issues shall be further concentrated in the hands of incompetent administrators.

Worthy objectives are no guarantee either of prosperity or of the continuance of representative government. As Mr. Landon pointed out, the people do not want to risk losing what they have attained in the last century and a half in an uncertain effort to gain something else. For recent world history is replete with warnings that democracy cannot be safely compromised by short cuts to imaginary utopias.

So long as he dwelt upon that issue, Mr. Landon made an impelling appeal for submergence of party and personal differences in the interests of a united fight for constitutional government. Unfortunately, however, he scattered his fire in the latter part of his speech. His comment on the Administration's foreign policy and the social security act will produce dissent instead of unity in the opposition ranks. The former Presidential candidate thereby emphasizes the tremendous difficulties confronting the G. O. P. in working out an extensive national program of its own.

Sooner or later the G. O. P. will again have to face the issue of evolving positive policies to deal with many current national problems. But its present function should be that of a highly intelligent opposition, as Mr. Landon notes. Its strength lies in closing its ranks and co-operating with independent Democrats to thwart any further encroachment upon the American constitutional system. Any plans or speeches which tend to hamper that undertaking are poor in strategy and poor as tactics.

Throughout the fight over the Supreme Court Mr. Landon and most other Republican leaders remained silent because they did not want to weaken the courageous opposition within the Democratic Party. That was intelligent strategy. In fact, it proved so effective that it should not be lightly abandoned. With the Congressional campaigns approaching, the G. O. P. cannot and should not remain inactive. But Republicans would find it to their own advantage, as well as to the advantage of the country, to subordinate all partisan issues to a united front movement for the preservation of constitutional government.

Speaking For D. C.

The importance of the role played by Washington's citizen associations cannot be too frequently emphasized. In the absence of any local government chosen by the people these organized groups serve as a semiofficial mouthpiece for District residents. Their efforts are not always effective, yet their usefulness in the expression of community opinion is above question.

No doubt many citizens become discouraged at the slow progress which is being made toward the attainment of Washington's many civic objectives. But there seems to be little justification for the pessimistic attitude taken by Mr. J. G. Yaden in refusing to serve further as a delegate from the Petworth Citizens Association to the Federation of Citizens Associations. Mr. Yaden is said to have criticized the federation for following a "do nothing" policy and to have complained that the citizenry of Washington has no truly representative voice in dealing with Congress.

Everyone must admit that our present civic organizations inadequately express the views of local citizens. That deficiency calls for the services of more and not fewer energetic citizens. If any delegate to the federation feels that his views are not in accord with the citizens he represents, he does well to step aside. But this is no time for any relinquishment of activity on the part of the District's organized citizenry. With problems of increasing gravity pressing upon the District, there is need for thoughtful as well as aggressive action on the part of local associations. Only in that way can the influence of the federation be strengthened.

War's Aftermath.

Announcement that a 10 per cent tax is to be imposed upon the capital stock of all Italian corporations reveals the desperate financial straits to which the government has been reduced by its Ethiopian adventure and Spanish campaign. Capital levies were once regarded as communistic devices for expropriating the rich for the benefit of the masses. But in the case of Italy they are simply a means of obtaining needed revenue when other sources of income cease to be adequate.

Of course, it is easier for an authoritarian state to impose confiscatory levies of this kind than it would be for one in which the people had a voice in government. Otherwise this new capital levy appears to be politically or socially significant only as a warning against waging costly wars.

As a matter of fact, a compulsory loan was floated a year ago to which all real estate owners were forced to subscribe in amounts equal to 5 per cent of the assessed value of their properties. Such loans assume many of the characteristics of outright capital levies, offering no compensation to the taxpayer. Forced investment of corporate profits in government securities, after limited dividends have been paid, is another extraordinary method of obtaining funds which Italy abolished last year, substituting for it sharply graduated taxes on stock dividends. The new capital levy will be partly offset, it is stated, by liberalizing these dividend taxes and permitting corporate capital to be revalued in terms of the devalued lira.

The proceeds of the new levy will be used for "imperial development" and armaments, as well as to cover anticipated deficits in the ordinary budget for the two fiscal years during which it will be collected. In other words, the state is taking property for current use that will add nothing to the real wealth of the nation but will be employed in manufacturing implements of destruction. Furthermore, it should be noted that the deficits which the capital levy is designed to cover relate only to the so-called ordinary budget. The state of the extraordinary budget is shrouded in obscurity that makes it impossible to learn the true state of Italian finances.

Resort to capital levies simply means that the Italian people have been exploited beyond the limit of their taxable capacity. The next step is for the state to acquire part of their property. The masses of the people are already bowed under the weight of multiple taxes imposed upon incomes that, according to American standards, are incredibly low. They are subject to innumerable state, provincial and municipal taxes upon sales of articles of general consumption, and a wide variety of taxes on manufacturing processes. The conquest of Ethiopia and the invasion of Spain have cost a vast sum for a country as poor as Italy.

Furthermore, the problem of financing wars is made extraordinarily difficult for Italy because she is cut off from outside capital sources. Her position has improved insofar as ability to purchase needed imports is concerned because of a heavy inflow of funds through tourist spending. Exports too have expanded, since the lifting of sanctions, although still far below the levels of 1929. But after all the chief resource of the Fascist state, in its battle to overcome the handicaps of national poverty, lies in its power to command obedience. If that power were to fail Italy would indeed be a bankrupt state.

Tip-Off On Cubism.

Like many another, we may not know much about art but at least we know what we like. We like, for instance, "The Night Watch," El Greco's "Toledo" and most of the pre-war French. And there's a little canvas of "Lost Dogs" that we always go to see in the Corcoran. But when it comes to modern art, we're confused; we don't even know what we dislike. So when the Carnegie Institute gave its first prize this year to a cubist abstraction, we kept mum. Greenish tables loaded with malformed apples, wisps of ectoplasm and an olive jar are beyond us. We waited for the critics to speak.

On Sunday Miss Skidelsky, our art editor, sent in her report on the Pittsburgh show. She says Georges Braque, the winner, represents a cubism that is dead. She finds his painting quite unstartling—"a perfect rhythm of patter and harmony of colors." This is natural, she continues, for Braque's technique is "the most logical, the most reasonable" within the cubist school. She says there is a better sample of his work at the Phillips. We must make a point of seeing it. We should be able to make some small sense out of "the most reasonable" cubist's art.

In the meantime, we cling to a remark dropped by the director of the Carnegie Institute. In referring to the Braque prize-winner, he said it would be "excellent over a modern cocktail bar." Whether he meant it so or not, this seems to be a good tip-off on the painting. We may not know much about modern art, but we are certain of our judgment of modern cocktail bars. We don't like their pink drinks. We don't like their slick waiters. We don't like their aluminum chairs and tables. And we're almost positive that we wouldn't like any art that goes with them.

A streamlined car driven by a guy with a streamlined forehead is a dangerous combination.

History Repeats.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

About 5 years ago the following piece appeared in the New Statesman and Nation (London). It was written by MacFlecknoe and is titled "Comfort From China." We don't have to wait around long these days for history to repeat itself!

How comforting for the Chinese
In their unlucky situation,
While bombs and shells from air and seas
Spread round them death and desolation,
To have it made extremely plain
That by no act of war they're slain;
'Tis simply that the Japs maintain

How comforting for "Member States"
(All deeply pledged to end aggression)
To read each cable that relates
Fresh tales of slaughter and oppression,
And know that there has been, in fact,
No breach of Covenant or Pact,
Such as might call on them to act
And reconcile their practice and profession!

How comforting for us to know
That if, to end our toils and pleasures,
A rain of bombs should some day blow
To bits ourselves and household treasures,
It would not be for lack of law,
But that (as at Shanghai we saw)
The line is sometimes hard to draw

New York's Ratification.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

President Roosevelt recently asserted, according to the newspapers, that New York's conditional ratification of the present Constitution was because the Constitution did not have in it a bill of rights along the lines of that later incorporated into and made part of the Constitution. One may draw from this the implication that as soon as the bill of rights was incorporated into the Constitution the conditional ratification was no longer conditional but became absolute.

Neither the study of the debates in the New York convention, the conditional ratification of the State nor the study of the Federal bill of rights later ratified by the State and incorporated into the Federal Constitution, supports the view of the President that New York's conditional ratification was because the Federal Constitution lacked a bill of rights. The conditional ratification was aimed at the entire grant of "powers of Government" as set forth in the draft of the Constitution before the delegates. The ratification was sweeping in its scope. It reads, in part, as follows:

That the powers of Government may be reassumed by the people whensoever it shall become necessary to their happiness; that every power, jurisdiction and right, which is not by the said Constitution clearly delegated to the Congress of the United States, or the departments of the Government thereof, remains to the people of the several States, or to their respective State governments.

Again, if the President interprets the recent election as a "reassuming" of powers delegated to the Federal Government, he is wrong. For the delegates had in mind the formal withdrawal by States of powers delegated to the Federal Government, as in secession, and not an effort by the President to distort, abuse and twist out of all reason the powers granted to the Federal Government. It was just this abuse of Federal power that the ratification by New York had in mind when it ratified conditionally. Its ratification gives no support to attempts to abuse the fundamental law of the land, to wit, the United States Constitution. The Roosevelt methods remain illegal.

The Stock Market Crisis.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

No one can dispute after the recent stock crash and business reaction that a serious financial crisis exists. If we are not to sink headlong into a new depression the situation demands action now—not speeches. We should not wait for Congress to assemble. Messrs. Morgenthau, Ickes, Wallace, Hopkins et al. are helpless and hopeless. Their only remedy is to spend more money. And we have no more to spend.

The writer had the good fortune to serve as counsel in the Reconstruction Finance Corporation from December, 1933, until April, 1936, when he resigned owing to dissatisfaction with Administration policies. This feeling is now shared by thousands of sincere Democrats.

The country has lost confidence in the judgment and wisdom of the President, particularly because of the caliber of most of the advisers he keeps closest to him. Most of the ablest have faded quietly from the scene and openly oppose the Administration.

But there is country-wide respect for the integrity, judgment and outstanding financial ability of my former chief, Jesse H. Jones, and I believe he still retains Mr. Roosevelt's confidence.

Unless the Administration intends to allow the country to be engulfed by a new depression—which it can hardly survive—why not appoint Jesse H. Jones to be Secretary of the Treasury and financial czar with broad powers, designating Joseph P. Kennedy to be his chief assistant? The effect on the morale of businessmen, farmers and laborers would be immediate and astounding. Mr. Jones has never failed in any task to which he has applied his efforts. He could and would—if unhampered—balance the budget within a reasonable time, regardless of the wails of politicians, and save our people from a generation of despair.

All good citizens irrespective of class or party lines would rally to his support. The Arkansas primary is undoubtedly the handwriting on the wall and shows what will happen to this Administration and the party in 1938 and 1940 if the counsel of sane, conservative Democrats is rejected.

W. CAMPBELL ARMSTRONG.
Washington, Oct. 19.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

In the last two months, and particularly in the last few days since President Roosevelt again fireside chatted over the radio and called an extra session of Congress not to repeal or modify present confidence-disturbing laws but to enact new ones, the stock and bond markets have lost more than had been gained in the several years since the Supreme Court strangled the Blue Eagle and laid low the Triple A. Many leading stocks are now worth only half or less what they were several months ago; also tragic declines have occurred in cotton and wheat.

The New Deal has brought us to a feast something like that of Belshazzar, when an ominous handwriting on the wall suddenly caused fear.

The Democratic Party might well take warning from what happened in 1920 when it was retired from eight years of power, by the landslide of Harding and Coolidge, their winning slogan being "Not heroics, but healing; not revolution, but restoration; not nostrums, but normalcy; not surgery, but serenity."

Father Coughlin.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

As a constant reader and zealous admirer of the policies of The Washington Post, especially its editorial department, I am prompted to take issue with the editorial of October 11 regarding the exit of Father Coughlin from the radio.

You say that Father Coughlin's views were attributed to be the views of the Catholic Church. Nothing could be further from the real situation. For we members of the Catholic Church realize that while Father Coughlin is an ordained priest and due all the respect that goes with that high calling, he is nevertheless a human creation and entitled to express his views on any and all matters pertaining to Government and to criticize the acts of those in charge.

And this privilege he has exercised without fear or favor. In fact, some of the most prominent Catholics have been subject to his severe criticism. I, like hundreds of other members of the Catholic Church who have followed the discourses of Father Coughlin, have not agreed with many of his policies. But at the same time no one, who has studied the teachings of the church interprets his doctrine (outside of his ecclesiastical duties) as being the doctrines of the Catholic Church.

You infer that the tongue lashing administered to the President in a recent interview with Father Coughlin prompted the criticism of the Rt. Rev. Bishop of Detroit. May I ask if the tongue lashing administered by Father Coughlin to the President was nearly so strong as the President has seen fit to hand to many prominent and leading statesmen who in their honest conviction have seen fit to disagree with him.

I repeat that with many of Father Coughlin's "isms" I do not agree. But everyone must acknowledge he is fearless in his opinions. He is, in my opinion, a true champion of religious and political freedom—a champion of real democracy. And with all due respect to the Rt. Rev. Archbishop Mooney, I, like thousands of others (Catholics and non-Catholics), trust that the breach may be healed and Father Coughlin, again in the very near future, be with us on the radio.

Detestable Tipping.

A Spokane hotel man, more or less appropriately named Victor Dessert, told a group social security officials that "Tipping is the most detestable, contemptible and embarrassing practice in the world." When Mr. Dessert said that he certainly voiced the sentiment of a vast majority of his fellow Americans and of many of his fellow hotel keepers.

If tipping can't be put out of business, many of us would prefer the system that prevails in many places on the continent in Europe of just adding 10 per cent to the bill and being done with it. Aside from the cost in money, which is an item for many people for one reason or another, there is the nuisance or inconvenience of it all.

Some hotels have taken this tipping bull by the horns; many others would like to, and some use it deliberately and make as lucrative a racket of it as circumstances permit. In any case, more often than otherwise the patron tips, tips and tips until he feels about the hotel as they used to say of a certain make of inexpensive automobile, namely, that it is "two-bitting" him to death.

It would be wonderful if this embarrassing business could be done to death, even if the hotels had to raise their rates a bit and include, plainly marked on the bill, a charge for service. That would equalize matters and give "timid souls" a break, for the Caspar Milquetoasts of the world pay most of the tips, as matters go.

Vermont Autumn.

AUTUMN in Washington is different from the autumns I used to know. The air is soft here—gentle, almost feminine. There is not the foreboding in the wind that there was in northern New England. For fall in the north country meant more than the end of summer. It meant the beginning of the time for snow and below-zero temperatures and the cold menace of hardship—a hardship that, of course, never materialized.

Fall was a fine season, just the same. The corn-roasting time began just as the leaves started to turn. If you were very young, you might drive out with your family to a hilltop or a pine grove or a lakeside. You'd gather long, slender sticks and sharpen them, being careful not to let your face betray the pride you felt in your prowess. This was real man's work.

With dry pine cones for tinder, you'd start a blaze. Then, with the feeling you were later to hear described as "He'd played good squash and felt himself a man," you'd sit down, snug in your sweater against the wind that was not too cold for comfort but had in it a warning of things to come.

Corn roasted in the open had a wild, smoky tang to it that made you remember it wasn't so long ago that painted, brown bodies bent over campfires in this very section, maybe on this very spot. Corn was the food of the Indians, wasn't it? You might, if you were lucky, even have some of the red and purple colored ears that you knew as "Indian corn." These always tasted better, somehow.

Sometimes I think that old men do not live so much in the past as do children who like to read. For you have a vast disregard for contemporary events when you are young. You are not concerned with obtaining food or shelter. You have no personal interest in the fluctuations of the market or in the sway of political power. Those subjects lack the colorful violence that the mind of a child can understand. So it is the past that is packed with drama and excitement.

You knew that not so long ago the Indians had used the nearby river as a path to war. You knew how the war canoes looked when the braves drove them downstream on pitiless errands of murder and destruction. You shivered a little and looked at the rising moon to see whether there was blood on it, as accounts said there had been on the eve of the sack of Deerfield.

You forgot your dreams when the corn on your stick had crackled to a richer, deeper color. Most of the family put butter and salt on theirs but you ate your corn the way it came off the stick, saying that the pine smoke had flavored it enough.

When everyone had eaten his fill of corn it was time for the marshmallows, high-spot of the evening for your sisters. The marshmallows were impaled on the same sticks and it was fun to see their unhealthy pallor turn to a rich, golden brown over the dying embers. You ate them slowly, enjoying the way the crisp outer skin broke to reveal the sticky, semi-liquid sweetness inside.

* * *

School started about this time of year and you spent most of your time looking dreamily out the window, watching the leaves spin down from the maples, the oaks and the elms. The maple leaves were always the brightest—gaudy red and gold—and you hated to see them die.

Later on, after school and on Saturdays, you and your friends would rake them into deep, crackling piles. They made a comfortable bed to land on after breathtaking aerial somersaults.

Little bonfires of leaves dotted all the streets and the smoke from their burning mingled fittingly with the crisp air.

When the first frosts came, small boys would try to outdo each other gathering horse chestnuts. The girls made necklaces of these, but the boys pierced the finest specimens and tied them to the end of a long string. Whirled about the head a few times, they could be hurled for incredible distances.

The best fun with horse chestnuts, though, was gathering them in the early morning as they lay shining on the ground in the white frost with the green, spiked burrs about them. There was the thrill of enterprise and of discovery in that.

* * *

I thought of these things the last time I was in Vermont in the fall. I drove alone along a country road through dark, gloomy places and through patches gladdened with sunlight. I came to a hilltop and I got out and looked up the red and yellow valley, knifed into wavering halves by a blue blade of a river. The sun splashed down over the opposite mountains, mellowing old rooftops and brightening red barns. The scene was timeless. Except for my car, I thought, everything here could have been here 100 years ago or 200.

A farmer plodded down the road and spoke to me.

"Yeah," he said. "Nice enough place to be. I tell you, some days you come here and you can see that sun a-settin' over there red as blood."

He spat and went on. But I know that this farmer thought the same things I thought and that he felt the same sense of timelessness. And I knew, too, that he, no more than I, would be able to express the feeling that the red and yellow hills give you when the sun is setting and the wind blows up with the menace of winter.

Another Undeclared War.

AS THE peacemakers of the Nine Powers converge on Brussels to strive for a happy solution of the problems of a troubled world, solemn news comes from Pawtucket, R. I., where another undeclared war is raging in awful fury. It is the war of the Wild Irish Roses, in which the Governor, Mr. Robert Quinn, has mobilized the National Guard to punish Mr. Walter O'Hara, the proprietor of the Narragansett horse park, for the crime of lese majeste.

Mr. O'Hara, through his own newspaper, supposedly called the Governor a name some time ago, and one swear word led to another until now the armed forces of the State are on active duty in the field and a pathetic mass of inoffensive non-combatant touts, trainers, swipes, monkeys, gin-neys, mutuel clerks, sweepers and horse players are caught between the lines.

The great, free American press, handmaiden of our liberties, also seems to have caught her jabot in the wringer, for she is yelling bloody murder at this writing. The Governor's army has ejected from the zone of combat a journalist representing Mr. O'Hara's paper and the editors are raising the dread cry of "censorship."

• • • •

In this situation, the war correspondents of the Eastern seaboard are kissing their families farewell and preparing to leave for the front, and who knows but that the war of the Wild Irish Roses will develop its own Webb Millers and Floyd Gibbonses, for it has all the symptoms of a terrible mess.

The problem of field equipment has been worrying some of the journalists, however, and when your correspondent wired the war correspondent of the Daily Walking Horse at the front he was told to bring his own dice, a rabbit's foot and plenty of fresh money.

Your correspondent talked with Gov. Quinn by phone and received word that that other Wild Irish Rose, Mr. O'Hara, had attempted to set at naught the laws of the fair State of Rhode Island and would be restrained by the full might of the unconquerable warriors of his First Rhode Island Regiment of Foot.

Mr. Eugene Moriarty, another Wild Irish Rose, who is manager of Mr. O'Hara's fearless journal, declared there was much more to the situation than meets the naked eye, and Mr. Mulligan, the city editor of the Pawtucket Times, which is neutral in the conflict, said there was even more to the situation than meets the nose, although the nose grasps a pretty fair idea.

• • • •

Mr. Mulligan, an Irish Rose, if you will, is not wild yet, but neutrality undoubtedly is a great emotional strain on a Mulligan in a non-private conflict involving the Quinns, the O'Haras and the Moriartys and a Kenneally, which is the name of the journalist who was rushed out of the war zone by a detachment of Gov. Quinn's invincible legions.

Gov. Quinn has been contending all along that Mr. O'Hara's horse park has attracted to Rhode Island undesirable characters of extreme unscrupulosity who were not above the acts of dishonesty. This is indeed a grave charge, never having been heard of before in connection with horse running, which, as everyone knows, is the Sport of Kings, patronized by the very best people.

It would be an astonishing thing and a great shock to the Nation if it were true that Mr. O'Hara's horse park had drawn persons capable of telling falsehoods or fumbling up the odds or using an electric gimmick on man's best friend, the steed. All right-minded citizens will hope and pray that the Wild Irish Rose of the Statehouse is mistaken in his foul aspersions.

Just one happy fact remains. It will have to be a small war, because if more than ten Wild Irish get to fighting at one time in the limited area of Rhode Island they are certain to slop over into Connecticut or Massachusetts to find room in which to take their swings.

Then they will be arrested and interned until the end of the war of the Wild Irish Roses.

The Once Over

Mutiny at Narragansett.

The talk of the racing world is still the "8-furlong insurrection at Narragansett Park for governors, race-track owners and politicians, 3-year-olds and up, non-winners at this meeting."

• • • •

Narragansett now ranks with the Boston Tea Party and Harpers Ferry. And Walter O'Hara suddenly finds himself in history with John Brown, Jeff Davis and Pancho Villa.

• • • •

Mr. O'Hara, usually quite calm in a crisis, is pretty disturbed about being classified as an insurrectionist, and insists that if he is he is "a maiden."

• • • •

With Narragansett all set to open its fall meeting, Gov. Quinn issued a proclamation declaring the whole thing a mutiny and calling out the State troops to patrol the bund, the "irrational settlement" and the provinces of Whatcha-know, Kinee-Win and Ya-Hear-Anything.

• • • •

Just when Frank Stevens had made a bid for the wound stripe concession and put in a big stock of cootie powders, Generalissimo O'Hara announced a suspension of hostilities.

• • • •

He felt that while the racing fan is a tough bird he would resent studying a racing chart with a bayonet prodding his torso, and revolt at having to storm two or three trenches to cash a $2 ticket.

• • • •

But that's where O'Hara is wrong. Racing has been so dull and routine this fall that this was the chance of a lifetime for an operator to combine racing with insurrections and give the fans a little excitement.

• • • •

The State troops might have caused a little trouble during the first two races, but by the time the third race came around they would have been rushing to the mutuel windows to get a bet on a good thing.

• • • •

It was a major business error for O'Hara to abandon the insurrection.

• • • •

He could have sold it to almost any other race track in the country.

Broadening His Base of Operations.

Investors' hopes have declined to such an extent that one broker got a call from a man today who wanted to know if he could recommend some stock that could not go down more than 30 more points.

Add similies: as dejected as a Saturday afternoon radio fan who doesn't care what happens on any football field in the country.

Elmer Twitchell has just discovered what's wrong with his golf. In addressing his ball for his drive off the tee he stands too close to his second shot.

We were hoping they would attempt at least one race at Narragansett on the scheduled opening day so the chart writers could say of a bangtail "was closing fast through stretch when impeded by the State militia."

Well, nobody can say the Democrats aren't seeing that the stock market gets the breaks.

By Jacques Kayser.

Special Correspondence of The Post.

Paris.

SEPTEMBER in France was marked by two disturbing developments. In the first place it saw a recruedescence of foreign agitation alarming both to the government and to the people. And the month also saw the coming to a head of a new franc crisis.

For a long time France has grappled with the problem of strangers within its borders. With a low birth rate and a long tradition of hospitality to victims of oppression, France has not hesitated to give refuge to many thousands who have sought a haven here. At the present time there are no fewer than 3,000,000 foreigners within France's gates, of whom 800,000 are of Italian and 500,000 of Polish origin.

Alien Workers Flocked To France Following War.

EVER SINCE the end of the war many alien workers have come to France in search of a means of livelihood. Frequently they have been forced into unskilled labor. In the departments of the north, there are many Poles working in the coal mines or replacing on the land those Frenchmen who more and more have deserted the countryside for the cities.

In the southwest, on the banks of the Garonne, between Bordeaux and Toulouse, there are to be found veritable colonies of Italians who have maintained practically unchanged their habits and their organizations. Despite the facilities held out to them to take out French citizenship papers, they have, for the most part, retained their Italian nationality. One of the largest French newspapers, the Depeche de Toulouse, sets aside each day several columns for articles published in the Italian language.

There are also many Italians on the Riviera and in the French Alpine region along the Italian frontier.

In French Flanders, since long before the World War, large numbers of Belgians are to be found. As for the Spaniards, they were always numerous on the French side of the Pyrennes and particularly in Roussillon, on the other side of Catalonia.

This, in brief, is the geographical spread of foreigners in France. Now a word regarding the problems presented by the individual colonies of immigrants. The Belgians have never created any difficulty. Neither have the Czechoslovaks nor the Poles, although individuals of the latter nationality have sometimes run afoul of French justice.

The problem of the Italians and since the civil war in Spain, of the Spaniards, has been largely political. It resembles in certain particulars the difficulties which have arisen in France out of the presence here of a large number of refugees from Nazi Germany and of smaller but still sizable groups who have fled Italy, Poland, Hungary, Yugoslavia and other lands where repression is the order of the day. Nor can one omit, in this connection, the White Russians who have been organized politically in France since 1918, even before the end of the World War.

Spaniards From Both Sides Found In France.

TO THE SPANIARDS long settled in southern France, there has been added during the past year a very large number of refugees fleeing before Franco's forces. There are also a number of refugees from the insurgent side. The Spanish republicans are for the most part located near the Mediterranean coast; the insurgents near the Atlantic. Perpignan and Cerbere are the centers of the former; Biarritz and St. Jean de Luz of the latter.

The Italian colonies in France have more and more come under the clandestine control of Fascist organizations, and throughout the nation many Italian and German secret agents visit these foreign colonies where propagandist and organizational activities are possible.

For some time public opinion in France has been stirred up by the storms of the passions and the occasional acts of violence that have occurred between foreigners of differing political points of view though of the same nationality.

At the beginning of last summer, the assassination in Normandy of the Rosselli brothers, leaders of the anti-Fascist Italian groups in France, provoked intense indignation. Since then, despite the vigilance of the police, the outbreaks have increased. Among other disturbing developments were the agitation of the pro-Franco Spaniards in the region adjacent to Spain; the bomb outrages against the headquarters of two loyalist Spanish organizations in Paris; the bold attempt to seize the Spanish government submarine at Brest following the firing of the airplane hangars at Toussus-le-Noble where, it was believed, were being kept non-French airplane parts intended for Republican Spain; and, finally, the mysterious kidnaping of the White Russian leader, Gen. Miller.

The average Frenchman, be he of the Left or the Right, knows full well where the responsibility for these intolerable actions lies. It has already been proved, as a result of a judicial investigation into the Brest and Toussus-le-Noble affairs, that the culprits were Fascists.

As for the terrorist efforts against the Spanish loyalist headquarters and the kidnaping of Gen. Miller, the average Frenchman simply asks who the beneficiaries of such crimes are likely to be and draws the unavoidable conclusions as to who is responsible. Under the circumstances, the overwhelming majority of Frenchmen are convinced that the same sinister forces were at work in Paris as in Brest against the Russian general as against the pro-loyalist Frenchmen. The critical spirit is much too developed among us to permit us to see in these actions anything other than Fascist provocations.

Chamber May Regulate Activities Of Strangers.

BECAUSE all our parties are solidly behind the maintenance of law and order and of national defense, there is every reason to believe once the Chamber has reconvened a drastic law regulating the stay of strangers in France will be put on the statute books.

When this problem has been successfully dealt with one of the principal factors unfavorable to the financial situation will have disappeared. The exchange crisis has not been exclusively the product of actions of speculators. It also reflects, in part, the opinion which is held outside of France's borders regarding the actual state of France. But this opinion is based on superficialities rather than realities. To those who, for instance, doubt the military force of France, it is possible to reply that the recent military maneuvers in Normandy left a strong impression on all, including foreigners invited to observe them, of French solidarity. To this fact Mr. Leslie Hore-Belisha, the British war minitser, paid a striking tribute.

As for the industrial crisis, it is now possible to say that the investigation into production decided on by the government is nearing its close, and that it is now fairly clear that the 40-hour law will be subjected in its application if not in principle to important modifications which should improve the general economic situation in France.

To those who, citing voluminous statistics, lament over the financial situation, the reply can be made that the budget is approaching a real balance. Nonetheless, the decline of the franc is a disquieting symptom. Georges Bonnet, the finance minister, is determined to fight for the defense of the franc when it reaches a level deemed in line with its real value. None knows better than he the cumulative dangers of currency instability and none more than he is likely to approve the remark of Edouard Herriot, president of the Chamber of Deputies, who, after a trip to Central Europe, said: "The franc crisis is prejudicial not only to France but to peace as well."

London Fiasco

By Barnet Nover

Nonintervention Merry-Go-Round.

JUST WHEN the London nonintervention committee appeared to be breathing its last, Italy rushed in and administered the dying a whiff of oxygen. This is being hailed in Rome as a generous gesture. But it was clearly intended to do the doctor more good than the patient.

Mussolini's game is a transparent one. He is determined to bring about an insurgent victory in Spain. For that very reason he does not want to strain Britain's and France's patience to the breaking point. However, he has discovered, by repeated testing, just how far he can go before that dangerous moment is reached.

Certainly no good end would be served if the London and Paris governments are prodded into such rage that, throwing over all the hesitation they have hitherto displayed, they scrap the nonintervention agreement and open the French border to men and arms for the loyalists. After all, they have threatened to do just that. And while they are clearly reluctant to carry out that threat there is such a thing as banking too much on their timidity. It is very much better to play along with them at least to the extent of giving them a pretext for continued inaction.

REDUCED TO the actualities of the moment this means keeping the nonintervention agreement alive by hook or by crook without permitting nonintervention to become a reality. And the chance of Great Britain and France acquiescing in such a procedure are, if past developments are any indication, quite good indeed.

For three months the powers represented on the London committee have been bickering over the question of the withdrawal of all foreign combatants now fighting in Spain. Not the slightest measure of progress has been made. Last summer's debates at London indicated quite conclusively that no agreement was possible.

• • • •

After a while, even the London and Paris governments became convinced of that fact. That is why they sought by direct negotiations at Rome to persuade Italy to call back its legions in Spain. But when Mussolini balked and demanded that the problem of withdrawal be turned back to the London committee they meekly consented.

• • • •

THE LATEST sessions of the London committee, however, only revealed the same hopelessness of breaking the deadlock. And yesterday the situation had become so dark that there seemed to be no way of keeping the committee going any longer or preventing the nonintervention agreement from going completely to smash.

From the British and French points of view a good deal could be said for permitting that agreement to be scrapped. But they fear the consequences particularly since, during recent weeks, they have so frequently hinted at the strong action that they would be forced to take once they had regained their "complete freedom of action."

How completely they are the victims of such fears was revealed not only in the way they backed down after Mussolini's refusal of their three-power plan but even more strikingly in the kind of a withdrawal scheme advanced at the London meeting of last Saturday. For this plan represented a very considerable watering-down of the British plan of last July which, for its part, went part of the way in meeting Italian demands for the recognition of the insurgents as belligerents.

Even though Italy formally disapproved of the French plan of a "token" withdrawal of volunteers provided the number withdrawn was proportionate to the number of foreigners now present in the insurgent and loyalist armies, it could not help but realize that this plan did indicate an almost desperate anxiety on the part of Great Britain and France to avoid going to extremes.

NO LONGER was there the demand, as made by the British in July, that all or a major part of the foreign volunteers be withdrawn before belligerency rights be given to both sides. This time the two democratic powers made only a "token" withdrawal the prerequisite to the extension of such rights to the insurgents who, with Italian and German aid, could use them to cut off the loyalists from the outside world as well as to Valencia which would be aided not at all by such action.

When this plan fell through, partly because it was deemed insufficient by Germany, Italy and Portugal and overgenerous to the insurgents by Russia, the end approached for the London committee. Even Great Britain and France were unwilling to let the farce continue. There is such a thing as permitting oneself to become too ridiculous.

At this particular moment Mussolini intervened by advancing a plausible but essentially sinister proposal. He now urges the dispatch to Spain of an independent commission to supervise the withdrawal of volunteers.

Were Great Britain and France really determined to cut the Spanish knot it is certain they would summarily reject this plan. For it interposes a new element of delay in achieving real nonintervention in Spain. And it enables Italy to continue to use the nonintervention agreement as a screen behind which large-scale efforts on behalf of Franco can safely be undertaken.

After all, the way to withdraw is to withdraw. The Italian troops now in Spain, whether 40,000 as Rome insists, or 80,000 to 100,000 as others believe, were sent there by the Fascist government. The same government can order their withdrawal. Already Valencia has unequivocally declared its willingness to permit the withdrawal of its numerically insignificant number of foreigners fighting on its side. That Italy does not chose to do so means she does not want to.

But it is by no means certain Great Britain and France will reject the latest Italian plan. They have shown themselves prepared to be easily satisfied. They do not really want the nonintervention agreement to collapse. They do not want to carry out their threat of opening the French frontier. So, for a while longer, they may go along with Mussolini.

Horse And Buggy

By William Lyon Phelps

Americana.

Mr. Edwin Valentine Mitchell, of Hartford, Conn., has written an extremely entertaining book called "The Horse and Buggy Age in New England." Although there is not a dull page, it is so filled with learning and information that I would accept it as a thesis for the doctor's degree.

• • • •

While I am especially interested because of so many memories awakened in me, I believe that the book will have a general appeal. It is a contribution to American history. (Publishers, Farrar and Rinehart, N. Y.)

For my part, the chapter on the Fire Engine Horses is as if I were carried back to boyhood. We lived very near Engine House No. 5, on Sigourney street. The driver of the fire engine was Nelson Lyon; the engineer was Mr. Baxter; the driver of the big gray horse that hauled the hose cart was Mike Powers. And how often we went into the station at 9 p. m. to see the horses come from their stalls and take their places!

• • • •

I had forgotten all about the whip industry until I read this book. A whole chapter on whips; and now I remember the men coming from the country into town, hitching their horses, and then walking about the streets, each carrying his long horsewhip.

In this book the past is really recaptured; the conventional coachman, very rarely accompanied by the footman; the sleigh and "cutter," the "depot hack," and the enormous artificial horse in front of the harness shop, as extinct today as the cigar store Indian.

Tom McCarthy

"Armchair" In The Sky.

HE'S GOT an "armchair" in the sky. It gives him a perspective all his own. And frankly, I rather envy him. He has an arrangement which makes the magic carpet look amateurish.

TOM McCARTHY.

Arabian Nights' tales! He's got them beat 40 ways. When he wants to check up on how the carpenter is fixing that second-story window, he just hies home, and shouts directions from his "armchair," suspended above the roof.

He likes baseball, so when the season is on he lets his "armchair" swing back and forth over Griffith Stadium. He can watch the game better than anyone in the stands. Idling in the air above the infield he cannot only see the ball as it leaves the pitcher's hand, but he can watch it as it flies from the bat. And clearly mark its course.

Best of all though he enjoys football. He looks like a football player, with a frame which stretches up more than 6 feet, and heavy shoulders built for damaging a line. It's not that he plays any more, or that he's played in a good many years. But he still likes to hang his "armchair" over the stadium, and watch the play.

"There are a lot of advantages in watching the game the way I do," he said. "You can see the line open up to let a ball carrier through. Something you rarely see clearly from the stands. It's like watching 22 miniature men playing a game in the palm of your hand."

Yes, there are a lot of advantages in having an "armchair" in the sky. And, personally, I think it has been cursed with an all-too-prosaic name. Officially, it's a blimp.

COMMANDER KARL LANGE, who daily sails the silvered Goodyear blimp over Washington, has been with the ship since its first appearance on the local scene. However, three years of flying over the same city and countryside haven't taken away his enthusiasm.

"What a day to go up," he told me. "This is the best time of year to take a look at the city. Wait till you get a look at Rock Creek Park. Colors! Boy you're going to see something!"

In the first place Washington appears more beautiful than even the architects' drawings. Which is saying a lot. Because it's hard to beat those drawings even when you don't like the buildings.

But it's not just the buildings nor the surging waves of red and yellow in Rock Creek Park, nor the silvery emboss of the Potomac as it winds up past the spires of Georgetown, that makes a trip with Commander Lange an event. On every trip he sees things which no one else in Washington can see. He's the one man in town who can really claim a bird's-eye view.

"Well, I'm glad to see they finally got that building down," he said. "I've been watching them work on it for three months, and I think they were taking it apart a board at a time. Why, it shouldn't have taken more than a couple of days."

"They're getting under way down there, though," he continued, pointing to the Mall where excavation has begun for the new Mellon Art Gallery.

"Wait a minute and I'll bring you over the Supreme Court Building. What a building! Prettiest roof in Washington."

The Supreme Court Building does have a fine roof of glistening white tile, and when you're cruising over Washington every day in the year, that becomes important. Washington's roofs, strangely enough, are predominantly red. And a glistening roof of white tile comes as a welcome relief.

Commander Lange, flying over the city every day, really has a chance to check up on things. He can tell you what gardeners are working night and day to keep weeds out of the lawn, and which ones are slacking on the job.

HE PROBABLY knows better than the city fathers just which streets need fixing, and which ones are being taken care of in an adequate fashion.

As a matter of fact, some of the District's officials are beginning to realize the advantages of having an "armchair" in the sky, and on many a morning Commissioner Van Duzer has hovered over F street with Commander Lange, trying to figure out just what could be done with the 9 o'clock traffic.

Commander Lange is the most obliging sort of a fellow. You tell him that you'd like to have a better look at the Union Station Plaza, and he noses the blimp earthward so that you're looking almost directly down on it. A request to see something on the starboard side, and blimp edges upward on one side, and you have an unobstructed vision—straight down.

However, his life isn't entirely without its discomforts even though he has an "armchair in the sky." Co-operative as he is, his blimp sometimes calls wrath upon his head. One lady took a ride in it, merely to discover if she were being exactly discreet in taking sunbaths on the roof while the blimp was flying overhead.

For the incident of the Naval Observatory the commander has only a mournful shake of his head. For six months the observatory prepared to make observations of a certain star, which could be seen only an hour or so every year.

The time arrived for the observations and the phones began to jangle in Commander Lange's office. He sped to the Naval Observatory to discover the trouble. He looked through the specially arranged telescope. He wanted to see what the officials were so excited about.

There in the telescope lens he discovered his blimp! It was blissfully circling in the air, directly between the lens and the fugitive star!

Text of Roosevelt Dedicatory Address

Mr. Chairman, Ladies and Gentlemen:

You have come here this afternoon for something more than a mere formality. This structure is worthy to rank among the foremost of the Capital's architectural achievements, and you and I have gathered here to pay tribute to the beauty and dignity of line and form wrought by those who conceived and executed this building.

But we are conscious of a larger meaning in this brief ceremony—of the role that the Federal Reserve plays in the broad purpose which this Government must serve. That purpose is to gain for all of our people the greatest attainable measure of economic well-being, the largest degree of economic security and stability.

To advance the country toward this goal is the real mission of the Federal Reserve System. It cannot be attained by that system alone, but neither can it be reached without the proper functioning of our monetary and credit machinery. That machinery must be steadily perfected and co-ordinated with all other instruments of Government to promote the most productive utilization of our human and material resources. Only in that way can we hope to achieve and maintain an enduring prosperity, free from the disastrous extremes of booms and depressions. Only in that way can our economic system and our democratic institutions endure.

Wilson, Glass Lauded.

Nearly a quarter of a century has passed since the Federal Reserve System was established. Its creation, out of the Nation's banking experience from the beginning of the Republic, was due to the statesmanship of President Wilson, and to the courageous leadership in the Congress, for which the Senior Senator from Virginia, Carter Glass, will always deserve the Nation's gratitude.

It is fitting that President Wilson's portrait in bronze should have the place of honor in the main entrance to this building. And it is appropriate that the words inscribed under it should be taken from his first inaugural address. Let me quote them:

"We shall deal with our economic system as it is and as it may be modified, not as it might be if we had a clean sheet of paper to write upon; and step by step we shall make it what it should be."

Those penetrating words admirably apply to our banking system, which must be constantly alert to changing conditions in order that it may be prepared to adapt itself to the growing and changing needs of our people in their daily life and work.

Vital Role Enacted.

The Federal Reserve System, as it was originally established, was adapted to the prewar world and brought about a great improvement in the money system. Steps were taken in 1917 to adapt it to the urgent necessities of a war-ridden world. In mobilizing the country's gold reserves and in facilitating the Government's vast financing operations, the Reserve System performed a vital role in the winning of the war.

It is clear now, in retrospect, that if further changes to meet postwar conditions had been made in our banking system in the 1920s, it would have been in a far better position to moderate the forces that brought about the great depression. But from the end of the war until we were in the midst of economic collapse a decade later, no changes were made in the banking structure to make it function more effectively in the public interest.

Since that time the Nation has done much to improve its banking system. It must continue step by step to make the banking system what it should be. We must not complacently suppose that we have achieved perfection. We have provided for the insurance of deposits for the benefit of the great mass of small depositors. By the banking and security exchange acts of 1933, 1934 and 1935, the Federal Reserve System was given increased power to improve banking conditions and to aid the Government in combating practices that were evil in their results. Those powers have been concentrated to a greater degree than before in a single public body, so that they can be used promptly and effectively in accordance with the changing needs of the country. 1937 is not 1913, nor do we want to turn the hands of the clock back.

Adaptable to Future.

The Federal Reserve System, tested by nearly a quarter of a century of operation, is a public institution capable of adaptation to future, as it has been to past, needs and conditions. It is a piece of machinery vital to the Nation's steady progress toward the goal of a sounder banking system capable of contributing its full share to lasting economic progress and well-being.

The board of governors, whose building we are dedicating today, was reconstituted by the banking act of 1935. To this public body Congress has entrusted broad powers which enable it to affect the volume and the cost of money, thus exerting a powerful influence upon the expansion and contraction in the flow of money through the channels of agriculture, trade and industry. In this way much can be done toward the maintenance of more stable employment. Much can be done to aid in achieving greater stability of the true value of the dollar.

By their nature these important powers are of public concern and the responsibility for their exercise is properly vested in a public body. Much as they may contribute to the country's progress, monetary powers possess no peculiar magic. They are not omnipotent. To be effective in performing their function, they must be closely co-ordinated with the other major powers and policies of government which influence the country's economic life.

The Federal Reserve System as it exists today is better adapted than ever before to play its part in common with the other instrumentalities of government in the attainment of that increasing well-being for all of our people, which is the fundamental objective of all government.

I dedicate this building to progress toward the ideal of an America in which every worker will be able to provide his family at all times with an ever-rising standard of comfort.

'The Awful Truth' Is That You Will Be Convulsed By Irene Dunne and Cary Grant in This New Smash

Columbia's Latest Screen Comedy Is a Sparkling Gem of High-Power Fun and Gayety; A Bingo Party Benefit at Variety; What Comes of "Sticking Your Neck Out;" Welcome Visitors and Gifts; Notes.

BELL.

ALL those cavernous laughs, that emanated from even deeper down in the torso than the cacophonous echoes of the tenacious cold with which we filled the Warner Brothers projection room, came at precisely the right time to salvage a doleful day.

I mean that this week's pluvian Tuesday, with its ankle-deep deluges and zero ceiling, was no day of sparkle and soaring of the spirit until the hour of 9:30 p. m. It was then, by a special dispensation of the Messrs. Payette, LaFalce, Terrell and others of the Warner high command, that this column was enabled to recapture Saturday's lost opportunity to view Columbia's picturization of "The Awful Truth," prior to its public opening at the Earle tomorrow. Immediately the sprockets began whirring, your rickety reporter began guffawing away the gloom of ten hours or so of splashing around in Washington's diluvian boulevards, clear up to here in rivulets.

"The Awful Truth," to get to the nub of the matter, is one of the most hilariously and continuously amusing screen comedies this filmgazer ever has seen. It is, to be sure, a frivolous and nonsensical fable of marital dilemmas and the gay life, but it is executed with such a fine burst of originality and wit that it flashes like a gem-cut diamond among the welter of pop-bottle farces.

Its most amazing revelation is that Cary Grant is a farceur of deft and versatile style. Heretofore, this corner never has looked upon Mr. Grant as the cinema's outstanding symbol of merriment and mirth, but all that is changed now. The former Archibald Alexander Leach, stilt-walker in obscure English carnival companies, is a comedian of parts.

Irene Dunne, with whom Mr. Grant is costarred, already has revealed her proficiency as a comedienne—"Theodora Goes Wild"—as well as a substantial actress of considerable emotional depth—"Cimarron" and "Back Street"—and a talented and ingratiating vocaliste—"Roberta," "Showboat" and so on. The two team with results that place them at the top among the most gifted of the funmakers.

Then there is another star comedian in the cast by the name of "Mr. Smith." This "Mr. Smith" is that perky little wire-haired terrier whose real name is Asta—the same young fellow that came into prominence as one of the mainstays of "The Thin Man," with William Powell and Myrna Loy. "Mr. Smith" possesses a comic endowment much rarer than his name.

It would be my suggestion to the Warner executives to re-enforce the walls of the Earle for this engagement to withstand the explosions of audience laughter which, otherwise, will bend them out like the sides of a gold-fish bowl, and to the theatergoing public to get in on this one and find out what celluloid fun really can be like at top flight.

No, I didn't like "The Awful Truth." I merely went overboard for it like a ton of bricks—and at a time when I thought laughter was farthest from what I didn't have nothing else but! It's better tonic for both body and soul than you can buy in any bottle. I said "any bottle," not "medicine bottle!"

The admission will be a flat 25 cents per person and the entire proceeds will be contributed to the Benefit Fund for the Undernourished Children of the District. The Mesdames Wheeler and DeTitta promise a handsome door prize and many bingo prizes to the lucky winners. The party will start at 8:30 and is open to all. As if you needed to be told, Mrs. Wheeler is wife of the Washington manager of Twentieth Century-Fox and Mrs. DeTitta of the local Poo-Bah of Fox Movietone News. Both charming ladies, by the bye. But the important thing is buy the tickets.

An infinite capacity for geeting into hot water—as well as rainy Tuesdays—should have been warning enough against writing that recent item on pet annoyances in the theater. Socko! come the answers, pummeling our quivering form into a bruised and bleeding pulp.

"Dear Nelson: I rise to proclaim, if not to protest, that Washington's legitimate theater, at least on the opening performance of Lunt and Fontanne in 'Amphitryon 38,' did raise the curtain at 8:30, as advertised; intends to do so at all remaining evening performances—matinees (no increase in prices) at 2:30; lights are no longer flashed to indicate the intermission is OVER, but chimes are softly intoned to summon patrons to their seats BEFORE the intermission is over; refrigerated water is now available in the inner foyer for orchestra-floor patrons; the harp and bass fiddle are obscured from view by a specially devised orchestra rail for this week's engagement and there is just nothing I can do about the other aversions you speak of except to say, 'I've got them on my list' and am with you as one for forming a Society for the Suppression of Theater Nuisances, for which I hereby nominate you as Organizing Chairman. (Signed) EDDIE PLOHN."

Manager Hardie Meakin, of RKO-Keith's, uses the phone to mitigate this department's befuddlement by stating that patrons are presented with fragments of tickets to guard again fraudulent cash refunds. No tickee, no refund, seems to be the formula—even with admission prices the same all over the house for the given performance. Mr. Meakin

A New Team of Ace Comedy Stars

After they have been seen in Columbia Pictures' film version of "The Awful Truth," Irene Dunne and Cary Grant will be recognized by picturegoers as two of the most adept exponents of light comedy on the screen. Miss Dunne, of course, has proved her mettle before in this sort of thing, but Mr. Grant takes on a new comic luster in this one. "The Awful Truth" opens at the Earle Theater tomorrow.

In Hollywood

With JIMMY FIDLER

Hollywood, Oct. 20.—Settin' Around (Twentieth Century Fox): Darryl Zanuck will get you, if you don't look out! Never before in the history of Hollywood has any producer staged such a concerted drive for new faces as is under way right now in this film factory. Today, in the studio cafe, I saw at least a dozen brand new arrivals, some recruited from the stage, some just recruited. In the studio's training school 37 young hopefuls are learning the secrets of screen make-up and acting while they wait for the final tests which will determine their fate. And an army of Twentieth Century talent scouts is combing the highways and byways for more prospects.

SHIRLEY TEMPLE.

Zanuck has always believed that any producer's best guarantee of success lies in the development of new stars. When he took over the control of this studio, some four years ago, he promptly got rid of most of the well-established, high-salaried stars on its roster and started replacing them with newcomers—people who had not one fan to their names. Everyone thought him crazy, but his insanity has already made profitable commodities of Don Ameche, Sonja Henie, Tyrone Power, Alice Faye, Virginia Field, June Lang, Michael Whalen, Thomas Beck, Gloria Stuart, Joan Davis, the Ritz Brothers and a scad of others.

AND JUST NOW all of the more conservative producers, for self-protection, are starting to bid against Zanuck for the signature of every likely-looking kid who lands in Hollywood. It looks like a big year for ambitious unknows.

Walking across the studio's rehearsal hall, I heard the clacking of tap shoes, stopped to investigate, and found Shirley Temple and Bill Robinson practicing their dance routines for "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm." A strangely changed Shirley, by the way, for the curls are gone and her slicked-back hair is parted and braided into two little pigtails. She looks older, and if anything, cuter. "So they had to call Bill Robinson back from a personal appearance tour to teach you how to dance," I kidded. Shirley drew herself proudly up to her full 3½ feet. "He taught me some of the dances," she admitted—and then her voice bubbled over with triumph. "But I have to teach him the scarecrow dance. He doesn't know that one, and I do!"

On the "Second Honeymoon" set—a huge tank constructed on one of the big sound stages—watched Loretta Young and Tyrone Power playing scenes on the deck of a fishing boat. Where the studio property man got them, I don't know, but the water was alive with fish and the afterdeck of the boat was a scaly, squirming mess. Along the boat's rail, several professional fishermen, hired as extras, were spearing fish and every minute or so a new one fell flopping on the deck.

Comedy Spices Theater Bills For New Week

Charlotte Greenwood Will Vie With Irene Dunne in Laughmaking.

Charlotte Greenwood, probably most elongated and drollest of the theater's comediennes, returns to Washington next week in "Leaning on Letty," a new comedy, opening in the National Theater on Monday night for an engagement of one week. The story of Miss Greenwood's new vehicle, in which she returns to America after several successful seasons in Europe, concerns the proprietress of a tourists' retreat which is taken over by a band of gangsters engaged in the shady business of the "snatch" racket. As Letty, the manager of the establishment, Miss Greenwood has herself a time. The supporting cast is an able one, including Romaine Callender, a former member of the National Theater Players. Miss Greenwood supplements her performance with an added interval of her inimitable songs and dances. There will be the usual matinees on Wednesday and Saturday.

Ronald Colman will be the pictured star of the bill announced for the week beginning today at Loew's Palace Theater, in David O. Selznick's magnificent new picturization of Anthony Hope's romantic melodrama of "The Prisoner of Zenda." Something of the sumptuousness of this production already has been set forth in these columns. The supporting cast is a notable one, headed by Madeleine Carroll, C. Aubrey Smith, Douglas Fairbanks, jr., David Niven, Mary Astor and Raymond Massey. An added feature of the bill will be Pete Smith's short-reel analysis of "The Romance of Radium," a subject of unique content which took a year to produce.

Irene Dunne and Cary Grant make their joint bow as one of the screen's most delightful comedy duos in "The Awful Truth," a picturization of Ina Claire's former stage success, at the Earle Theater for the week beginning tomorrow. They are assisted in this riot of fun by a splendid comedy cast, led by Ralph Bellamy, Cecil Cunningham, Alexander D'Arcy, Molly Lamont, Ester Dale, Joyce Compton, Robert Warwick and Mary Forbes. The story is a hilarious recital of a young couple's domestic dilemmas, told in brilliantly comic fashion. On the stage, the vaudeville bill will be headlined by Helene Denizon, singer, augmented by Niele Goodelle, the 12 American Rockets and other acts.

"Fight for Your Lady" is the title of the new screen attraction to be presented at RKO-Keith's Theater for the week beginning tomorrow. The principal roles are played by John Boles, Jack Oakie, Ida Lupino, Margot Grahame, Erik Rhodes and Billy Gilbert. The story concerns the duelling of a famous opera star whose life is slightly complicated by the "vamp of Budapest," who has "given him the business." In this subject John Boles sings for the first time in several picture assignments—and it was his voice that first won him stellar attention on the screen. The bill willl be amplified by the usual short subjects and a new Pathe News.

The Capitol Theater announces as its chief screen feature for the new week, beginning tomorrow, "Lancer Spy," a story of international espionage during the Great War, in which the foremost roles are interpreted by George Sanders, Dolores Del Rio, Lionel Atwill, Peter Lorre and Joseph Schildkraut. This Twentieth Century-Fox production was directed by Gregory Ratoff and is executed on an impressive scale. The stage portion of the new bill will be headlined by the Will Hudson-Eddie DeLang Orchestra, making its first Washington stage appearance. Other acts on the program include "Senator" Murphy, humorous monologist; the Keller Sisters, harmonists, and Arsene Gautier's "Steeplechase."

"The March of Time" again will assume leadership of the bill of short subjects at the Trans-Lux Theater for the week beginning tomorrow. Other featured "shorts" will include Schubert's "Serenade" and the cartoon comedy, "The Impractical Joker." Complete newsreel coverage of the world, as usual, will comprise an important part of the program.

"This Way, Please," the musical featuring Charles "Buddy" Rogers and Betty Grable, will continue through today only as chief feature of the bill at the Metropolitan Theater. It will be supplanted tomorrow by a distinguished screen offering yet to be announced.

Those thoroughly goofy Ritz Brothers, assisted by Joan Davis, Nat Pendleton, Fred Stone, Ed Thorgersen, Gloria Stuart, Joan Marsh, Dick Baldwin and scores more, will occupy the screen at Loew's Columbia Theater for the week beginning tomorrow in a repeat downtown engagement of "Life Begins in College," one of the most ridiculous football comedies ever made. The bill will be supplemented by short sound subjects and a new issue of the "Events of the Day."

So successful has been this week's engagement of "The Wandering Jew," starring Conrad Veidt, at the Little Theater, that this impressive subject will be continued through a second week, beginning Sunday. The story of the man who spat upon the Christ and was condemned to live forever as a wanderer on the face of the earth is told in four engrossing episodes. A British cast supports the star in one of his finest screen impersonations.

A "comedy sensation" is promised patrons of the Gayety Theater in the new bill of extravaganza to be presented on Ninth street, beginning with the regular matinee performance on Sunday. Bobby Morris is announced as chief comedian, with Marie Cornell heading the feminine contingent. They will be supported by a beauty chorus.

It is to Bert Garmise, of the executive staff of the magazine, that I am indebted for an advance copy of the November issue of Scribner's Magazine, in which appears an authoritative article by Milton MacKaye on "The Birth of a Nation," in which is disclosed the story behind the filming of the great American screen classic and the effect the David Wark Griffith masterpiece has had on the development of the modern motion picture. If it proves as interesting and informative as it promises, there will be an excerpt or two bobbing up here some time soon, the magazine just having come to hand as this is written. And my thanks to Mr. Garmise for having saved me a quarter at the newsstand.

Among the theatrical stentors dropping by the drama desk this week have been Mark Freeland, who comes to town to break "The Awful Truth," and Lodewick Vroom, in the interest of Gilbert Miller's production of "Tovarich," an imminent booking at the National.

Mr. Freeland hasn't been in town since the first engagement of "Lost Horizon" and Mr. Vroom for longer than that. Both are intent on impressing the public with the fact that their attractions are unadulterated comedy. It seems there has been some doubt about "Tovarich" in this regard. Many mistakenly believe it to be some sort of heavy Russian drama in the Tolstoy manner. Nothing could be more remote from the truth, awful or not.

Mr. Vroom, furthermore, has hit upon the trail of a remote relationship that may exist between Rudolph Forster, long a valuable member of the White House staff, and the Viennese Rudolf Forster, who plays the former John Halliday role in his play. There is a chance that they might be forty-seventh cousins or something. There are those, by the way, who have referred to Actor Forster as "the John Barrymore of Europe"—and not entirely on account of his profile.

Spewack Farce First Offering At Pierce Hall

Local Group Wins Laughs in Revival of Famous Comedy Riot.

Opening their current season with a smash hit, "Boy Meets Girl," the riotous comedy that played a lengthy run on Broadway a couple of seasons back, the Pierce Hall Players gave their audience plenty of laughs last evening. Bella and Samuel Spewack authored this ribtickler which takes several "colossal" cracks at Hollywood and its super-super specials, and the group missed few tricks.

Every type of actor, author and producer extant in the cinema promised land comes in for a jibe or two in this opus, which might be set in a psychopathic ward. However, a producer's office seems to give the same idea, and a little more room for action. Susie, a little commissary waitress, is delivered of a "blessed event," whom she calls "Happy." Two nutty writers, blase from lack of story material, seize upon the youngster as publicity for the good old innocent childhood angle, and are bound for the big money until "Happy" gets the measles, which puts a crimp in their style.

The stellar honors are divided between Robert Truitt Miller and Frank Koonce, as the dizzy duo who do most of their writing wrong side up from a leather couch. These two played with ease and assurance, their rapid fire dialogue coming over with fine comedy timing. Peggy Johnston was delightful as Susie, who wanted to go to high school, and William Austin Davis handled the difficult assignment of the harassed producer in capable manner. Jean Darier contributed a neat bit as the Junoesque Miss Crews, secretary to Mr. Friday. The other members of the cast who acquitted themselves creditably were Richard Stringfellow, A. William Waldman and Carl Pribek, who has a brief moment in the last act.

Howard Wentworth directed the production, which, except for a little lagging in the last act, was well paced. To K. Hilding Beij goes credit for the effective sets.

The Washington Civic Theater's second-season inaugural was celebrated in the Wardman Park Theater last night by the first Washington presentation of Victor Wolfson's three-act play of "Excursion," a serio-comic adventure in the theoretical adjustment of current social inequalities and vigorous fun.

It is no dramatic sinecure that the Civic group has selected fo rits first offering of the new season. The cast is one that imposes extravagant demands upon any rsident organizations' resources in the matter of acting personnel and the two alternating secenes require more than the usual amount of shifting throughout the three acts. All the more credit, therefore, is due Director F. Cowles Strickland and his associates for having contributed so smooth and so capable a first night to the mounting reputation of the Civic Theater as the most nearly professional permanent "little theater" the National Capital ever has been able to boast.

"Excursion" has its comic basis in the experiences of a company of Coney Island excursions making the last trip on the S. S. Happiness, about to be relegated to the ignominious uses of a garbage scow. The captain of the boat, who for 30 years has been transporting a cross-section of New York's heterogeneous populace on their one day's relaxation a week from the battle of life, reaches his own escape from the rebellion seething within him against capitalistic injustices by surrendering to the temptation to lead his malcontent passenger list to a West Indian Utopia, instead of piloting them back to the dingy Manhattan dock from which they had sailed that morning. The pith of the play lies in the conflicting reactions of the "shanghaied" excursionists to this revolutionary plan of solving all of their economic and social problems.

Rich in Material.

These reactions are as many and as varied as might be expected to spring from tired shopkeepers and their families, a mother and her irritating small son and babe-in-arms, a renegade wife and her daughter, a socialistic writer, three shop girls from rival departments of a huge mercantile establishment, the son and daughter of a Titan of big business, who owns the steamship line, and others as widely separated in viewpoint and aspiration. The opportunities for both serious and comic dramatic treatment are abundant. They make reasonably clear that amateur reformers rarely know precisely how to achieve the realization of their dreams of emancipation from a fixed and habitual social order.

To all the variegated dialects, vernaculars and conglomerate backgrounds reflected in Capt. Obadiah's mixed cargo, the Civic Players bring a surprisingly well simulated realism and spontaneity. There were moments, to be sure, when the movement of the three acts might have been accelerated to advantage and the full impact of all the author had to say was not always quite encompassed, but in the main no apologies need be offered for a performance that reflected high credit upon everyone connected with it.

Audience Enthusiasm High.

A glance at the cast will make clear the impossibility of according praise to all who deserve it, but especial mention should be made of Harry Wescott, Richard Walsh, Ted Tenley, Eileen Fowler, Evelyn Adams, Betty Leaf, Lansing Hall, Evelyn Diamond, Stanley Karmazin, Bunnie Skinner, Robert Duncan, Mary Jo Day and Jon Anderson for shouldering the major weight of a heavy and involved undertaking. Of these Mr. Wescott, Mr. Karmazin, Miss Adams, Miss Skinner and Mr. Duncan are to be accorded an extra palm. Pat Davis and Gay Hess accounted for the juvenile roles with the skill of veterans.

William M. Girvan's effective settings provided another item of last night's opening that had an important part in generating the enthusiastic approval of a large and obviously pleased and appreciative audience.

Contract Bridge

By Mrs. Ely Culbertson

Everyone knows how important it sometimes is to give partner the lead. When you happen to be the declarer and can see your partner's hand, it is seldom difficult to determine how to transfer the lead as desired. But when you happen to be a defender and cannot see your partner's hand, it may be difficult to determine the suit in which partner has an entry. Note the skill with which West accomplished his object in the hand below.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♣	Pass
2 ♠	Pass	4 ♠	Pass
Pass	Pass

The nine of spades was led from dummy, East played low, and South ducked, permitting West to win with the Queen.

West's problem was now acute. He was sure of two trump tricks and could obtain a club ruff if his partner could get the lead. Thus, getting into East's hand would produce the two extra tricks needed to defeat the contract. If East had either red Ace West could get into his partner's hand by leading one of the red suits at this point, and the other red suit (if necessary) when he took his Ace of spades. But it was possible that East had the King and Queen of hearts, in which case it would be necessary for West to lead hearts twice. West thought again and decided that even if the first heart lead produced the Queen from his partner and the Ace from declarer, he would still be in the dark as to which player had the King of hearts.

West finally decided that his best lead was the Queen of diamonds. If this produced no co-operation from his partner, West would later lead a heart. By this means West combined two chances; that his partner had one of the two red Aces; or that his partner had the King and ten of diamonds.

The latter was indeed the case and East co-operated nobly by covering his partner's Queen with the King of diamonds. Declarer could not now make his contract. He could not afford to let East hold the King of diamonds for then West would get the club ruff immediately. If he took the Ace of diamonds and knocked out the Ace of spades West would lead a low diamond to East's ten, for the club ruff.

Note that it was necessary for East to play the King of diamonds. Had he played low, South would have ducked and made his contract with ease.

Mrs. Pearson's answer, filed in the morning, brought about a postponement in the hearing to determine custody of the child, which is now with its mother. The hearing was postponed until next Monday.

3d Term Move Begun.

Los Angeles, Oct. 20 (AP).—William Mosely Jones, Speaker of the California Assembly, announced tonight he had agreed to head a movement for a third term for President Roosevelt. "We intend to let the world know that Roosevelt will be re-elected if he wishes. Charges of dictatorship mean nothing. As a matter of fact, the country might be better off if Roosevelt were a dictator."

Each recital will be given by a musician employed in the Government service, and will be open to the public without charge.

Realtors Study Tax Limitation And Housing

Co-ordinated Taxation Plan Urged at Pittsburgh Convention.

By Thomas M. Cahill.

Real Estate Editor of The Post.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 20.—With adequate housing for America and limitation of taxation as major objectives of its program, the National Association of Real Estate Boards' thirtieth annual convention opened its first business session here today at the William Penn Hotel.

More than 1,500 delegates from the United States, Canada and Hawaii heard Paul E. Stark, Madison, Wis., president of the association, outline a campaign for the first goal, and former Gov. Myers Y. Cooper of Ohio, which limits its total tax on general property to 10 mills, emphasize need for a co-ordinated system of Federal, State, and local taxation.

President Stark, representing an organization of more than 12,000 members and 400 unit boards, appealed for best working relationship betw en Federal action and private initiative in securing adequate housing. He advised that realtors determine how it may be of service in the removal of barriers in the way of home acquisition and construction.

Taxes Called Barrier.

These he enumerated as building costs, tax burden, high interest rates and short period of amortization. Real estate, he reminded, enjoys only 20 per cent of the national income, yet bears 60 per cent of the national tax load.

Dealing with high interest rates, he felt it strange that the United States should place highest interest on money loaned on homes, declaring that in England, Germany, Norway and Sweden interest money is offered to lower income groups at from 3½ to 4½ per cent, while in this country the rate is between 6 and 7.

Citing Department of Commerce figures, he showed that if interest rates were reduced even 1 per cent and amortization extended to 30 years, 5,000,000 more American families could become home owners.

Uniform Taxes Sought.

"The greater uniformity we have through the States on the question of real property tax," said Cooper, now president of the Cincinnati Real Estate Board, "the greater will be the guarantee against tax impositions on home owners and farmers of this Nation, and the greater will be the encouragement to those who want to own homes and farms."

He revealed that the 10-mill constitutional tax limitation reduced taxes on real property approximately $37,500,000 in the first year.

Charles J. Rush, executive secretary of the Washington Real Estate Board, will describe today the new real estate license law for the District of Columbia in a symposium on real estate license laws as protection to the broker.

President Roosevelt Dedicates New Federal Reserve Building

President Delivers Dedication Speech

During exercises at the new Federal Reserve Building yesterday, the Chief Executive paid tribute to Senator Carter Glass, outspoken critic of the New Deal, for the part he played in the creation of the Federal Reserve System. Notables of the financial world crowded the corridors of the new building, considered one of the most beautiful in Washington, and some of the spectators who converted a stairway into a grandstand are shown at right. Upper left, Senator Carter Glass and Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, widow of the wartime President, who were among early arrivals. Below is Marriner S. Eccles, chairman of the board of governors of the Federal Reserve, greeting the President upon his arrival.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

Was Woman, Nearly 40, Justified in Dismissing Lover On Learning His Devotion Didn't Equal Hers?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am not a young girl asking advice. I am nearly 40 years old. I have never talked with any of my friends about my problems—and this particular one is too intimate to discuss with even the closest of friends. Please give me unbiased counsel. . . . There have been two men in my life whom I have sincerely loved. To one I was engaged 14 years, until circumstance arose which made marriage impossible, whereupon I broke the engagement.

* * * *

During the interval between the broken engagement and my meeting—not so long ago—with the second man, I had an "affair" that was, to me, a very unhappy experience. Prompted by utter loneliness and a breaking heart, I accepted this man as a substitute for what I had lost. We became more familiar than I now wish we had. (My first love was strictly honorable; there was no intimacy involved). At the time I met the second man—whom I love so much that it seems almost impossible to go on without him—I felt there could never be anything between us because of the other man, whom I had made a grave mistake in trusting. This man threatened my happiness until he passed away in the last year.

* * * *

The man I love today is kindly, trustworthy, considerate and frank. He has had a great deal of unhappiness in his life. The bond between us grew out of a mutual sympathetic understanding of each other's unhappiness—for I told him everything of my past, just as it happened. I loved him from the first, though I went with him a long time before I very foolishly let him know how I felt. I was with him continuously; have gone away with him; have spent many happy hours with him; he became my whole life. I gave myself to him utterly, because I truly love him. I thought I was giving him as much happiness as he was giving me. But I learned recently that he does not love me—and it was this discovery that led me to tell him how I felt. He told me that he liked me a great deal and loved me some, but that he was still trying to recover from a former heartbreak. .

* * * *

The realization that he does not—or thinks he does not—love me made our relationship intolerable to me. The bottom seems to have dropped out of my life. I wrote and told him I could not go on, because of the difference in our feeling for each other. He had thought I was simply trying to help him forget his own unhappiness. I am fighting hard to keep sensible about it, but am so miserably unhappy that I have become almost ill. I find it difficult to eat and can't sleep—yet I feel I have done the only right and honest thing.

* * * *

Do you think I have done the right thing—even though it is at the expense of my own happiness? I know that I shall never love anyone again. I went through this experience once before and it took 14 years to find someone who entirely filled the void in my life . . . This man likes me enough to continue as before, had I not forced myself to break our friendship. Had he loved me as much as I love him, I could have go on forever with no thought of marriage, for in this stage of my life happiness means more to me than a home and marriage—but it must be a clean and sincere happiness.

* * * *

This man wrote me to say my decision has saddened his heart; that he will be sad for a long time to come, and that, although my love for him has been greater than his for me, still the romance had not been an entirely one-sided affair. He said, however, that if we cannot be happy together in the real sense of the word, we should separate regardless of how much either of us is hurt—and he admits that he will be hurt . . . I sincerely believe this man does love me, but that, for some reason he seems unwilling to discuss with me, is trying to keep from hurting me. He is trying to impress me with the fact that we must part some day. I want—more than I can say—to continue seeing him; but I also wish to do what will be the best thing for myself. This man has been in poor health for some time and I have thought that might be his reason for not letting himself love me as much as I love him. Please help me get a true perspective on a terribly mixed-up romance. UNHAPPY.

The End Was Inevitable.

DEAR UNHAPPY: Look at the problem this way: since the man refuses to budge from his bruising statement that he does not, and never can, love you as much as you love him (and this in spite of the fact that he knows you love him utterly, and that each of you has brought great happiness to the other in the past); since he continously emphasizes the inevitability of your association's being dissolved at some future day, and since he has already subscribed to your impetuous decision to break off at once, I think you may well conclude that the suffering you are undergoing today, as a result of that decision would sooner or later have had to be lived through anyway.

* * * *

In fact, I believe you may conclude that the beginning of the end was implicit in his confession—made a short time back—that he did not, does not, never will, care for you as you care for for him. He probably realized, before you put it in so many words, that your dependence upon him had steadily grown until it far outweighed his dependence upon you. And since he is, superficially, at least, kindly, trustworthy, considerate and frank, he probably reasoned that it would be best for you if you began at once to learn to live without him, inasmuch as he had never intended, at any time, to enter into a permanent relationship with you, either in or out of marriage.

As a rule, the man who—though free to marry—is willing to enter, without benefit of civil or religious ceremony, into an intimate love relationship with a woman whom he respects and admires, whose solely he thoroughly enjoys, is a man who lives for the pleasures and consolations of the day and the hour. And because he is that type of man he instinctively shies away—even at the expense of his own contemporary happiness — from the woman whose reaction to the arrangement and to him suggests that she is taking a long-range view of the relationship; that she is making it the very foundation-stone of her life.

Men of this type seldom marry the woman with whom they have an affair; nor do they, as a rule, continue long in one affair. It is doubtful, even, that they would long stay married, supposing they were to marry some woman whose pledge of love could not be otherwise obtained. For the thing they value above all else is a sense of psychic self-possession. They dread above all else, the traditional possessiveness of woman. Very often, they are emotionally immature persons; emotionally unstable persons; highly selfish persons, beneath the veneer of a seeming kindliness and fair-mindedness and generosity.

I say this because I am of the opinion that no emotionally mature, fair-minded, truly kind-hearted person could or would terminate a love relationship with another which yielded some happiness, when such a move threatened to precipitate that other person into a veritable purgatory of suffering. Mature persons cannot and do not evade certain grave moral, social and emotional responsibilities which they invite by their own conduct. Only the selfish person dumps such responsibilities overboard, with the specious argument that such a denouement is for the other person's good.

* * * *

Everything points to the fact that you are dealing with such a man. Therefore you have the consolation of knowing you acted rightly, and wisely in breaking off at once. Had you not taken the initiative in breaking off you would probably have found yourself being eased out of the relationship by almost imperceptible degrees, as time went on. You may further console yourself with the incontrovertible truth that nothing is more destructive to a woman's moral fiber, to all that is fine and decent and delicate and integrated in her nature, than the giving of herself in the most intimate—and what should be the most sacred and spiritual—of all human relationships to a man who has bluntly told her he does not love her, yet is willing to accept and abuse the gift of her love.

* * * *

It is absurd to say, to even think, that you—scarcely 40—will never love again. That is rank and sickly pessimism—in sharp contradiction to your proven capacity for, and need to, love. It may be a tendency toward pessimism and self pity which has alienated your men friends in the past. I am convinced your attitude toward love is wrong. It was wrong, even, in the instance of this man. For, leaving physical intimacy aside, real love is principally intent on making the beloved happy; in giving rather than receiving. Whereas you have shown yourself willing to give only when you were convinced of receiving in equal and overflowing measure. Real love may find you when you no longer approach it and measure it in terms of yourself and what it can give you.

* * * *

Incidentally, I have just finished reading a wonderfully inspirational volume, "The Fool Hath Said," by Beverly Nichols, an English author, which might help you through this trying hour. One chapter in particular, remarkable for what I might call its audacious sanity, I recommend to your attention. It is entitled "Christ and Sex." M. H.

Subtle-Tinted Gloves by Molyneux

"Faded" Tones in New Gloves Provide Accents for Attire

By Ethel Ehlen.

The Post Fashion Editor.

THAT GLOVES ARE ultra-important in the accessory scheme of things this fall and winter, is evidenced in the unusually lovely collection of Molyneux, as designed by Paul Chanut, Capt. Molyneux has always been noted for his exquisite color sense and his simplicity of line. These features are noted in his new glove presentation; each glove is cut with a perfection of line, without benefit of stitching of any kind to mar the classic beauty. Deviating from conventionalities, the back of the glove is unadorned, giving a smart unbroken line.

The colors are "faded" tones, in Venetian pink, a soft rosy rust; October brown, a dark rich shade; Paris gray, the soft blue-gray that French painters love to portray; autumn green, the tint noted in the fading of summer greens before the frost has changed them; chrysanthemum yellow, old gold, rich yet dulled in color tone; black, a charcoal black, deep and intense. All of the shades in these eight-button, pull-on street gloves are accent colors; hues and tints to lend character to the chic black and other popular colors.

Following the current trend for sophisticated elegance, colored gloves have assumed an important role in the drama of fashion. They are no longer a novelty, to be worn with fear and trembling, because you dare to be different; they are now a staple in the glove color chart, as conventional as black, brown, navy or other costume colors. The new Molyneux colors, however, are outstanding and different, because they are subtle in tone—an elusive accessory to lend distinction to your entire ensemble.

Costume Jewel Vogue Expands

New York (AP).—This season sees the greatest vogue for costume jewels the fashion world has known in years.

Victorian chests, the studios of modern artists and European jewel cases have been raided for inspiration in the design of intriguing baubles that range from cameo lockets to jeweled bugs.

You will be wearing them on throat and wrist with almost every frock before snow flies. The 1937-38 mode of black form-fitting frocks is said to have done much to inspire the jeweled vogue.

Femininity Blends With Glitter Mode

New York (AP).—Femininity and glitter blend this fall in one of the most gorgeous evening modes the fashion world has launched since the World War. It has been definitely designed to charm the male.

The femininity is not the "deadly daintiness" of frills, but that of seductive figures and alluring curves. There is scarcely a dress that does not accent the bust and seek to create the illusion of a slender, tapering waist.

Complicated Sweets, Tea Balls Amaze Dietician From Scotland

By Jean Green.

The Post Food Editor.

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 20.—Two American food habits surprise—even appall—Miss Jean Richie, of the Royal Infirmary, Edinburgh, Scotland, who is attending the twentieth annual convention of the American Dietetic Association here. They are the eating of complicated sweet desserts and the making of tea with tea balls and lukewarm water.

Aside from that, however, Miss Richie believes the United States is leading the world in nutrition and diet planning and that American-trained dieticians are influencing diet habits of other countries.

One of the chief ways in which Scottish diets differ from American diets, according to Miss Richie, is in their lack of frozen desserts and other "complicated sweets." That is especially true in the Scottish hospital menus.

Desserts Are Simple.

"Desserts," she said, "are either puddings such as milk puddings, or corn flour desserts or fresh fruits which are all imported from California or Australia. Salads are not served so frequently. Fruit salads are never served with meats. They are always a dessert salad.

"Scotland has retained in the hospitals the pleasant afternoon habit of serving tea. All patients are served tea in the afternoon at 4. If the doctor permits, they are given scones. The evening meal is served later than in American hospitals."

Miss Richie has nothing good to say about the American tea. She is appalled to find that a tea ball is brought in with a cup of lukewarm water. Her recipe for tea is as follows: Have the water freshly boiled. Have the teapot hot and dry. Measure the tea into the teapot. Take the teapot to the stove and pour the boiling water over it while it is still boiling. Let the tea stand for three or four minutes. Then serve at once and if it should stand too long, pour it down the drain and make a fresh pot of tea. The tea is poured at the table from the hot teapot and the leaves may or may not be left in it.

Only Experts Trained.

The training school at which Miss Richie was trained admits only home economics graduates, college graduates in chemistry and graduate nurses. The curriculum is different for each group. The first six months is class work and during the next year they obtain their experience.

In teaching the students, the following standards for an adequate diet are advocated: ½ pint of milk or 1 ounce of cheese (pints of milk in Scotland hold 20 ounces), 2 vegetables, not counting potatoes, 1 salad, 1 or 2 servings of fruit, a first-class protein and cereal. They teach that half the cereal should be whole grain.

In attendance at the convention here are dieticians from all parts of the United States, and from several foreign countries including Scotland, Hungary, Canada and Puerto Rica. The visitors are especially interested in the Southern dishes which are being served them. At the welcoming luncheon the menu, typically Southern, was as follows:

Country style fried chicken with gravy
Steamed rice Turnip greens
Sliced garden tomatoes
Biscuits Spoon bread
Eggnog ice cream
Lady Baltimore cake
Mocha coffee
Scuppernong grapes

Floor-Length Capes.

Paris (AP).—Voluminous floor-length capes, plain or with broad collars of mink nearly to the waistline, are among the luxurious evening wraps in the Molyneux collection. Others are draped, scarf-like, in fabrics matching the gowns with which they are worn. Full-length tailored evening wraps follow the princess silhouette and long chiffon scarfs are looped about the neckline and hang to the hem of the gown.

Today's HEALTH TALK

Ringworm Prevention.

Athlete's foot, or trichophytin infection of the skin of the feet, is spread in a number of ways. The fungus thrives on moist floors of gymnasium lockers, around swimming pools and shower baths. It also seems to be a frequent inhabitant of leather and woolen goods. Anything which will cause moistening of the feet predisposes toward it.

The question of carriers, which has been emphasized in popular literature, is certainly an important one. Carriers undoubtedly spread it, but they are so numerous that practically everybody is a suspect. Thirty per cent of New Orleans medical students were found to be carriers, and as many as 85 per cent of students at the University of California. At the University of Pennsylvania 60 per cent of men students who were examined were carriers, and 37 per cent of women students.

Another cause of persistence in an established case is the fact that the fungus occurs not only on the feet, but also on the hands, especially on the nails. A person who has an infection on the feet, therefore, and keeps scratching it, must remember that he may carry the infection on his fingers to any part of the body and can reinfect the feet. He should, therefore, disinfect his nails and nail brush, as well as his feet, to prevent spread.

One of the best chemicals for the prevention is sodium hypochlorite, the common, cheap and harmless bactericide used in many city water supplies. One-tenth of one per cent solution of this will do away with the fungus on the feet of most carriers. Sodium thiosulphate is also valuable, but cannot be used around swimming pools because it is a reducing agent, and if it is carried on the feet of swimmers into the pool it reduces available chlorine content of the swimming pool.

A calcium product consisting of calcium hypochlorite, which can be purchased under the trade name of H T H, is a good disinfectant for foot pads, as well as for swimming pool disinfection, and if carried into the swimming pool will add rather than subtract from the chlorine content of the swimming pool.

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes

New York, Oct. 20.

ONE OF my favorite mothers (by adoption) rolled into town on the Twentieth Century the other morning, accompanied by the two apples of her two eyes, Sandra and Ronnie. Gracie Allen, of the screen and ozone, was the lady and, of course, George Burns, her partner, husband and the man who asks the questions, was along, too.

ALICE HUGHES.

Strange what a couple of cherubs can do to a couple. Time was when Gracie and George (she calls her "Googie" for no reason whatever) burst among us in an explosion of dumb cracks. They had to be in character. No more. This time, when I went down the old red carpet to meet them, Gracie was almost as dignified as a Fifth avenue dowager coming home after whipping Newport to its knees. Now parenthood bears down heavily on this loony pair when the kids are present. "We don't want the children to get a bad impression of us," Googie said demurely the other morning, while the astounded reporters tried to lure some silly niftles.

Sandra's 3 and Ronnie 2, and both are bright and attractive tikes, neither spoiled nor too precocious, and it's a pleasure to see how Gracie broods over them. A smart woman, this—smart instinctively, as a woman can be smart, and also as an old-time trouper who served her years in vaudeville. I'm sure that's why the old-time variety actors all want to adopt children these days, the Jack Bennys and such as well as the Allen family. For ages they lived in wardrobe trunks and mediocre hotels. Now, their hands full of radio dough, they have homes—real places to live, all their own, where children belong. And they have them, and are the world's most ardent parents. More power to the warm and generous hearts of the old troupers. And now Gracie's "buying up the town!"

* * * *

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—We may be pretty set in our ways, here, but we do manage to bust out now and then for a bit of fun. We're all just back from the nearest county fair, held each fall at Danbury, Conn.—dizzy from rides on the ferris wheel and merry-go-round, and tetched in the tummy from too much hamburger and pink pop. Thousands of New Yorkers go to Danbury every October and the hired men and their girls rub elbows with society snips who just wouldn't miss the fair for a new tiara and manage to sandwich it in between the Newport season and the Asheville hunting—bless their old emeralds!

* * * *

I mentioned a few days ago that there is no truth in the rumor that the young John Jacob Astors are busting asunder, but "Tucky," the tittian wife, has just parted with her tonsils. Well, what of it?

* * * *

Our theatrical season is slower on the pick-up than ever. In mid-October there are only 18 entertainments on Broadway—about as many as ones ran out the summer in the dear old days. And only two hits. November, however, will kick it along.

* * * *

Can't figure why a perfumer should name his latest scent "Central Park." The only thing I ever smelled in that famed area was gasoline fumes. Oh, yes, and the zoo . . .

* * * *

With "The Women," that catty-hit play, entering its fourth season (of the year, I mean, silly), its clothes designer, the busy John Hambleton, has put the 40 women in its troupe into their fourth set of costumes of the long and profitable run. When you think that some of the leads wear five or six outfits during the show, you can realize the enormous number of very smart creations John must think up and turn out—and, oh, boy, the coat! Would keep us in clothes until—oh, practically any time.

'Never Stand When You Can Sit,' Held Sound Beauty Advice.

By Ida Jean Kain.

"IS SHE really beautiful, or is it just a screen illusion?" That is what the public wants to know about every film star. While Gloria Swanson has not made a picture for 2½ years—and has made only five in the last ten years—she remains the favorite star of many fans, and she has kept her beauty.

Miss Swanson holds a special place in the hearts of the movie-going public, who first saw her 22 years ago and who keep hearing of her long-lashed blue eyes, dynamic personality and splendid figure . . . and with good reason. These features are authentic. Up to now I would say that her pictures have never done her justice.

This film star of two decades is 39, looks barely 29, and has the smooth figure and skin of a girl in her teens. She thinks the main factor in the figure and beauty program of the woman in her thirties is relaxation. "Someone has said 'never stand when you can sit and never sit when you can lie down,' and I don't think that advice can be improved upon," says Miss Swanson on the subject of relaxing.

Studio reports to the contrary, Miss Swanson is convinced she is lazy and that that may help her to relax. "I have manana in my blood . . . I never like to do today what I can put off until tomorrow," she says frankly. That is hard to believe, because she has the reputation of being one of the hardest working film stars. She has learned one valuable thing—to conserve her energy until it is needed. And if you can master the same art, you won't have any wrinkles, either!

The posture principle is the same.

Gloria Swanson Fine Example of Value of Relaxation.

and for fun learned to carry her schoolbooks on her head after the fashion of the native women who balance heavy baskets on their heads. Even now she can walk for blocks with a book as securely balanced as if it were attached by elastic. When you can do that you have a posture that uses the important muscles. The Swanson figure is as streamlined as if she played tennis several times a week: Bust, 35 inches; hips, 35 inches; waist, 27 inches. How would you like to have those measurements?

Miss Swanson's weight hovers around 110 pounds and is no problem. Neither would yours be if you were as discriminating in your food selection. She has three meals a day, but never overeats and never has to worry about her weight.

D. C. Has Snails Ready to Be 'Kissed From Their Shells'

Ever taste snails? You need not go to Paris for them, for they are now available on the Washington market.

Place the snails in lukewarm water and allow them to crawl half way out of their shells. Take another pan, add 2 tablespoons of vinegar and salt, and wash them well. This removes the slime. Then rinse twice in fresh water, put in a pot of lukewarm water, and place on the fire. Boil for 15 minutes in the shell. When cooked they can be used in a number of ways. They can be pulled from their shells, blended with parsley, butter and garlic sauce.

They can be taken from their shells and served as a filling for omelet. They are excellent with wine. A Continental method of serving them is in the shell with a tomato sauce similar to that used on spaghetti. The proper way to eat them, according to this expert, is to "kiss them from the shells."

Chic Novelist Proves to Be As Charming

By Hope Ridings Miller,
The Post Society Editor.

"Charming," that tattered, time-worn word indiscriminately applied to women in Washington, rarely appears on this page because it is so rarely deserved. But it will have to go down now in black and white—and no apologies—for Susan Ertz, British-born novelist now visiting here for the first time.

The adjective leaped to my mind the first time I met her. It stuck yesterday when I saw her again at the cocktail party given in her honor by her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. C. Coleridge Ertz, in their apartment at 3220 Connecticut avenue. Surrounded by guests who wanted to know more about her—her next book, her most recent novel, her working hours and her stay in America—she wisely turned the spotlight directly around and before they knew it, they were telling her all about Washington, themselves and their interest while she sat serenely listening. That's the charm of the type you rarely see in a successful writer.

Attired in a black frock trimmed with gold embroidery and with a narrow band of coral outlining the neck and the brief, fitted jacket, Miss Ertz was chic as well as charming. The hostess was also a pretty picture in her black, floor-length dress set off with a silver vest and a silver and pearl pin at the throat. Incidentally, Mrs. Ertz deserves distinction on more than one account. She is not only the sister-in-law of the novelist now visiting her, but she is also the great-niece of Elizabeth Barrett Browning.

Talk Turns On Many Subjects

Talk turned on many subjects at yesterday's party. The guest of honor had just returned from her first trip to Mount Vernon and was enthusiastic in her praise of its beauty. She was planning her first trip to Baltimore, to be made today, and she wanted to know what she should see and how to go about it. When there was no escaping it, she answered the barrage of questions fired at her from all sides. Yes, she had "regular working hours." From 9:30 each morning until she had written about six hours. No writing late in the afternoon and none at night.

There's no royal road to success in book-making, in her belief. It's hard work, every line of the way. "Getting somewhere with it depends largely on luck," she said. Her current trip to America is both for business and pleasure. She is on a lecture tour in connection with her current novel, "No Hearts to Break," a fictionized biography of Betsy Patterson, the first Baltimore belle to marry into a royal family.

"But the book was begun long before the more recent romance of a Baltimore belle," vowed Susan Ertz, and her brother bore her out in the statement. "As far back as 1934, Susan told me she was interested in doing a book about Betsy Patterson and asked me to send her some background material on Baltimore," he declared.

Youngest Ertz Was Dining Out

And so the conversation continued over the cocktail glasses. Among those in the gathering were Mrs. Pliny Evans, whose sister, Anne Cameron, is another successful writer; Dr. and Mrs. Arthur Brandon, she in a blue crepe dress cut on simple lines and a small black veiled hat; Dr. and Mrs. Radford Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Wilber, the latter in gold-dotted black velvet accented with a scarlet scarf, and dozens of others whose names escaped me because I couldn't turn my attention, for long, from Susan Ertz.

The only person whose presence was missed extremely was the comparatively new arrival in the Coleridge Ertz household, 5-month-old Stephen Coleridge Ertz, who was "dining out with a 10-month-old girl friend."

Miss Ertz, who in private life is Mrs. J. Donald Crindle, wife of the manager and director of British Airways, will leave Washington tomorrow for the West Coast, where she will deliver a number of lectures and visit her brother, Lawrence Ertz, in Los Angeles. Later she will come back East to visit her sister, Mrs. Mary E. Will, in Rochester, N. Y. She expects to return to England early in December.

Here to Attend Inter-American Horse Show

Underwood & Underwood.

Lieut. and Mrs. W. H. Sterling Wright, who were married recently, now are in town to attend the Inter-American Horse Show in which Lieut. Wright will participate as a member of the United States Army Horse Show team. Here they are smiling through breakfast at the Shoreham. This afternoon when the show gets under way at Meadowbrook she will be on hand to watch him.

Belgian Team Skims Hurdles At Fort Dance

By Helen von Ebbighausen.

If the Belgian Horse Show team takes Meadowbrook hurdles today as skilfully as it skimmed social hurdles yesterday at Fort Myer, the American team cannot profess lack of fair warning.

From 5 o'clock on, yesterday Army people and civilians continued to arrive at Fort Myer's hop room for the tea dance given by the commanding officer, Col. Jonathan M. Wainwright, and Mrs. Wainwright, and the officers and ladies of the post for the teams participating in the Inter-American Horse Show.

A definitely larger proportion of guests clustered around the punch bowls in one corner of the large green and rose room. Although civilians were numerous, somehow the best blue of the officers' uniforms, their red and yellow stripes, their decorations and trappings, set the keynote to the scene.

Belgian Guests Arrive Quietly

An hour passed with dancing to the post orchestra, which, incidentally, to the amusement of the officers, serves all occasions, from funerals to frolics. A vague wonder at the nonarrival of the Belgian team intermittently occasioned a murmur which suddenly culminated in the bugler's "retreat." But all that occurred was the snappy retirement of the standard bearers.

Just when the Belgian team members arrived no one exactly knew, except the receiving line. But they were mingling with the guests as though they had been there since 5.

Officers' wives took turns with introductions that scarcely seemed necessary to the friendly gathering. With a murmur of French or accented English, Capt. Henri de Menten de Horne met and conversed with the Fenton Fadeleys, Mrs. Louis Caldwell, Dr. William McClellan, M. F. H. of the Fairfax Hunt, and Mrs. McClellan and Mrs. Reed Thomas.

Lieut. Paul Mondron, Lieut. Ives van Strydonck, Lieut. Ferdinand Poswick and Mme. Poswick, dressed simply in a brown suit, all found different groups. With the fourth member of the team, Captaine de Horne, they had spent the afternoon in Annapolis, lunching at the Officers Club and visiting the Academy.

U. S. Team Also Lionized

But the Belgian team members, meeting their reception with continental grace, were not alone in being lionized. Though among friends and acquaintances of long standing, the American team members achieved a special aura, for literally they are to be half the show. All members of the American team were present, neat in their severe blue uniforms—Capt. Milo H. Matteson, Lieut. F. F. Wing, Capt. Roy O. Drake, Lieut. Scott Sanford and Lieut. William H. Wright.

From the Capital had come Capt. John Reybold and Lieut. Clark Lynn, White House aides; Col. and Mrs. R. D. Newman and Mr. and Mrs. Daniel I. Sultan.

Horse lovers from Maryland and Virginia, appropriately, were among the guests. Harry Sims and Fred K. Sanderson, joint masters of the Riding and Hunt Club hounds, were there, as was Augustus W. Riggs, master of fox hounds of the Howard County Hunt, and Thomas Mott, master of fox hounds of the Redlands Hunt.

In the receiving line with Col. Wainwright and Mrs. Wainwright, who wore black velvet and gardenias, were Col. and Mrs. J. A. Crane. Their daughter, Mary Crane, was also among the guests.

Among those present who have been active in arranging for the show were Robert Graham and Mrs. Graham, Maj. F. L. Whittaker, Maj. Horace Smith and Maj. Henry Leonard.

Stanley Todds Visiting Capital

Col. and Mrs. H. Stanley Todd have arrived from their home, The Priory, at Huntington, Long Island, and are at the Shoreham.

Col. Todd is the artist whose painting, "Nazarene," was shown in various countries abroad two years ago. He came especially to attend to the hanging and lighting of the picture, which will be unveiled later at Tudor Chapel of Cedar Hill Memorial Park in a private showing.

Miss Lucy Salamanca, the writer, who is making her home at the Shoreham while she is completing two books, will entertain at a private reception for Col. and Mrs. Todd after the unveiling.

Barbara Bolling's Debut Is Deferred

"Add out" Miss Barbara Bolling from the list of debutantes for this year. The daughter of Mrs. Richard Wilmer Bolling and niece of Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, whose debut was to have been one of the events of this winter in Washington society, will not be presented this year. Chances are she will be on the list for 1938-39.

She has plenty of time to make her debut for she is only just out of school, having been graduated from Holton Arms last year. And her mother has decided that studies are not yet over.

With that in mind, she will continue her music this season instead of attending the whirl of "first-year parties."

British Naval Attache, Wife Now at Shoreham

Commander and Mrs. F. J. A. Coleby are the latest additions to the "little colony" from the British Embassy established at the Shoreham. They arrived with their two small children in New York Tuesday and came directly to Washington. Commander Coleby is the new Assistant Naval Attache, who will take the place of the present retiring attache, Capt. A. L. P. Mark-Wardlaw, R. N.

The Military Attache of the British Embassy, Col. Wyndham Torr, and Mrs. Torr and their young daughter are again in residence at the Shoreham, as are the Air Attache, Commodore T. E. B. Howe, and the Financial Counselor, E. N. R. Trentham. Commodore Howe is retiring from his present assignment and expects to leave early next month for England.

Eikichi Araki, of Tokyo, was in Washington yesterday and last night entertained informally at dinner in the Shoreham Blue Room with friends from the Japanese Embassy among his guests.

About the Town

With Dudley Harmon

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT is not the only person in Washington who wants to see Congress back on the job again. A good many of our Capital hostesses are looking forward to the return of those among the Senators and Representatives who each years enliven parties and life in general in the Capital.

DUDLEY HARMON.

Not that every member of Congress is a shining light at teas and dinners here, for the majority are seldom seen at any except the most official affairs. Some, like Vice President Garner, hate to go out; others are too busy with affairs of state, and then there are those who prefer to see only a small group of intimates.

Senator and Mrs. Arthur Vandenburg belong to the group which relishes a little social life now and then. After having spent the months since Congress adjourned at their summer home on a Michigan lake, they now are at their house in Grand Rapids, and expect to return to the Capital the first week in November. Among their Washington visitors this summer was Mrs. James F. Curtis, who spent some time with them.

The secretary to Senator Theodore Francis Green reports that her "boss" has been working all summer in his office in Providence, R. I., but that he has found plenty of time for the exercise which, in spite of his years, he likes to take in large quantities. Last year the Senator joined the Y. M. C. A. because the gym in the House Office Building didn't offer workouts strenuous enough for his taste, and during the summer he has been playing tennis and swimming every day. Tall, pleasant, with a humorous twinkle in his eye, Bachelor Senator Green is in great demand for Capital parties.

SENATOR JOSEPH GUFFEY slipped into town rather quietly earlier in the week, but now is in the western part of his home State, Pennsylvania, as he is interested in the general election of judges appointed last spring which now is going on there. His sisters, the Misses Ida and Pauletta Guffey, who served as hostesses for their bachelor brother here, are again in Washington after a jaunt in Europe with the Senator, who will return to the Capital next week.

Those who are under the illusion that members of Congress do nothing but have fun after that body adjourns would be surprised to know how hard one of them has been working all summer and fall. This is Representative Edith Nourse Rogers, popular member of Congress from Massachusetts, who has been inspecting New England Veterans' Administration hospitals, as well as visiting every town in her district. With her New England interests always at heart, she will return to Washington on Monday to be the first witness before a committee of the State Department and the Tariff Commission on the question of a reciprocal tariff between this country and Czechoslovakia. Since the treaty proposes to lower the tariff on shoes and textiles, important industries in Mrs. Rogers' district, she has been busy looking up facts and figures to show why her testimony will be against such an undertaking.

Representative and Mrs. James Wadsworth will be established in their new home, the former F. Trubee Davidson house in Georgetown, a few days before Congress is scheduled to open. They have spent the entire time since adjournment at their home in Geneseo, in the New York hunting country.

* * * *

Just having mastered English after studying it laboriously since his arrival here last fall, Marcas Falcon, of the Venezuelan Legation, has been transferred to Berlin, where he will be commercial attache. So he and Mme. Falcon, not yet daunted, are determinedly tackling German. They have been making their home at the Roosevelt.

Envoys Cross Trails at Sea

Norman H. Davis, United States Ambassador at large, left yesterday on the S. S. Washington to attend the Nine-Power Treaty Conference on the Far Eastern situation in Brussels. With him went Dr. Stanley Hornbeck, J. Pierrepont Moffat, Robert T. Pell and Charles E. Bohlen.

Others sailing on the Washington were Frederick A. Sterling, United States Minister to Latvia, and H. Freeman Matthews, secretary of the United States Embassy in Paris.

Also sailing for Europe yesterday, on the S. S. Queen Mary, was Robert W. Bingham, Ambassador to Great Britain.

Coming from Europe to America on the S. S. Champlain, which reached New York yesterday, were Engineer Col. Norbert Champsaur, Air Attache of the French Embassy, and Mme. Champsaur; Rene Grimm-Provence, French Commercial Attache in Havana, and Mme. Grimm-Provence and Gen. and Mrs. Frank Parker. Also Viscount Sosthene de la Rochefoucauld, Marquis Elliott de Causade and Count Raoul de la Forest-Divonne.

With Hjalmar Johan Procope, former Minister of Foreign Affairs of Finland, as their guest of honor, Mr. and Mrs. Emil Hurja last evening entertained at their first dinner party in their new residence at 2419 California street.

Ranking guests were the Ambassador of Brazil, Oswaldo Aranha, and the Minister of Finland and Mme. Jarnefelt.

Miss Laughlin, Fiance Dinner Dance Honorees

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss entertained last evening at a dinner dance in honor of Miss Gertrude Laughlin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Irwin Laughlin, and her fiance, Lieut Hubert Chanler, son of Mrs. Winthrop Chanler and the late Mr. Chanler. The party was held at the Bliss estate in Georgetown, Dumbarton Oaks.

Miss Laughlin's wedding to Lieut. Chanler will take place Saturday at St. Paul's Church.

Chinese Envoy to Speak At Philadelphia Dinner

The Chinese Ambassador, Dr. Chengting T. Wang, goes to Philadelphia today, where he will address the board of trade at its banquet at the Ritz-Carlton in the evening. Following the board of trade meeting, he will be guest of honor at a reception given by the Chinese colony of Philadelphia.

Earlier in the day he will address a group at the Philadelphia Y. M. C. A.

NOTES OF SOCIETY

Official and Residential

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt will arrive in Washington today and will spend the night at the White House, leaving again tomorrow. She will not have a press conference during this brief stay.

Chinese Women's Benefit Association Prepares for Bazaar November 4-5

By Elizabeth Ford.

Miss Yoeh E. Wang, daughter of the Chinese Ambassador, is as busy these days as that bee you've been hearing about. It so happens that as head of the Chinese Women's Benefit Association she is up to her trim little ears in work, getting ready for the bazaar which the association is giving at the Washington Club November 4 and 5. Already there are about 50 prominent Washington names on the list of patronesses, which has not yet been released, and more names are being added by the minute.

For the past three weeks under the direction of Miss Wang the ladies of the Embassy have been making Chinese dolls (which, as everyone knows, are the nicest dolls in the world) and also planning costumes for the Chinese historical fashion show, which will be presented each of the two days at 2 o'clock in the afternoon and at 8:30 in the evening. Moreover, if you happen to be at the bazaar from 4 to 6, they will brew you some Chinese tea.

Mrs. Ing, wife of the Counselor of the Embassy, Zaung Teh Ing, is vice president of the association; Mrs. Ho, wife of the Embassy's first secretary, Pei Yuan Ho, is treasurer, and Mrs. Shieh, wife of Attache Jen Chao Shieh, is secretary, while Mrs. J. Y. Yee, of this city, is co-secretary with her. In addition to the dolls, there will will be on sale Chinese linen, embroidery, scrolls and paintings, which are being donated not only by Washingtonians, but by persons all over the country. Proceeds will go for relief in China.

The bazaar will be open and ready for business from 2 in the afternoon until 10 at night. Other events are in the planning stage and will take place under the auspices of the Chinese Women's Benefit Association later in the winter.

Chevy Chase Clubhouse Lacks Only 80 Bonds

By Jessie Ash Arndt,
The Post Club Editor.

Just 80 more bonds, sold to members of the Chevy Chase Woman's Club, would insure the breaking of ground for the new clubhouse on the site opposite the Columbia Country Club, which was purchased last year. This was announced yesterday at the first fall meeting of the organization of nearly 600 Chevy Chase women, by their new president, Mrs. Joseph Travers Maguire. The business meeting and program followed the luncheon in the assembly room of the Presbyterian Church.

The report of the building company, of which Mrs. Frank A. Linzel is president, was made by the treasurer, Mrs. Frederick M. Kerby. Sixty-six bonds already have been sold and their purchase is limited to club members. They hope to have their home under construction by the end of the club year. Most of the discussion at the business meeting was devoted to the proposed plans.

There were also committee reports, and Mrs. William A. Wilbur, long an active member of the club, was voted an honorary member as a tribute of appreciation for her contribution to its activities.

Mrs. James LeCron, widely known writer, was introduced as the speaker of the afternoon and addressed the club on "Sweden as a Democracy." She spent most of the summer there with her husband and son, investigating the co-operative movement.

America has only recently awakened to the fact that Sweden is a pure democracy, she said, and termed her own observations those made from the viewpoint of an American housewife. Everything is settled in Sweden by ballot, she said; there is real freedom of speech; telephones and electrical appliances are to be found in almost every home, including the miners' cabins, and the cost of a prolonged 200-mile telephone conversation is only 21 cents.

The co-operative stores are usually the largest and most prosperous in the community, always busy, well conducted and clean, said Mrs. LeCron. There are also stores of the other type, but the coming of co-operatives has resulted in their reducing their prices. The co-operative itself makes a profit and the reduced prices at other stores have increased their volume of business, so they too have gained, she said, and there is no regimentation, no compulsion, about buying at the co-operatives.

Not all Swedish citizens favor the co-operative movement, however. There is much discussion about it, and this is encouraged by the government, which since 1912 has sponsored forums, providing speakers without charge, who present both sides of any question on which a community desires information, Mrs. LeCron explained.

The music of the afternoon was a group of songs by Mrs. James D. Oliver, accompanied by Mrs. John S. Hornback.

With Mrs. Maguire at the speakers' table were Mrs. Frank M. Hoadley, president of the Maryland Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. George W. Morey, president of the Maryland Fifth District Federation; Mrs. Daniel C. Walser, of the Chevy Chase Social Service League, and members of the executive board. These included Mrs. Frederick M. Kirby, first vice president; Mrs. Edward H. Helmuth, second vice president; Mrs. Arthur T. Davenport, recording secretary; Mrs. Paul H. Butler, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Kenneth D. McRae, treasurer; Mrs. Louis S. Murphy, assistant treasurer; Mrs. Linzel, director and past president.

Also Mrs. J. H. Ray, Mrs. H. S. Yohe, Mrs. Robert H. H. Spidel, Mrs. Harold Dotterer, Mrs. Douglas Grieserner, Mrs. Robert M. Barnett, Mrs. William F. Henry, Mrs. Martin H. Uelsmann, Mrs. Henry DeCoursey Adams, Mrs. Irving M. Day, Mrs. F. S. Brackett, Mrs. Edgar F. Fowler, Mrs. Arthur E. Nesbitt, Mrs. Frederick F. Espenschied, Mrs. Philip P. Gott, Mrs. Harold C. Mme. Duperrey Luncheon Guest Of Rotary Anns

There was a gay exchange of French and English phrases yesterday at the luncheon given by wives of Washington Rotarians at Congressional Country Club for Mme. Maurice Duperrey, of Paris, wife of the president of Rotary International. The guest of honor knew but a few words of English and most of the women in the hostess group had but a smattering of college French at their common, so it required assistance of Miss Priscilla Holcombe, daughter of Maj. Amasa Holcombe, a Rotary member, as interpreter to keep the conversation flowing.

About 100 Rotary Anns were present at the affair at which Mrs. Roland Whitehurst presided. Mrs. Robert B. Swope, wife of the president of the Washington Club, introduced guests to Mme. Duperrey as they arrived and Mrs. A. F. E. Horn, wife of the vice president, presented them to Mrs. Albert Rowland, of Shippensburg, Pa., wife of the governor of the 180th District, who was also a guest of honor.

Mme. Duperrey was given as a souvenir of her visit here—a tooled leather portfolio, inscribed as a gift and containing etched photographs of Washington. The presentation was made by Mrs. Swope, who wore a black gown with a bolero jacket on the shoulder of which was embroidered a royal blue flower. Mme. Duperrey's gown and hat were of royal blue and Mrs. Whitehurst wore a frock of navy blue crepe romaine, with a lighter blue collar and a blue hat.

The program of the afternoon was by Miss Roselmira Colomo, who sang English and Spanish songs.

After the luncheon, Mme. Duperrey was taken to see the Washington Cathedral and on a drive through the residential sections of the city.

Last night Mrs. George William Harris, at whose home she and M. Duperrey have been guests during their stay in the Capital entertained at a dinner in her honor.

In the company were a few of the wives of members of the Washington and neighboring Rotary clubs who were here to attend the silver anniversary dinner at the Mayflower at which M. Duperrey was speaker.

They included Mrs. Rowland, Mrs. Swope, Mrs. Harrison E. Howe, Mrs. Horn, Mrs. Frank Ballou, Mrs. Creed Fulton, Mrs. W. W. Everett, Mrs. Whitehurst, Miss Holcombe, Mrs. Ritchie Lawrie, of Harrisburg; Mrs. Arthur May, Mrs. Samuel Prescott and Mrs. Thomas W. Phillips, daughter of the hostess.

Mme. Lenorad wife of the Military Attache of the French Embassy, and the second daughter of the hostess, Miss Eilene Havlin Harris, also were present.

Following the dinner there was a musicale presented by Alfred Manning, harpist.

Mme. and M. Duperrey will leave this evening on their way to Chicago, to headquarters of Rotary International. They expect to spend two months in this country visiting clubs in various cities.

Session Is Planned By W. Va. Society

The West Virginia State Society of the District of Columbia has completed plans for its first meeting of the season, to be held in the ballroom of the Raleigh Hotel, Thursday evening. David S. Davidson, president of the society, will preside at the business meeting at 8:30, to be followed by a reception to members.

One feature of the entertainment for the evening will be an exhibition of the new dance, "the Big Apple," under the direction of Leroy Thayer. Dancing from 9:30 to 1 a. m.

Members of the reception committee are John W. Smith, chairman; Mrs. Inez Brey, vice chairman; Mrs. Rose Burchinal, Miss Mayme Hamrick, E. T. Morgan, Mrs. E. T. Rhodes, Miss Lucile Hutchinson, Mrs. Crawford Sloan, Miss Bertha Duncan, Miss Edith Echols, Mr. and Mrs. Lyman V. Knight, Miss Pearle Teats and Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Nunnally.

Col. Heber Rice is in charge of the floor committee.

Mrs. Sada C. Shinn will be assisted by Miss Martha Echols and Miss Margaret Brooks.

D. A. R. Chapter to Motor To Baltimore Sunday

Members of Constitution Chapter, D. A. R., accompanied by Mrs. Charles Carroll Haig, State regent; Mrs. Lee R. Pennington, State historian, and friends of the chapter, will motor to Baltimore Sunday to attend the dedication of a D. A. R. Revolutionary marker to a patriot and Maryland son, Capt. Thomas Moore, in Baltimore Cemetery.

Mrs. Walter Miles will unveil the tablet in the name of Constitution Chapter. After the ceremonies the chapter will visit Fort McHenry before returning to Washington.

Barnard Club Sets Luncheon

The Barnard Club of Washington has announced Mary V. Robinson, of the Department of Labor, as the speaker for its monthly luncheon Saturday at 1 o'clock at the Y. W. C. A. She will talk on "What's in a Dress" and will illustrate her address with motion pictures.

Miss Robinson, as chief of the division of public information, for the Labor Department, is in charge of preparing the material published in the bureau's bulletin and in reports designed to appeal to the average reader. In both written and graphic form, the facts and figures of the Women's Bureau are offered for the use of the public.

The preparation and circulation of popular exhibits, such as models, motion pictures, maps, charts, posters, and folders, constitute a considerable part of the work of the division headed by Miss Robinson. All exhibit material is used extensively by schools, colleges, universities, churches, employers' associations and labor, industrial and women's organizations everywhere in the United States and also in a number of foreign countries. The Women's Bureau displays at the National Sesquicentennial Exposition in Philadelphia in 1926, at the Century of Progress in Chicago in 1935, and the Texas Centennial Exposition in 1936 were planned by Miss Robinson.

The advent of Miss Mary V. Robinson into the ranks of workers in the small, temporary wartime agency of the Women in Industry Service in May, 1920, was practically coincident with its rebirth as a sturdy permanent addition to the bureau family of the Department of Labor a month later. Miss Robinson's duties for the first four years of the new bureau's existence consisted largely in investigating and writing reports on actual industrial conditions. For the next three years she served the Women's Bureau as its editor. One of Miss Robinson's bulletins written at this time analyzes the social and economic problems of women as domestic employes. In 1929 she was made chief of the division of public information, the position she now holds.

Soon after graduation from Barnard Mrs. Barr was sent to Europe by an American woman's organization to set up rehabilitation activities in several European ports for the refugees waiting to come to America. To effectuate this work, the co-operation of communities, themselves suffering the effects of the war, had to be enlisted. This led to her next job, which was the organization of an international conference of women concerned with the problems of social work, in Vienna, in 1923.

Mrs. Barr has since engaged in economic and social research in this country. While in Washington, she has been employed at the NRA and the WPA.

Mrs. Winifred Allen To Marry Nov. 24

The engagement of Mrs. Winifred Cary Allen, widow of Dr. Floyd McJunkin Allen, who was a resident of Washington, and Kent Roberts Mullikin, of Prince Georges County, Md., was announced yesterday by Mrs. Gilbert C. Clarke, of Bartlesville, Okla.

Mrs. Allen is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. H. Irving Cary, of Chicago. Her fiance, the son of Robert E. Lee Mullikin and and Mrs. Ida Roberts Mullikin, is active in Maryland politics and is Democratic floor leader in the State House of Delegates. The wedding will take place in Bartlesville, November 24.

Birthday Observed.

Mr. and Mrs. William Joseph Norton were hosts at a dinner in the blue room of the Shoreham last evening on the occasion of Mrs. Horton's birthday. Guests included Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Pelleteri, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Shepard, Mrs. George W. Graham, George Burke, William Brennan and John A. Healy.

P. E. O. Sisterhood Meeting in Homes

All of the P. E. O. Sisterhood chapters are beginning their season resuming regular meetings at the homes of members. At the meeting of Chapter B last week at the home of Mrs. H. H. McKeever, the president, Mrs. E. H. Pitcher, reported on the St. Louis convention and told of the 1,000 college girls aided by the loan fund last year. October 26 has been set for a luncheon of Chapter B at the home of Mrs. H. L. Hodgkins.

Mrs. Rush B. Lincoln reported on the convention at the first meeting of Chapter H, which was held at the Henderson, and Miss Laura V. D. Hanson, of Chapter F, told of the coronation cruise to England. Mrs. Lincoln will be hostess at the next meeting.

Chapter C was entertained at luncheon at the home of Mrs. Marie N. Brinley at its last meeting; Chapter D at the home of Mrs. Irene B. Edwards, and Chapter A at the home Mrs. A. J. Linn. The next meeting of Chapter D will be with Mrs. Harriet D. Burnside on October 26, and of Chapter A, with Dr. Ella Fales on Wednesday of this week.

P.-T. A. Presents Lecture For D. C. Lunch Fund

In line with its policy of placing the welfare of the child above all other activities, the D. C. Congress of Parents and Teachers is sponsoring an illustrated lecture and travel talk by Tommy Larkin in the auditorium of Central High School tomorrow evening, with a matinee performance at 3:45. The travel talk will take the audience on a tour of the West Indies, and the pictures to be shown have been photographed in natural color. Mr. Larkin has spent the last several years tramping through the West Indies.

The net proceeds of the performance will be contributed to the fund being raised to provide hot lunches for needy children.

THEY DO SAY that everyone has a pet superstition and that of Mrs. George L. Hart, regent of Elizabeth Jackson Chapter of the D. A. R., has been discovered by her sister chapter members. She may walk under a ladder with sang froid and unconcern and think nothing of it when a black cat crosses her path, but when it comes to sitting down with 13 at the table—well, that's different and, courteously but firmly, she will beg to be excused.

Monday Mrs. Hart entertained members of her chapter at luncheon. By 1 o'clock an even dozen had arrived, and, from every indication, the luncheon was ready to be served. The hostess, however, engaged her guests in conversation and made trips to the door now and again, to look searchingly down the street. At 1:30 o'clock she confessed she had waited, hoping another guest might come so there would not be 13 at the table. The other 12 suggested waiting a little longer, but no one else arrived. Finally, at 1:45, Mrs. Hart seated her guests at a big, round mahogany table which had belonged to her grandmother, while she sat alone at a small table in the corner.

After luncheon Mrs. Roy G. Bowker gave a talk on D. A. R. approved schools, with particular attention directed to the Tamassee School in the mountains of South Carolina. She told of the fine accomplishments of this institution in behalf of the mountain people and recounted the experience of a young mountain girl who hitchhiked to the school carrying a small bundle containing all her worldly goods. She was taken in, though the enrollment had already reached capacity, made an able student and later became a poet of considerable depth and feeling.

The chapter voted to aid the school and the regent expressed the hope that every member would make a contribution this year toward its maintenance.

FOUR FORMER TVA workers, two of them alumni of the University of Chicago, will speak Sunday night at first fall meeting of the Washington alumni group whose membership is about 500. The program will follow a supper at 6:30 at the A. A. U. W. clubhouse. There will be movies showing the TVA at work and talks will be by Marie White, now with the Department of Labor, on "The Town of Norris;" William C. Bowen, now with the Social Security Board, on "Personnel Policies;" Kenneth A. Rouse, president of the association, who is now with the A. B. Dick Co., on "Policing the Norris Dam" and Ralph Hogan, the other alumnus, on "The Educational Program."

Mr. Rouse, class of 1928, was captain of the football team and all-American center. Mr. Hogan received his S. B. in '15, his A. M. in '16 and his Ph. D. in '27. He was 15 years in China, engaged in vocational education work for Y. M. C. A. before coming to the TVA. He is now adviser on technical and field training for the Social Security Board.

MRS. HARVEY W. WILEY, president of the Women's City Club and a leader in many other organizations in the District, has been named chairman of the women's reception committee for the Association of Dairy, Food and Drug Officials, which will have its annual meeting here October 26 to 29 at the Raleigh Hotel. Wives of local officials will assist in arranging entertainment of the visitors.

Thursday morning, they will go to Mount Vernon and Arlington with luncheon at the A. A. U. W. at noon and a visit in the afternoon to the Cathedral of St. Peter and St. Paul. A tour of Capitol Hill is scheduled for Wednesday morning.

Club Told Aim Of Chest Drive

The Community Chest and its function in providing support for relief, constructive and protective agencies in the city, was discussed by the Rev. Allen A. Stockdale, of the First Congregational Church, yesterday afternoon in an address before the Soroptimist Club at its weekly luncheon in the Willard Hotel. The Community Chest is like a pumping station, he said, which fills the reservoir with money that flows out to supply the different agencies.

He enumerated the various organizations included in the Chest, described their widely different services to the community, and pointed out the advantage of offering the citizens one opportunity to contribute generously to all instead of having countless separate appeals through the year.

Mrs. Edith Hoffman Jones and Howard Moore, of the Columbia Light Opera Company, presented a group of vocal duets with Mrs. Jewell Downs as accompanist. Miss Daisy Reed, the club president, presided and Mrs. Elizabeth Proctor, of Seattle, was introduced as guest at the luncheon.

Mrs. Nell Hysong, past president of the club, who was to have entertained the members at an oyster roast at her beach home on Sunday, announced the party had been postponed to a later date.

Visitors Feted.

Mrs. O. B. Taylor, wife of Judge Taylor, and Mrs. William C. Kirkpatrick entertained at luncheon at the Shoreham yesterday in honor os visitors from out of town who have accompanied their husbands to Washington for the regional council convention of the HOLC. The visitors included Mrs. William E. Dever, of Chicago; Mrs. F. W. Armstrong, of Detroit; Mrs. A. M. Frazier and Miss Margaret Frazier, of Dallas, Tex.

Realty's Share Of Tax Burden Off to 56 Pct.

This is the fifth of a series of articles by members of the District tax committee on the major sources of new revenue under consideration.

By Fred D. Allen,
District Tax Assessor.

Congress at its last session raised the District tax rate on realty and tangible personal property from $1.50 to $1.75, thus increasing substantially the tax burden on real estate. This 25-cent tax increase will expire June 30, 1938, unless renewed by Congress or the Commissioners.

Before the $9,000,000 tax bill was enacted into law, real estate accounted for well over half of the general fund revenue upon which the city government operates.

The general fund collections for the last fiscal year, 1937, amounted to $29,906,000, of which $17,489,000 represented collections from the tax on real estate. Real estate, therefore, in that year contributed 58 per cent of the total revenue of the general fund.

Realty's Share Declines.

For the current fiscal year the estimated general revenue fund has risen to $36,130,000 due to the new tax act. The share of the real estate payments, while numerically greater, will fall in proportion to approximately 56 per cent.

In addition to the general fund revenue made up of real estate and personal property taxes, license fees, permits, etc., the District also receives revenue from the 2-cent tax on gasoline and water rents. Both of these funds, however, are maintained in accounts separate from the general fund and are restricted in their expenditure. The gas tax revenue is limited to street and bridge maintenance and construction, while the water fund is used only for operation and enlargement of the water system.

The tax study now being made by the Commissioners relates only to general fund revenue; hence the real estate taxes should be considered only in relation to that.

The assessment records of taxable property for the present fiscal year 1938 show that the valuation of land is $480,420,638 and that the valuation of improvements is $690,910,283, which gives a total valuation of both land and improvements of $1,171,330,921. As the rate of $1.75, fixed by Congress for the fiscal year 1938, this will produce a tax return of $20,498,552.10.

The figures given above show an increase over the fiscal year 1937 of $925,374 on land and $25,948,394 on improvements, or a total increase in valuation charged against taxable property for the fiscal year 1938 over 1937 of $26,873,768.

The increase in taxes is due both to the change in rate and the increase in value of both land and improvements for 1938.

The total tax increase for 1938 amounts to $3,331,694.80. Of this $470,290.94 is due to the increased valuation of taxable property and $2,861,403.86 is due to the 25-cent per $100 increase in the tax rate.

Exempt Property Increasing.

The records also show that by reason of purchase or otherwise by the United States, the District of Columbia, by educational and other institutions, there has been an increase in the value of exempt property for 1938, as follows:

The value of United States property has been increased $380,926 by land purchases only.

The value of property exempted for charitable, educational and religious purposes has been increased $691,512, including both land and buildings.

The total of the above additions to exempt property holdings, amounting in value to $1,190,614, has resulted in the withdrawal and redemption of a similar amount from the taxable property roll.

As of July 1, 1937, our records show the value of real property in the District of Columbia to be $1,983,454,656, listed as follows:

Taxable property	$1,171,330,921
United States property	649,659,593
District of Columbia property	62,357,085
Educational and all other exempt property	100,107,057

Beauticians Favor 2 Lipsticks, Dark and Light, for 'Allure'

Bride Needs Lip Rouge and Eye Shadow but Blushing Should Take Care of Cheeks, Is Consensus at Fashion Revue.

The minister may object to a bride wearing lipstick, but beauticians do not. In fact, they advocate use of two lipsticks, first a light shade and then a dark one to provide the proper allure.

Granted that beauty operators and cosmetic manufacturers are not exactly unbiased in this question of bridal make-up, they nevertheless present a good case for their side. The question came up at the fashion revue held last night at the Raleigh Hotel in connection with the fifth annual Washington Beauty and Style Show.

Hair styles at the show were by Ivan and Fred Lang, of New York. Gowns were by the Hecht Co. The show itself, which was attended by several hundred beauty operators, was managed by George Miller, of the Union Barber & Supply, Inc., which stages the event each year.

According to Gail, editor of the magazine Beauty Culture, pale lips make a bride look anemic and sickly. "If she's worn lipstick for 5 or 10 or 15 years, depending on her age, she's going to feel wan and self-conscious without it on her wedding day," she believes. Eye shadow also is important, to give brilliance and sparkle to the eyes and offset the shadow cast by the veil.

Rouge is another matter, however. "I still go for the traditional blushing bride. She will have enough natural coloring on the big day so that she won't need rouge. She should look demure and a little wistful anyway, and pale cheeks help create this illusion."

Bridesmaids, on the other hand, may look as gay and frivolous as they want. After all they have to make an impression on the ushers.

The conversation shifted to the most famous bride of the year—Wallis Warfield. "The beauty profession," said Gail, "would love to have Wally change her coiffure. She is not only the most talked of, but probably the best dressed woman in the world. She could do a lot for the third largest industry in the United States if she would go in for a few curls and puffs."

The Duchess of Windsor's center part and two dips have been seen for years and years. The style is all right for her, of course, because she can admit her age and get away with it. But the average woman of 40 needs a little more dash in her coiffure.

"But then, why should she bother?" she concluded. "Why should any woman go in for curls if she can get a king with a center part and two dips?"

Palmisano Asks Levy Limited To D.C. Natives

House Group Head Turns on Privilege Tax at Plaint From Baltimore.

The business privilege tax got another jolt yesterday, this time from Chairman Palmisano of the House District Committee, as the District tax committee decided to ask further instructions from city commissioners before proceeding to draft a new tax program.

Palmisano, complaining that some of his constituents in Baltimore had been forced to file a gross receipts tax return, called the business privilege tax "cockeyed" and said he would oppose its renewal at next session of Congress.

Significance of Palmisano's outburst is that his committee was responsible for enactment of the tax.

Palmisano said he will sponsor a "modified" income tax as a substitute. This levy would be restricted, in effect, to native Washingtonians who don't work for the Federal Government.

District officials explained that such a tax would produce insufficient revenue and would be decidedly unfair to local business and professional men. They insist that if the District is to have an income tax it should be imposed on all residents who earn their incomes in Washington.

The District tax committee has arranged a conference with the Commissioners for Saturday morning. It has prepared a series of charts and statistical tables projecting municipal revenues and expenditures for the next seven years. A list of possible taxes to fill this gap also has been prepared.

Before going further, the committee decided it would ask advice from the Commissioners as to what new taxes they would consider and what they would reject outright.

Checkers Tournament Scheduled for Tonight

Winners and runners-up of the Community Center city-wide checkers tournament will meet in the Central High gymnasium tonight at 8.

Powell, Jefferson, Langley, Roosevelt and Wilson Boys Clubs are sending their champion players to the tournament, primed to meet competitors from the other clubs and entrants from all over the city.

Prizes will be awarded to the winners from among the 500 entrants of the boys' clubs alone.

Finer Taste Wins
STATE RECORDS* TELL THE STORY

THE swing to blended whiskies started back in July, 1935. Ever since, blends have steadily gained. But in spite of this fast growth of blended whiskies, Seagram's Crowns for a period of 19 months actually outsold the combined total of all blended whiskies in the same price class. Think! All of them put together didn't equal the sale of Seagram's Crowns in all the states which publish records! It's a triumph for skillful blending—a tribute to finer taste. Try Crowns yourself. Discover the pleasure of better tasting whiskey.

Over the Coffee

By Harlan Miller

Because I* am still a sensitive yokel from the hinterland, unpolished by my ten weeks residence in the Capital, I am a little hurt by the verdict of my learned and urbane colleague, Franklyn Waltman, back from a choo-choo ride with the President, that the "provincial mind" is more prevalent in the West than in the East.

* * *

He's been out there since I have, and after his years on the Hill I suppose he's a pretty fair judge of the provincial mind . . . Now, after growing up on the prairies, where the deer and the antelope play, and nibble the wild gardenials and orchids right off your log cabin walls, I confess my most unforgettable encounter with the provincial mind goes back to a year spent in Boston.

* * *

There I suffered the same anguish that Dr. Waltman suffered in the West, from the difficulty of finding out what was going on in the rest of the world. . . . If it didn't happen east of the Hudson and north of Long Island Sound, if it didn't affect the Down Easter's purse, it was of small moment in New England, which is farther east than Washington.

To the constituents of the late Senator Lodge a shoe factory in Fall River or a woolen mill in Worcester was vastly more important than the League of Nations . . . A juicy protective tariff was as full of sex appeal to them as a big dam to an Oregonian or a fat "soil conservation" check to an Iowan.

* * *

I was young and tender in those days, and the Bostonian's indifference to the fortunes of the Indians and sodbusters and the bison puzzled me no end . . . Were shoes and woolens so much more fascinating?

Since then the buffetings of journalism have left me skeptical, and when I am confronted by such a puzzle I ask myself:

"Where's the pay-off?"

Or, in more elegant lingo, "Who does what to who and who gets paid?"

* * *

This has smoothed from my brow many a perplexity . . . When I am forced to ask myself "Why has the East so much more of the 'national viewpoint' and the 'international viewpoint' than the West," a still small voice replies, with a rich Western drawl:

"Because the East is in the business of handling certain national and international chores for the rest of the Republic, at a small but nourishing profit."

This is, naturally, as it should be . . . It is reassuring to some Western Paul Bunyan, rolling off his innerspring mattress at 4 a. m. to extract from a thousand cows the milk which may reach the Easterner in the form of chocolate eclairs or frozen Alaskas, to realize that his Eastern pals are still up burning the midnight Mazdas brooding over the national and international situations . . . The Westerner wants these chores handled intelligently and competently, so he can wallow comfortably in his provincialism and play 18 holes of golf a day.

It is barely possible that a too rapt cultivation of the national and international viewpoint brings on an attack of Olympian super-provincialism, of which I begin to detect traces in certain Washington circles . . . This is a blissful realm in which intricate matters of statecraft, affecting constitutions and supreme courts, come to have an esoteric beauty superior to the headache of a poor dumb farmer with a mortgage he can't pay off or with a daughter who wants a convertible coupe.

* * *

Out of the goodness of their oversize hearts some Westerners are actually willing to relieve the East of the danger of such super-provincialism, and of part of the burden of nursing and cherishing day and night the national and international viewpoint, especially if the Easterners will help with the plowing and hoeing . . .

* * *

That's the Westerner's slant which I shall no doubt gradually slough off, until by this time next year I shall be as fatigued by the provincialism of the West as the next guy . . . After all, in this anthropomorphic and omphalopsychic world a man's own navel is the center of the universe; where he lives is Cosmopolis, and around the corner provincialism begins. (I remember how I used to return to my adobe hut from trips to New York and write pie about the provincialism of New York.)

Christ Showed Way to Peace, Newsman Says

Sir Willmott Lewis, Washington correspondent for the London Times, said last night the answer to the problems of the modern world is "implicit in the concepts of democracy and in the teachings of Christ," in a speech at the first fall dinner of the Laymen's League, Episcopal Church of the Epiphany, 1317 G street northwest.

Sir Wilmott discussed the conflict between material progress, tending toward submersion of the individual, and the development of civilization, whose end "is the harmonious development of the individual."

"Through the rise of the scientific revolution, through the past century and into the present, it has become increasingly apparent that the life of the individual, under the conditions set up by science, depends on the loyal and efficient performance of certain duties by other persons.

"There has come a larger intrusion of collective activity with the passage of every year. Out of this communism, fascism and totalitarianism have risen to deny the assertion of the church that the individual is all-precious to God. They deny the principle of democracy that the essential dignity of the human being is the only basis on which a just government could be founded.

"These are challenges against something that has become the very staff of our lives, democracy and the Christian faith.

"Yet how are we to make the adjustment between material progress and the development of the individual.

"I believe the answer is implicit in our religious and political faith, in the principle of service to others inherent alike in Christianity and democracy."

Death Driver Held As He Forgets Fib He Taught Riders

Lacey E. Morelock rehearsed four witnesses in a story intended, police said, to relieve him from suspicion in a traffic death, and then forgot his own lines. The result:

Morelock, 29, of the 200 block of Fourteenth street northeast, was being held last night for action of the coroner's jury in the death of Matthew J. Cusack Tuesday night, together with four colored men, three of whom, according to police, have house-breaking or larceny records. Police said Morelock made this statement:

He took Cusack, 60 years old and living at 1931 Sixteenth street northwest, to Emergency Hospital, telling a physician who pronounced the man dead that he had found him lying in the street.

Actually, he admitted, his truck struck the man at John Marshall place and Pennsylvania avenue, but instead of going directly to the hospital he drove about a block from the scene and instructed each of his four passengers on how to answer questions about the manner of Cusack's "finding."

U.S.-D.C.-Va. Lines Marked To Aid Police

Age-Old Boundary Spat Crops Up in Law Enforcement.

The boundary puzzle, instigated more than three centuries ago by King Charles when he gave Maryland to the Calverts, asserted itself anew yesterday as motorists encountered a number of white lines on the Mount Vernon Memorial highway and on route 1.

U. S. park police, in ordering the boundaries to be marked, hope thereby to clarify their patrolling tasks, but even their chief, Capt. Patrick J. Carroll, was pessimistic last night as to the results.

"Maybe," he said, "it won't do any good at all."

If it is any consolation, he can rest assured that streaks of whitewash cutting the Mount Vernon boulevard in three places and old No. 1 in two, can't make matters worse. The puzzle is about as bad as it can get, Virginia, D. C. and Federal officials admit.

Here Is the Jumble.

The latest development is this: The office of the National Capital Parks, Federal unit which polices the Memorial Highway, marks of "no man's land" so that the motorist will know when he is in Virginia, the District or the United States.

The convenience—if any—is for park policemen chasing reckless drivers. Whether the prisoner shall be haled into District Police Court, before a U. S. commissioner or before Arlington authorities depends upon the strip in which he was collared.

As one parks official explained: "When you hit Mount Vernon boulevard, after crossing Memorial Bridge, you are on United States property in Virginia until you reach the white boundary line near railroad bridge.

Too Much for Court.

There are two more of the deadlines on No. 1. One is this side of Columbia pike intersection and the other is about 100 yards closer to Highway Bridge.

Leaving the bridge for Alexandria, you are traveling on United States property in Virginia until you reach the first line. The next 100 yards finds you back in the District—after you thought you'd left it behind—and when you pass the second line you are in Virginia.

Congress named a commission a few years ago to settle the controversy, something which the Supreme Court has tried several times to do but in vain, but the subsequent report eventually was pigeonholed. Virginia ratified the commission's findings, but on Capitol Hill they were accused of being too favorable to the State and altogether distasteful to the Federal Government.

Legation Apartments Fire Quickly Quenched

Fire broke out in the basement of the Legation Apartments at 5420 Connecticut avenue last night, but was extinguished by firemen before tenants were driven by smoke into the street. The apartment management said the blaze started in a pile of newspapers in the apartment storeroom.

Mr. Marshall Takes N.Y.Ave. Church Pulpit

The Rev. Peter Marshall, only 35, who came to America ten years ago an unknown and friendless immigrant, last night was installed as pastor of the historic New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, at which Lincoln and other Presidents have worshiped.

The young man, who had worked in the steel mills of his native Scotland as a mechanical engineer, came to this country with the single purpose of entering the ministry. After the service last night he told how he had been "directed" to Birmingham, Ala., where he knew no one. But it was at the First Presbyterian Church of Birmingham that he made the friends who assisted him to enter Columbia Theological Seminary at Decatur, Ga. To these friends, he said, he "owes everything."

The installation ceremonies were conducted by the Rev. Dr. Freeley Rohrer, moderator of the synod. The Rev. Mr. Marshall pledged his desire "to promote the glory of God." On its part the congregation promised "to receive the word of truth from him with meekness and love."

The Rev. Dr. Albert J. McCartney, minister of the Covenant-First Presbyterian Church, preached, declaring in one part of his sermon that the great need is "not so much for better housing as for better men and women to inhabit the houses that we have—not for resettlement, but for regeneration." In his prayer of installation, the Dev. Dr. James H. Taylor, minister of the Central Presbyterian Church, asked that the young pastor might "speak to the people and the city with that certitude that will bring conviction to the many wayward spirits, peace to many anxious minds."

After the Rev. Mr. Marshall's father-in-law, the Rev. John A. Wood, of Keyser, W. Va., had delivered the prescribed charge to the pastor, and the Rev. Dr. Albert Evans, the charge to the congregation, and the congregation had sung "Blessed Be The Tie That Binds," the Rev. Mr. Marshall took the rostrum. He prayed for blessing on himself and his parishoners "in our work by day and in our homes by night."

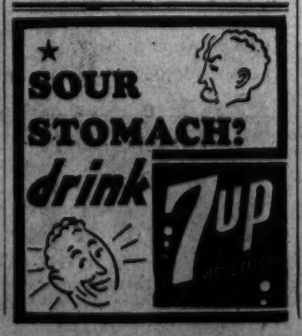
H.S. Wender Heads Southwest Group

Harry S. Wender was elected president of the Southwest Citizens Association last night, succeeding Jacob M. Schaffer, head of the group for the last ten years, in a meeting at the Fourth Precinct Police Station.

Schaffer, who is moving out of Southwest Washington, was unable to accept nomination for the position. Other officers elected were Robert Marshall, vice president; Bessie Parrish, recording secretary; J. H. Snyder, corresponding secretary; R. E. Robinson, treasurer, and J. Byrd Cantwell, sergeant at arms. Hugh S. Smith and Wender were named delegates to the federation.

The group adopted a resolution asking that appointment of members of the Board of Education continue to be made by the Supreme Court, and not by the District Commissioners.



2 Identified In Series of 3 D. C. Holdups

In a headquarters line-up a huge, faultlessly dressed white man and a young colored man were identified last night as principals in the "perfect" holdup of a drug store in the fashionable Connecticut avenue shopping district and the $2,000 robbery of a Peoples Drug Co. runner.

Howard Otto Kensley, 37, taller than the department's tallest detective, heard a cigar-counter clerk, police said, name him as the bandit who operated so smoothly in the holdup of a Peoples Drug Store across Connecticut avenue from the Mayflower Hotel that not one of its 50 patrons was aware of the crime.

The clerk was Kenneth Boltinghouse, 25, who said the bandit forced him to surrender $50 from a cash register. Police said Kensley admitted the holdup.

Colored Man Identified.

A few minutes later a group of colored men was brought in and one of them, named by police as Howard Campbell, 27, of 1749 T street northwest, was identified by William B. Matthews, 45, also colored, of 1829 Twelfth street northwest, as the man who knocked him from his bicycle at Third street and Florida avenue last week and then snatched a money bag containing $2,000 in bills and change.

George Ross, 1112 E street northwest, another witness, pointed to Kensley, police said, as the man he saw running from the Bond Liquor Store in the 700 block of Fourteenth street northwest, following a robbery yesterday morning.

Captured at Tailor's.

Two hours later Kensley walked into a tailor shop in the 500 block of Ninth street northwest and asked to have his suit pressed. He removed his coat and trousers and calmly took from one of his pockets, police said, a revolver.

While an assistant was pressing Kensley's clothes, the tailor phoned police and a few minutes later while the suspect was without pants Privates George Weaver and F. E. Nolan made the arrest.

Neither Kensely nor Campbell has been charged. Police said they would be questioned in connection with other crimes.

Milton Weissman, 30, of 5433 Thirty-first street northwest, said a man over six feet tall entered the Fourteenth street liquor store a few minutes after he opened the store and, whipping out a revolver, demanded to be shown where the money was. He took all the currency, which Weissman said amounted to $200.

In other holdups yesterday, Chester Jordan, employe of a gas station at Third and M streets southeast, was robbed of $20 by two colored men, and Chester Barber, a taxi driver, surrendered $2.85 to a colored passenger who held a knife against his back.

Dahlgren Citizens Ask Tax Decrease

Reduction of the District property tax and a permanent tax limit of $40,000,000 were urged last night in resolutions adopted by the Dahlgren Terrace Citizens Association, meeting in the Crosby Noyes School.

Their resolution on the property tax asked that the present rate of $17.50 per $1,000 be reduced to the old level of $15 per $1,000 before any other changes in taxes now effective in the District.

The group also planned to request the Federation of Citizens Asoications to study the entire fiscal relation between the District and the Federal Government, and the drawing up of budgets in the municipal departments.

The association announced it would oppose any bond issue or borrowing as a method of raising money, and opposed any change in the present system of appointing members of the Board of Education.

Maj. Brown Better.

A Queen and $35,000 Worth of Sable

All that loveliness about the throat of Miss Geraldine Novak is sable and represents an investment of $35,000. "Queen of National Fur Week," Miss Novak reached Washington yesterday.

National 'Fur Queen' to Wear $35,000 Sable to White House

Miss Geraldine Novak, New York City show girl who has been chosen "Queen of National Fur Week," arrived in Washington yesterday with $50,000 worth of sable and ermine. Miss Novak is pretty enticing herself, it might be added.

She will be received at the White House this morning at 11:30 o'clock, and is having difficulty deciding whether she will wear the $35,000 sable coat or the $15,000 ermine one. Even without a coat, the tall, blue-eyed brunette would be sure to make an impression, however.

She was one of 50 contestants for the title of fur queen. The committee which voted to give her the title included consuls from important fur-producing countries and such celebrities as Elissa Landi, Michael Bartlett, Ilka Chase and Henry Fonda.

A performer at the International Casino in New York, Miss Novak would have you know that she also goes in for swimming and tennis, in addition to writing poetry. Her ambition is to become a designer of women's clothes.

The contestants were judged on their carriage, poise, grace and ability to wear furs. In choosing Miss Novak, the committee commended her "piquance, sophistication and exotic beauty." She is 21 years old.

National Fur Week will be observed by the fur industry the week of November 8.

Citizens Urge Central Body To Seek Ballot

The fight for District suffrage again was brought to the fore last night as members of the Sixteenth Street Highlands Association voted to request every civic organization in the city to appoint delegates to a central committee to draft representation plans for Washingtonians.

Other new officers elected were H. Haviland, treasurer, and Arthur E. Cook, delegate to the Federation of Citizens Associations of the District. Mildred Green, secretary, was re-elected as was Dr. J. T. Turner, delegate to the federation.

Adopting a resolution opposing the business privilege tax, the association recommended in its stead a general sales tax. Members also passed a resolution requesting Commissioners that 1939 esetimates not exceed the present budget.

D. C. Woman Sentenced For Reckless Driving

Hazel B. Petrello, of 1309 M street northwest, principal figure in what police called one of the wildest chases in traffic history, was sentenced to 30 days on two charges of reckless driving by Judge Robert Newman in Traffic Court yesterday. Miss Petrello also was fined $15 on a charge of speeding. The judge took her personal bond on charges of leaving after colliding and operating on an expired permit.

City School Enrollment Exceeds 1936

For the first time this years members of the Board of Education yesterday heard that attendance in Washington's public schools now tops last year's enrollment.

There were 93,047 pupils in classes last Thursday and that is 266 more than were in school at the mid-October date a year ago, First Assistant Superintendent Robert L. Haycock reported.

Late school arrivals last week raised the total attendance to what school officials yesterday described as "normal." School enrollment usually reaches its peak during November.

Board members also received Superintendent Frank Ballou's recommendations for the promotion of five school principals and teachers. The promotions, all approved, were for: Mrs. B. B. Butcher, Smothers School principal, to the position of administrative principal at Lovejoy School; Mrs. Edna S. Browne, Syphax School principal, to become administrative principal at Bowen; Mrs. R. G. Savoy, who was transferred from the principalship of Reno School to that of the Smothers School; Mrs. E. L. Hunton, from teacher at Morgan-Wilson School, to be principal of Syphax School, and Mrs. B. I. Wade, Ambush-Smallwood School teacher, who becomes principal at Reno.

The board approved a proposed course of study for the teaching of the effects of alcohol and narcotics in junior high schools, and received a similar one from administration officials to be introduced in senior high schools. A course of study for elementary pupils was approved several weeks ago.

Completed construction work on the new wing of the Alice Deal Junior High School in Chevy Chase was approved.

The District of Columbia Tuberculosis Association was granted permission to conduct an essay contest and other activities connected with the annual Christmas Seal drive, to conduct tuberculin tests among senior high school students, and to arrange a health education institute for administrators and teachers in public schools.

Civic Unit Opposes D. C. Bond Issue

Branding any plan to create a bonded indebtedness for the District as "unnecessary, undesirable and an invitation to extravagance," the Chevy Chase Citizens Association last night went on record as opposing any bond issue here.

Acting on a report of a special committee on taxes, the association recommended that the entire revenue system of the District be revamped to provide a more equitable distribution of the tax burden.

Attacking the business privilege tax, the resolutions asked for a substitute business license tax and opposed any budget increase in 1939 over 1938.

18 WASHINGTON: THURSDAY, OCTOBER 21, 1937 X*

This Morning

Maj. Miller Explains Ducat Situation.

By Shirley Povich.

It seems that this department was leading with its chin the other day when it was set forth here that the three-man District Boxing Commission demanded and received 42 tax-free tickets for each of Promoter Joe Turner's boxing shows. Anyway, I have just been socked with a fistful of facts and figures slung by Heinie Miller, Commission Secretary.

POVICH.

Sure, the District Boxing Commission does get 42 tickets for each of Turner's shows, Miller says, but that bare statement creates the wrong impression, he adds. And, moreover, the tickets are not tax free. The commission would have you know, and I am pleased to co-operate, that the 42 tickets are distributed in this wise:

* * * *

Very proud are Secretary Miller and the Commissioners themselves of the workings of the Washington Commission, and Miller would have you bear in mind that the only reward of the D. C. Boxing Commissioners are a few tickets to the fights. They serve without pay, hold numerous meetings which take much of their time and altogether are gratuitous workers.

* * * *

Despite the fact that the District Commission takes only 5 per cent of the gate receipts in contrast to the 10 per cent "take" in most States, Miller points with pride that the Washington referees, judges, doctors, inspectors and other officials, are higher paid than those of any other State. And that, whereas other sections tax the promoters as much as $500 for an operating license, the District fee is only 25 bucks.

* * * *

Altogether, it is a very revealing fistful of data that Secretary Miller has provided your correspondent. There is no longer any doubt as to how much District referees are paid. Miller states that they get $12.50 for working the preliminaries and 10 per cent of the commission's 5 per cent "take" for officiating in the main bouts.

* * * *

So entirely solicitous of the welfare of boxing in this community is the commission that it relieves the promoter of all burden of paying the referee and other officials, and to make it easier on contestants, seconds and managers, the license fees in Washington are lower than those of any other section, Miller proudly declares.

* * * *

It is Miller's boast that the records of the District commission are an open book to any who would investigate them, and that would seem to be true in the light of his invitation to this department to toddle down to the commission office and look 'em over.

* * * *

This fellow Miller, incidentally, is no Johnny-come-lately to the prize fight business, and there is evidence that the Commissioners lean heavily on his knowledge of the industry, gleaned from 30 years as a fighter, matchmaker and promoter. It was Miller who held out for the present "foul" rule and the 8-ounce gloves when others were clamoring for a "no-foul" rule and lighter gloves.

* * * *

There was much criticism when the District commission failed to adopt the New York "no-foul" rule, and the criticism seemed well founded when three bouts in succession ended in fouls, but the wisdom of Miller's rule has since been borne out. District fights have produced only seven foul endings since April, 1934, which is some kind of a record.

* * * *

There was loud bleating, too, when the eight-ounce gloves were adopted, with the bloodthirsty critics declaring that there would be no knockouts in the District. Miller at the time maintained that a properly delivered blow with an eight-ounce glove was entirely as effective as the same blow with a six-ounce mitt and he seems to be correct. Twenty-five per cent of the District's bouts since April, 1934, have ended in knockouts and fighters here are not taking the chance of being cut up so easily.

* * * *

What else is there to say to the Commission or about it except "Nice going!"

Somebody, it seems, made a mistake, and I wouldn't be surprised if it were this department. At least I am so informed by a long-distance telephone call from Charlottesville, Va., where the folks did not like this column's crack about Coach Frank Murray's refusal to shake hands with Coach Frank Dobson, of Maryland, after the game last Saturday.

* * * *

Not only did Coach Murray shake the hand of Coach Dobson, I am told, but he and other University officials greeted the Maryland coach warmly, it is stated. That, of course, differs from the story as I heard it, but I prefer to believe my Virginia friends. And am awful sorry if anybody got buried.

Army Team AndBelgians To Compete

Events Start at 10:30 a. m. at Meadowbrook, Continue All Day.

The prize horseflesh of two nations—Belgium and the United States—will take the show ring today beneath riders carefully picked from the military, and Washington's third annual Inter-American Horse Show will begin its three-day maneuvers.

Horse-conscious Washington will provide a glittering audience for the proceedings scheduled to start at the Meadowbrook course on the East-West highway at 10:30 this morning. The list of patrons and patronesses comprises a complete cross-index of Washington's diplomatic, legislative and social life. Box holders and officials of the competition are ultraselect. And so are the horses and riders.

For the first time, the Belgian army team will be challenging in the Inter-American show. The Europeans will pit a four-man, four-horse team against the United States Army's quartet of horses and riders in the international military competition, which is the high spot of the show.

The international military events have been surrounded on the three-day program with a list of competitions that will find more than 400 of the Nation's cleverest show horses competing in supplementary events. One military-class event will be held each day of the show, leading up to the grand climax on Saturday afternoon.

Today's proceedings have been labeled "Army Day," with the first of the military competitions scheduled for 4 p. m. In full uniform, the Belgian and American officers will send their mounts over course F. The four horses will jump separately and the best three scores of each team will count in the final judging that will be rendered on Saturday.

Military Show On.

The program will open this morning with the Class 3, Division B, event which has drawn 15 entries, in which United States Army team and Fort Myer Horse Show team predominate. But Belgium will be represented with two mounts.

The grand opening ceremony is scheduled for 1:45 p. m. when the Third Cavalry Mounted Band leads the mounted escort into the enclosure. A hunter class, a jumping class, a fox hounds exhibition, a dressage event, the international military event and a hunt teams class will complete the opening day's program.

Ibrahim in a Duel.

Chief interest attaches today to the duel between the American Army's veteran Dakota, star of previous Inter-American shows, and Ibrahim, pride of the Belgium team. Ibrahim will make an earlier appearance in the show before competing in the military class. He is one of 16 entries in the third event on the afternoon program—the jumping class for civilians and offers in which the jumps will not exceed 4 feet.

The Belgians who, unlike the American officers, own their own mounts, will be represented by Capt. Henri de Menten de Horne, team captain, and by Lieuts. Paul Mondron, Ides an Strdonck and Ferdinand Poswick.

The United States Army team will let its hopes ride with Capt. Milo H. Matteson, Lieut. Franklyn Wing, jr.; Capt. Royce Drake, Lieut. Scott Sanford and Lieut. W. E. S. Wright.

From high diplomatic and military ranks the judges have been chosen for all events. The military class judges will be Count Jerzy Potocki, Ambassador of Poland; Senor Colon Alfar, Ambassador of Ecuador; Maj. Gen. Leon B. Kromer, chief of cavalry, United States Army, and Lieut. Col. Emmanuel Lombard, French Military Attache.

Pride of Belgian Army Shows Here Today

Pro-Senior To Coleman, Gene Larkin

By Merrell W. Whittlesey.

Gene Larkin, Woodmont professional, returned to the course where he served his pro links apprenticeship, Chevy Chase, and paired with Gen. F. W. Coleman to win the Gen. H. P. McCain senior-pro tournament yesterday with an aggregate net score of 143. Gen. Coleman scored 84 while Larkin played the championship layout in 71 strokes low for the day, and the duo deducted a 10 handicap.

In a two-way tie for second place was a host pair, Robert Stead, jr., and Bob Barnett with a net of 146, duplicated by Dr. T. M. Foley and Al Houghton, the Old Point Comfort, Va., professional, who continued his money-winning spree in the local tourneys.

George Diffenbaugh, Indian Spring, completed the prize list by taking the low score for professionals who finished out of the money with a 72, three over par. Larkin and Gen. Coleman won gold medals donated by Gen. McCain, sponsor of the event. It was for senior members of the host club who played with pros of District and nearby clubs, although several simon-pures were pressed into service.

Stead, a member of the host club's championship team, paced the seniors with a 79 and added to Barnett's 74 grossed 153. A seven handicap netted the 146 total. Houghton was 7, like Diffenbaugh, while his partner, Dr. Foley, scored

Quinn Allows O'Hara 'Press' Within Track

Governor Removes Ban on Star-Tribune; Racing Still Prohibited.

By the Associated Press.

Providence, R. I., Oct. 20.—Military barriers keeping representatives of the Providence Star-Tribune from rich Narragansett Race Track were lowered today after Gov. Robert E. Quinn affirmed his belief in freedom of the press.

Adj. Gen. Herbert R. Dean, of the Rhode Island National Guard, ordered Capt. Harold J. Pearson, commanding 65 Guardsmen who are enforcing Gov. Quinn's martial law edict at the track, to admit all press representatives "upon proper identification."

The general's order was the high spot of a bleak wet day at the track, where Guardsmen erected nine tents and prepared to hold their places—as Gov. Quin said—"as long as necesary." Torrential rains poured tonight on the sentries.

Gen. Dean ejected a Star-Tribune reporter from the track Monday, second day of martial law which marked another phase in the battle between Gov. Quinn and Walter E. O'Hara, track president and managing director, who also is publisher of the Star-Tribune. The Governor said there would be no racing at Narragansett this fall as long as O'Hara remained its chief.

Gov. Quinn, in a press conference, declared he did not know of the instructions barring the paper's representatives from the track before it was given Monday. He declared he believed fully in freedom of the press and had had nothing to do with the order.

Eugene Moriarty, managing editor of the Star-Tribune, said he was pleased to learn Gen. Dean "has taken cognizance of the widespread public indignation occasioned by his action in barring Star-Tribune reporters from Narragansett Park.

"It is gratifying to know that the spirit of dictatorship now so evident in Rhode Island will not affect the freedom of the press."

Larry Kelley Signs to Play Pro Football

By the Associated Press.

Boston, Oct. 20.—The Boston Shamrocks, of the American Professional Football League, today announced it had signed "Larry the Great" Kelley, former Yale star, and that he would make his professional debut here Sunday against the Pittsburgh Americans.

Tom Sheehan, publicity representative of the club, said Kelley's salary would not be made public. He asserted Kelley would commute by plane from Hightstown, N. J., where he now is coaching Peddie Institute's football team.

Kelley will not have to practice with the Shamrocks, Sheehan said, but merely play in scheduled games.

Sheehan said Kelley was under contract for one game, with an option on his services for the other games on this season's schedule.

"And, of course," Sheehan added, "we shall exercise that option, which means he will play for the Shamrocks for the rest of the season."

Central Will Meet Roosevelt Today

The Central-Roosevelt interhigh school football game, postponed by rain Tuesday, will be played in the Central Stadium this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. This decision was reached yesterday when Larry Hoover, sr., principal of Central, conferred with Miss May Bradshaw, principal of Roosevelt.

3,000 Fans Brave Rain For Contest

By Jack Munhall.

An alert Eastern High eleven led by Capt. Al Kidwell sprang the biggest scholastic upset of the season yesterday in the Eastern Stadium by slushing to a 13-0 victory over a heretofore unbeaten Gonzaga Prep.

More than 3,000 fans sat through intermittent rains to watch the home team capitalize on a pair of breaks, produce two touchdowns and defeat a team which had not yielded a touchdown in three games and which had run roughshod over such outfits as Tech, Central and Loyola.

And it was Kidwell, a sure-footed halfback, who was the difference between victory and defeat, for he was the only back able to negotiate with any efficiency through the soggy, slippery field in which the players often sank ankle deep in the mud.

In the second quarter after a 3-yard Gonzaga kick had given Eastern the ball on the Gonzaga 30, Kidwell faded back to flip a 5-yard touchdown pass to big Hal Speith and then in the third period he scored himself from the 3-yard line after a Gonzaga fumble had presented Eastern the ball on the Gonzaga 8.

Gonzaga from the opening minutes of play was a beaten team. Its fast backs, Jim Shaw, Jim Ellis and Eddie Shea, were powerless in the mud. The condition of the field equalized the speed of backs and linesmen and where this trio had in previous games simply outrun the foe, yesterday they were being brought down behind the line of scrimmage by the fast-charging Eastern forward wall.

Gonzaga's chief scoring threat materialized in the fourth quarter. A pass, Shaw to Ellis, covered 25 yards and gave the Purple a first down on the Eastern 19. But here two passes and a line buck failed and on the fourth down Dick Wade, Eastern end, batted a third pass into the air and Kobre, giant tackle, snatched the ball before it hit the ground on the 14.

The first quarter was a punting duel between Murray, of Eastern, and Shea and Shaw, of Gonzaga, for the teams quickly realied that a sustained drive was virtually impossible because of the uncertain footing.

Just before the first period closed Eastern backed Gonzaga deep into its own territory when a series of power plays by Bill Kemp and Kidwell moved the oval to the Gonzaga 29 before the movement fizzled. Shaw kicked out to midfield, but Eastern was not to be denied and in three line smashes Kemp and Kidwell produced a first down on the Gonzaga 30. It was there that Kidwell fired a bullet pass to Speith, who reached over the heads of Shea and Shaw to grab the ball on the 10 and step unmolested for the score. Dickinson place-kicked the punt.

In the hird quarter Gonzaga threw caution to the winds in an effort to tie up the game and as a result Eastern was virtually presented with its second touchdown. After a kick by Murray was taken by Gonzaga on its own 10-yard line, the Purple failed to gain with two end sweeps and Shaw dropped back in kick formation.

But Shea was running with the pass from center and received the ball on a lateral from Shaw while moving into the line. A host of Eastern players met his charge and the ball bounded from his arms and was recovered by Dickinson. A pass, Kidwell to Kept, put the ball on the Gonzaga 3 and then Kidwell cracked right tackle for the final points.

2 Longshots Take Day's Final Events

Vitamin B. Pays $24.20 in Seventh; Sun Mica Wins at $36.10.

By Walter Haight.
A Staff Correspondent.

Laurel, Md., Oct. 20.—Cadeau II, carrying the light blue and yellow sash of F. Ambrose Clark, New York sportsman, was victorious in the Chevy Chase Steeplechase Handicap, annual jumping classic at this track since 1911. Fencing boldly and closing on the flat with a dash of speed that would have been more appropriate on the running track, the 5-year-old gelding defeated Raymond Gust's Swimalong by four lengths and Gladys Whitney's Rideaway by an additional length and a half.

Jungle King, important half of the Greentree Stable entry, drew the heavy money, but failed to be a factor in the running and apparently had no excuse other than he did not fancy the going. The field competed over a course that was heavy as the result of rain yesterday and this morning. However, overhead conditions were ideal.

Those in the crowd of 8,500 who backed the chances of Cadeau II, ridden by Jockey F. Bellhouse, were rewarded with a $9.60 mutuel. The winner's time of 4:21 1-5 was far off track record of 3:49 2-5, set by Spinach in 1935.

Cadeau II was always prominent. Bellhouse had a grip on him as he followed Swimalong's pace for the first mile and he did not let out when Rideaway moved up into second position. The veteran jockey bided his time until there were two fences to go and then steered Cadeau II to the inside to save ground. The gelding went over the final fence with Swimalong, but the latter made a poor landing. However, Bellhouse took no chances and drove his mount across the line.

The best horse performance of the afternoon, however, was the work of Aneroid, game stake horse owned by John A. Manfuso, Washington manufacturing chemist. Slow to find his stride in his first outing since the Narragansett Special, Aneroid was 11 lengths behind High Fleet and last in the field of seven as the group swung for the stretch. The son of The Porter fairly skimmed the rail the remainder of the way to take a photo decision, although he won by a good head.

Banker's League Record Is Rolled By Al Wright—446

Al Wright, bowling for the American Security & Trust No. 1 team in the Bankers League, set an all-time league and Arcade Alley's record last night as he cracked the maples for a 446 set, 30 pins over the bankers former marks, held jointly by Hummer and Scharf.

Wright started with a 173 game, two less than the league's record high game of 175, and followed with 129 and 144. His team was also high game and set for the night with 584 and 1,711, respectively.

Wright's record mark is the highest shot since the bankers league was organized in 1915.

The Marlboro Hotel bowling team, paced by Joe Harrison's 387, Mandley's 377 and George Dracos' 163 game, held their lead in the Recreation League last night by taking a 2-1 decision from Bregman's Wildcats, despite a 375 set by Abe Beavers. University Shop moved into second place, led by Eckie Smith's 377 and Irwin Simon's 369 by sweeping their set from Blayden Contracting Co.

Bureau of Investigation, with Ott rolling 370 and Astor Clarke's 360 took three from Brodt's. It was the ninth straight defeat for Brodt's bowlers.

Terry's Home Appliance Co., led by Fred Murphy's 366, swept their set from Blankens despite Frank Donaldson's 402 set, while Marvin's Credit Co., led by Bill Schotter's 391 and Henry May's 386, swept their set from Allied Roofing.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FLYING WILD, $6.00, $3.30, $2.90; RISSA, $6.90, $4.10; POLYATA, $4.00.

FLYING WILD worked her way to contention from slow beginning and closed with rush. RISSA had to be hard ridden to take lead and held on gamely. POLYATA tired after moving up in stretch run.

FOURTH RACE—About 2 miles. Purse, $2,500 added. The Chevy Chase Steeplechase Handicap. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:06. Off 3:06½. Winner, F. Ambrose Clark's b. g. (5), by Nouvel An—Crederes Victos. Trained by H. G. Gaither. Value to winner, $2,305; second, $500; third, $250; fourth, $75. Time, 4:21 2-5. (24 jumps.)

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CADEAU II, $9.60, $6.10, $4.80; SWIMALONG, $5.40, $4.10; RIDEAWAY, $4.00.

CADEAU II, forwardly placed from start, was under steady restraint, rallied when placed to drive, came to inside of SWIMALONG nearing thirteenth fence and fenced boldly to win with rush. SWIMALONG was steadied along while setting pace and faltered after landing poorly at final jump. RIDEAWAY was within striking distance throughout, but bore out badly in final stages. JUNGLE KING could not menace. BRIGHT PLUMAGE fell at seventh and SUMATRA lost rider at fourth.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,200. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:38½. Off 3:43. Winner, J. A. Manfuso's b. c. (4), by The Porter—Outburst. Trained by D. K. Kerr. Value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:14 4-5.

Steve Given Coach Berth By Indians

Announcement Surprises; O'Neill May Turn Down Offer.

By the Associated Press.

Cleveland, Oct. 20.—The Cleveland Indains today named Oscar Vitt to replace Steve O'Neill as manager and gave the Newark International League Club pilot his first managerial opportunity in major league baseball.

Club President Alva Bradley announced Vitt's appointment under a two-year contract, terms of which were undisclosed. Bradley said O'Neill had been offered a post as a Cleveland scout.

The 47-year-old Californian said at his home in Oakland that the appointment climaxed an ambition he cherished ever since his major league playing career ended in 1921. Vitt broke in with Detroit in 1912 and wound up his big time third base chores with the Boston Red Sox in 1921.

O'Neill, on the receiving end of some of baseball's most noted batteries, piloted the Indians since August, 1935, when he succeeded Walter Johnson. His replacement was frequently rumored since last summer. Cleveland finished fourth in the last American League campaign.

May Shun Berth.

O'Neill said he would not become a Cleveland scout if he could obtain a better offer.

"The owners think they're acting for the best," O'Neill said, "so all I can do is wish them luck. Naturally, I'm disappointed. Nobody likes to lose his job."

Vitt's selection came as a surprise not only to baseball observers generally, but to officials of the Newark Club, a New York Yankee farm.

"It's all news to me," said Secretary Ray Kennedy in Newark. "He deserved it."

Picked on Record.

"We picked Vitt on his record," Bradley said.

The new Tribe chieftain, whose Newark Club this year wound up 25½ games ahead of Montreal for the International pennant and then knocked off Columbus, Ohio, in the little World Series, started his playing career on the West Coast.

Vitt has managed the Salt Lake City, Hollywood and Oakland baseball clubs, the latter in the 1935 season. He conferred with Bradley today and immediately left for the West Coast.

O'Neill, the fighting Irishman from the coal mines of Minooka, Pa., was behind the bat in 1920, when Cleveland won its only American League championship. He had managed Toronto, of the International League, and Toledo, of the American Association, when his major league career faded. But as a Cleveland manager, his teams disappointed.

In 1936 the Indians fell to the second division for the first time in many years. Last season, the tribe climed a notch to finish in fourth.

Larkin's 71 Low At Chevy Chase

The Chevy Chase course, heavy after a two-day rain that stretched its par four holes to two full shots, did not release a par round to the pro brigade although several other creditable scores included a 72 by Houghton, 78's by Andy Gibson, Wiffy Cox, Volney Burnett and Leo Walper, a 74 to Cliff Spencer and 75's by Roland MacKenzie and Johnny Bass.

Larkin, who played the back nine first, was out in 35, one over par, with bogeys on 12 and 13 and a birdie three on the fifteenth where he canned a 30-foot putt. He parred seven of the eight holes of the front nine and needed a par 3 on the ninth to beat Houghton and Diffenbaugh's 72's.

Gen. Coleman, after a shaky start, rallied and played the second nine in 40 strokes to aid Larkin in pacing the field by a trio of shots.

Eastern High Back Rips Off a 10-Yard End Run as Gonzaga Is Beaten, 13-0

Pixlee Drills Colonials for 'Bama Game

Hoping to make up for the workout they lost Tuesday due to rain, George Washington's gridders were put through a lengthy scrimmage yesterday afternoon at Griffith Stadium. Coach Jim Pixlee, emphasizing defense all week, yesterday put the Colonial varsity on the offensive for more than an hour against the freshmen.

All the sweeps, reverses and line bucks Pixlee hopes will be effectively used against Alabama on Saturday were trotted out against the cubs and when darkness settled over the stadium the head man said he was satisfied. Vic Sampson, who will carry the burden of the running attack, and Joey Kaufman, crack passer, looked particularly good.

Despite Sampson's scant 160 pounds, Pixlee believes he will stand up under the pressure put on him by Alabama's rugged forwards. Vic is wiry and fast and seems to be able to take punishment. During his two years of varsity football he never has been injured.

Card Team Off.

Twenty-four football men, the smallest squad to represent Catholic University this season, this afternoon is scheduled to depart for St. Louis via the Pennsylvania Railroad at 5:25 o'clock.

Bill Bullock Meets Davis In '37 Debut

District Lightweight in Comeback Attempt Monday Night.

Billy Bullock, a hard hitting young lightweight, who claimed the District lightweight championship until Howard Scott came along, will make his 1937 bow at Turner's Arena Monday night on the opening fall boxing show which will feature Irish Eddie Dunne, Benny Leonard's protege, and Sailor Born, of Atlanta.

Bullock, who developed his muscles and a punch in the wilds of North Carolina before he migrated to Washington, has been overlooked in local fistic circles, according to his trainer-manager, Harry Groves. He has been matched against Willie Davis, a snappy club fighter from New York. It will be a six-rounder.

Bullock always has made a hit with the local fight gentry due to his willingness to mix it up. An injury forced him to hang up his gloves for a while, but he is back in tip-top shape, eagerly awaiting his season's debut. His opponent, Davis, is a newcomer who has fought Johnny Pena and Al Roth, among others.

Benny Leonard, Turner and Ahearn announced, definitely will be in Dunne's corner when the youngster meets Sailor Born. The former lightweight ruler personally trains and manages the youngster.

Miss Mortensen, Marie Gardini Meet Again in Arena Mat Card

MISS MORTENSEN CAN COOK, TOO!

Chicago Italian Girl Out to Get Revenge for Defeat Last Week—Cox, Olsen on Card

That blonde bombshell, Clara Mortensen, who claims the world's feminine wrestling championship, will cross paths with Marie Gardini, the little Chicago Italian girl in the headline bout at Turner's Arena tonght, with Marie determined to gain revenge for the defeat she suffered at the hands of Clara two weeks ago.

The young feminine exponents of the mat will scrap in two out of three falls, with everything in the wrestling book to go except the strangle hold.

Also on the card tonight is Miss Mortensen's brother, Lee, her trainer, who will meet Gene Bowman, Texas collegian, in a 30-minute bout.

Plenty of fireworks is expected when Dynamite Joe Cox and Cliff Olsen, the tough Swede, hook up in a one-hour time limit brawl advertised as the feature men's match. Dynamite Joe has a habit of playing fox and surprising his opponents with a dynamite-laden left hook. Such was the case last week when Cox stopped Billy Hanson in their scheduled six-round battle. But Olsen, who has little love for Joe, is prepared for such an attack, and hopes to beat the Kansan to the punch. The boys will renew a feud born in Philadelphia last year when Cox scored a questionable fall.

That heap-much Injun, Chief Thunderbird, who has made a big hit with his death lock and war dance, returns for a four-round bout with Jack Hader, the Kansas villain. Thunderbird has won three straight here. In 30-minute brawls Hans Steinke, the German beer baron, metes Jake Patterson, and Karl Davis opposes Walter Podolak. First bout is at 8:30.

Wheat Prices Jump With Heavy Exports

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Oct. 20.—Big export purchases from North America, more than 2,500,000 bushels, helped to hoist wheat 5 cents a bushel today at Winnipeg and 3⅛ cents here. Lively profit-taking on the crest of the price bulge, however, caused some reaction at the last from the day's top level.

Rebounds of securities, as well as the broadening of export demand, did much to stimulate the upward impetus of wheat values. Grain traders, though, gave the greater attention to the huge volume of Europe's wheat takings that were finally estimated as totaling about 2,000,000 bushels from Canada and 500,000 bushels or more of United States hard winter wheat.

At the close, Chicago wheat futures were 1¾@2¼ cents above yesterday's finish, December 99⅝@99⅝, May 99⅞@1.00, July 93¾; corn unchanged to ¾ higher; December, 59¼@59¾; May, 61@61⅛; July, 61¾; oats, ⅛ to ⅜ up; December, 30⅝@30¾, and rye showing 1 cent to 1⅞ cents advance; December, 72⅞. Provisions results varied from 37 cents setback to 25 cents gain.

Steel Output At Year's Low; Demand Slow

By the Associated Press.

New York, Oct. 20.—With steel production at the lowest point since March, 1936, there is as yet no assurance that next week will not bring another drop as new business comes to mills in disappointingly small volume, Iron Age said today in its weekly review of the industry.

"Reasons for the continued rapid drop in the ingot producing rate," the trade publication stated, "are the exhaustion of backlogs, the slowness of the automobile industry in releasing tonnage orders, the almost complete cessation of railroad buying, the slump in building construction and large inventories of steel in the hands of consumers and jobbers, together with a decline in miscellaneous buying.

"Hopes for a pick-up from the present sluggishness are based primarily on the automobile industry, which probably will reach a total production of 100,000 cars this week and to some extent on a favorable decision by the Interstate Commerce Commission on railroad freight rates, which is expected momentarily."

Gt. Northern Raises Newsprint Prices

New York, Oct. 20 (AP).—The Great Northern Paper Co., biggest American manufacturer of newsprint, announces an increase of $5.50 per ton for the first six months and $7.50 per ton for the last six months of 1938 over this year's prices.

The New York and Chicago delivered price per ton in 1938 as announced will be: First six months, $48; second six months, $50. The proposed increase in costs of newsprint next year to American publishers will approximate $25,000,000, it was said in a bulletin issued by the newsprint committee of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association.

The Market

By Carlton A. Shively
A Special Correspondent.

Stocks Rise Briskly as Forced Selling Subsides; Commodities and Bonds Recover.

New York, Oct. 20.—The promise of clearing skies given the markets by the afternoon rally yesterday was fulfilled, and with a distinct letup in forced selling the usual recovery from a swift decline took place. Stocks turned in price gains of 2 to 8 points and more in a few instances, all along the line, with 4 to 6-point advances the rule in the active issues. Stock turnover fell sharply, volume failing to go far above 4,000,000 shares. December wheat closed 1⅞ cents higher at 99⅝ cents a bushel.

Stocks were a bit coy about advancing in the early trading. Opening prices were a point or so lower in numerous trading shares and some further shading was done in the first few minutes. Buying power soon developed in sufficient volume to absorb the 11 o'clock margin sales, and by noon, with the ticker chronically late from 3 to 7 minutes, the rally was going strong. By early afternoon prices were up 2 to 10 points in the active issues and the tone was firm, although points were clipped and added frequently all along the line.

Some of the low-priced shares, which quickly dropped about 50 per cent in value yesterday, doubled in price today, or nearly so. As a group the oil shares were the most favored, but the market acted as though it was responding to technical conditions and indiscriminate purchases for a turn as much as to careful "bargain" buying. For that reason stocks showed no great clannishness and expanded and contracted more or less in unison.

Chemicals were able to show some large gains. Allied advanced half a dozen points and du Pont made it nearly 10. In the 5 to 7 point gaining area were Case, Coca-Cola, American Can, Atlas Powder, General Refractories, Sears Roebuck, Hazel Glass, Hercules Powder, Monsanto Chemical, Phillips Petroleum, Penny Westinghouse, Union Pacific, Libby Owens, Howe Sound, Lerner, Collins & Aikman, Columbian Carbon, Continental Can, Fairbanks, Morse and Eastman Kodak. Numerous preferred issues jumped 5 to 10 points. Steel preferred rallied 8 points, but the common was fractionally lower most of the day.

Over Its Nerves.

When well into the last hour the stock market had re-entered the "dot" stage—that is, the stock ticker killed time now and then by printing dots—prices were holding fairly well. It was the consensus that whatever might be the longer term trend of prices, or even the short turn, for that matter, nerves had been quieted and further prices declines, if they came, could be taken in stride. The market, it was predicted, shortly would leave the first pages of the newspapers and return to its accustomed place in the financial section.

Improvement in stocks was reflected in other markets. United States bonds, which are reported to have been given a nudge from the Treasury yesterday, were better today, and other groups hardened. Nearly all commodities picked up. Winnipeg wheat advanced the day's 5-cent limit. Cotton and wheat, on this side, had a mild speculative forward rush.

Business Position.

If any good is to be salvaged from the break in the stock market, the mistake of putting the cart before the horse must be avoided. In 1929 the feeling was widespread (and it was particularly noticeable with President Hoover himself' that nothing was fundamentally wrong with the business position; that once people recovered from the shock of a fall in stock prices and the disappearance of their "paper profits" in stocks, everything would be lovely. Although it since has become the custom to throw gibes at President Hoover for his famous observation, early in 1930, that prosperity lay just around the corner, fact was most people believed it at the time.

It was that deeply rooted idea among the populace, namely that a break in the stock market causes a business depression, which led up to the series of regulatory acts under the New Deal Administration. Since the laws were passed considerable progress nas been made along educational lines. While recognition is given the fact that stock market losses have an adverse repercussion on business and help to slow down activity, it is now generally accepted principle that stock prices are governed by business profits. In placing the blame for the market drop the position should not be obscured by an attempt to magnify the influence of stock market restrictions.

Fundamental Reform Needed.

It is clear enough that business has run into numerous obstacles, as taxes, enforced cost increases, and the like, but the stock market is influenced by the New Deal as an indirect result of the New Deal's influence on business. The blame belongs at Washington all right, but the emphasis should be placed on repeal of obnoxious measures of business control and the need for reforms in economic policy. Merely to change margin requirements and to let up on regulation of trading practices will have little beneficial influence on industrial enterprise.

The public should understand that the market fall reflects the lack of confidence among business men in the Government's policies. It should work to change those policies first, particularly the fiscal policy and then attention can be given to the less important matters of stock market regulation. If the public again is told too often that it is the market's fall which threatens (rather than forecasts) a business depression, then the public may conclude that what is needed is still more stock market regulation. That is the way the SEC seems to feel about it.

Kansas Brings In Biggest Gas Well

Philadelphia, Oct. 20.—The largest natural gas well ever completed in Kansas has been brought in by the Atlantic Refining Co. Located in the Pullam area, Rice County, the well gauged 75,000,000 cubic feet of gas a day on an open flow test and is now producing 10,000,000 cubic feet daily. The accompanying flow of gasoline amounts to 300 gallons a day. The well is the first commercial gas well from the Arbuckle limestone in Kansas.

Foreign Exchange.

By the Associated Press.

The Swiss franc gained a new high for 1937 against the dollar, while other leading world currencies held about even in quiet foreign exchange dealings yesterday. The unit climbed .04 of a cent at New York to be quoted in mid-afternoon at 23.06 cents. The French franc kept level at 3.38½ cents, while the discount on 90-day forward francs widened to .10 of a cent from .9 of a cent previously. The belga was unchanged at 16.86 cents.

The British pound lost ⅛ of a cent at $4.85¾ and the Holland guilder also edged .00½ of a cent lower to around 55.29 cents. German marks were even at 40.17 cents.

In London the dollar improved ¼ of a cent to close at 4.95⅛ to the pound, compared with New York's overnight sterling rate of $4.95½. Francs closed higher at 146.44, compared with 146.88 yesterday.

The dollar in Paris was quoted at 3.382 cents to the franc, against the New York overnight rate of 3.385 cents to the franc.

33 of 53 Roads Pay Loans in Full

Of the 53 railroads to which loans were made by the Railroad Credit Corporation, in order to meet fixed interest obligations, 33 have paid in full, according to E. G. Buckland, president of the corporation.

The Railroad Credit Corporation was formed in 1931 by 432 railroads to administer the Marshaling and Distributing Plan, under which the proceeds from an emergency increase in freight rates, allowed by the Interstate Commerce Commission, were pooled and used solely for the purpose of making loans to carriers in need of help in meeting fixed interest obligations.

Loans made to the 53 roads, according to the report, totaled $73,691,368, of which $52,542,029 have been repaid. The outstanding loans of the remaining 20 roads total $21,149,339. Of these 20 roads, 17 are now in the hands of the courts. The outstanding balance of loans made to those 17 roads totals $20,410,598.

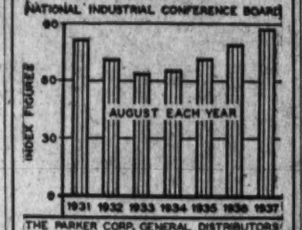
House Rents Rise For Forty Months



THE PARKER CORP. GENERAL DISTRIBUTORS INCORPORATED INVESTORS

Boston, Mass., Oct. 20.—For 40 connsecutive months house rents have been higher than in the corresponding month of the previous year. August house rents were up 10½ per cent over a year ago, while they were up 40 per cent from the depression low.

Foreign Copper Output Balances Consumption

London, Oct. 20 (AP).—A. Chester Beatty, chairman of the board of the Roan Antelope Copper Mines, declared at the annual meeting today that copper producers outside the United States have achieved a virtual balance between production and consumption.

He disclosed that consumption outside the United States from June to September was about 111,000 tons monthly and that the new restriction program, effective December 1, would place production around 112,000 tons a month.

Boston Wool Market.

Boston, Oct. 20 (AP) (U. S. Dept. of Agr.).—Buyers continued looking around in today's wool market, mainly to keep in touch with supplies. The few bids appeared to be trial offers and did not signify serious effort to buy. Holders were not inclined to consider sales of sizable quantities of wool at current bids.

November Maturities.

New York, Oct. 20 (AP).—Corporate bond maturities during November will total $32,649,000, Standard Statistics Co. announced. Seventy-one bonds and notes make up this total, of which six amount to $1,000,000 or more. October maturities amounted to $49,210,000, and the 12 issues and portions of issues falling due in December total $25,305,000.

Foreign Markets.

By the Associated Press.

London, Oct. 20.—Traders adopted a cautious attitude in the stock market today and although the undertone was slightly better in the forenoon prices were inclined to droop later. International issues were weak and transatlantics sold lower. The flat-edged groups and foreign bonds were also heavy while the industrial section was mixed. Oils and mining issues held steady on continental buying.

Paris—International securities were weak in today's session in the bourse and the industrial group also sold lower. Government bonds were in supply with rents showing losses of 25 to 40 centimes. Royal Dutch and Suez Canal moved slightly higher while Bank of France declined 60 francs.

Liverpool—Cotton futures gained 3 to 5 point on speculative buying, but business was small. A decided improvement in milling demand and higher prices in North American markets today caused wheat futures to rally and close ¼d to 1¼d net higher.

Processing Tax Considered for Farm Produce

By Robert C. Albright.

Processing taxes or similar levies on major farm commodities, to make costly "surplus control" legislation largely self-supporting, are being considered by Administration farm leaders, it was indicated last night.

Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace hinted he favored taxes on some products, but with farmers and consumers both sharing the costs, following a White House conference on financing the program. The plan may call for financing partly by supporting taxes and partly out of the general Treasury funds.

Action on a corn loan program meantime was imminent, with one farm organization seeking 60 cents a bushel, and Administration officials apparently holding out for less. Wallace said a corn loan at this time was "desirable" but said he was not free to discuss the amount.

60-Cent Loan Asked.

Secretary Wallace said he was "hoping" for a corn loan. He pointed out the 1933 corn loan was 45 cents a bushel, but said a 46-cent loan would be comparable for corn with the 9-cent-a-pound loan on this year's cotton crop.

Confer With President.

Secretary Wallace and Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau conferred with the President at the White House, following indications that Mr. Roosevelt was concerned lest farm plans make too deep a dent in the Federal budget.

Chairman Marvin Jones of the House Agriculture Committee called a meeting of his group here for October 7 to draft a farm bill. The Jones bill pending last year called for about $200,000,000 in processing taxes to partially defray farm bill costs.

Wallace placed significant emphasis on a "self-supporting" farm program at a press conference following his talk with the President and Morgenthau. He quoted from a telegram received from Sioux City farmers asking the new program be "self-supporting so far as practical."

"The ever-normal granary program would be a 'shock absorber' for the consumer as well as for the farmer," he said. "If it is self-financing, both should be in on it."

Wallace said at the White House conference they "did not get down to" the actual cost of the ever-normal granary program. O'Neal previously had estimated it would cost a total of $625,000,000, or $125,000,000 more than Congress allowed for the soil conservation program. Wallace said the Jones bill would have cost $200,000,000 more than the soil conservation program, and the Farm Bureau Federation bill, which he indorsed in principle last year, would cost "a larger amount of money."

Taxes on major farm commodities, known to be under consideration at the Agriculture Department, probably would be a variation on the old AAA processing taxes, which were invalidated by the Supreme Court. It has been suggested they apply to such major products as cotton, wheat, corn and rice, and not on others.

Wallace said the proposed ever-normal granary program was being considered with an eye always to both "the Treasury and the Supreme Court." He implied surplus control through an ever-normal granary would inevitably involve production control, but said no decision had been reached on whether it should be voluntary or compulsory.

Wallace suggested three alternatives—holding out "Government bait" to the farmers to get voluntary co-operation, farmer consent to follow a compulsory program, or "a little of both."

"The all-important thing is to get a workable form of ever-normal granary," he said. "Obviously the Administration doesn't want to get in the same situation the Farm Board did, by piling up surpluses which there is no way to get rid of."

Declaring corn loans to farmers "exceedingly desirable," he said they would protect the livestock producer and the corn grower from what he called "the inadequacy of the speculative system." He said he thought a 500,000,000-bushel corn carry-over was "not too much." Present old corn carryover is 60,760,000 bushels, the lowest on record. The 5-year (1928-32 average corn carryover was 154,903,000 bushels.

President O'Neal, of the Farm Bureau Federation, who called at the White House to ask a 60-cent corn loan, said this amount was approximately 75 per cent of the "parity" price for corn. Corn is now selling at 38 to 44 cents for December delivery, and O'Neal said it was feared the price might drop to 30 or 35 cents unless it was pegged by a loan program.

Cotton Spinning.

The Census Bureau reported yesterday the cotton spinning industry operated during September at 124.1 per cent of capacity, on a single shift basis, compared with 130.5 per cent in August this year, and 125.8 per cent during September last year.

Credit Reform Prosperity Key, Roosevelt Says

nomic system and our democratic institutions endure."

Loud applause greeted his reference to "the statesmanship of President Wilson" and "the courageous leadership" of Senator Glass in the establishment of the Federal Reserve.

Standing in the second floor balcony of the monumental structure, with the diplomats, bankers, Cabinet members and other dignitaries seated to the front, rear and at either side, the President traced the development of the Federal Reserve System, crediting it with performance of "a vital role in winning of the war."

"It is clear now, in retrospect," he said, "that if further changes to meet post-war conditions had been made in our banking system in the 1920's it would have been in a far better position to moderate the forces that brought about the great depression.

"But from the end of the war until we were in the midst of economic collapse a decade later, no changes were made in the banking structure to make it function more effectively in the public interest."

Citing reforms undertaken since he took office in 1933, President Roosevelt cited the insurance of bank deposits and enactment of legislation in 1933, 1934 and 1935 giving the Federal Reserve increased power to improve banking conditions and aid in the subduing of harmful practices.

The ceremonies were short and simple. Long before the President and his party stepped out of an elevator a few minutes past 3 o'clock, the balcony seats and the standing room on the floor below were filled.

Hundreds of standees crowded both sides of the monumental staircase, which the President faced. Chairs on the south side of the balcony were reserved for diplomats, who attended, and Supreme Court members, who did not.

Soviet Ambassador Troyanovsky, making his first public appearance since returning from Moscow this week, was there and so were Ambassador Wang from China, Mexico's Ambassador Najera and Minister Hurban from Czechoslovakia, and numerous other chiefs of mission and their aides.

Among other distinguished guests was Graham Towers, governor of the Bank of Canada. The District government was represented by Commissioners Hazen and Sultan.

Chairman Marriner S. Eccles, of the board of governors, Federal Reserve System, introduced the President, after the Rev. James Shera Montgomery, chaplain of the House, had addressed a brief invocation. There was no benediction.

C., on the 29TH DAY OF OCTOBER, 1937, at 10 o'clock a. m., at which time the said creditors may attend, prove their claims (claims shall not be proved against the bankrupt estate subsequent to six months after the adjudication as stated above), appoint a trustee, examine the bankrupt, and transact such other business as may properly come before said meeting. FRED J. EDEN, Referee in Bankruptcy.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE United States for the District of Columbia, holding a Bankruptcy Court. In the matter of Thomas A. Buckley, 1862 Ontario place northwest, Apt. 12, Washington, D. C., bankrupt. In Bankruptcy No. 3532. To the creditors of Thomas A. Buckley, of the City of Washington, District of Columbia: Notice is hereby given that on the 16th day of October, 1937, the said Thomas A. Buckley was duly adjudicated bankrupt, and that the first meeting of his creditors will be held at my office in the Investment Building, Fifteenth and K streets northwest, Washington, D. C., on the 29TH DAY OF OCTOBER, 1937, at 10 o'clock a. m., at which time the said creditors may attend, prove their claims (claims shall not be proved against the bankrupt estate subsequent to six months after the adjudication as stated above), appoint a trustee, examine the bankrupt and transact such other business as may properly come before said meeting. FRED J. EDEN, Referee in Bankruptcy.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE United States for the District of Columbia, holding a Probate Court. In re Estate of Henry Schmid, deceased. Administration No. 50957. Order of publication and trial of issues. The notification as to the trial of the issues in this case relating to the validity of the paper writing dated the 14th day of June, 1935, purporting to be the last will and testament of Henry Schmid, deceased, having been returned as to Earl Brown, Mrs. Rosa Benford and Bishop Trust Company, Ltd., "not to be found," it is this 5th day of October, 1937, ordered that the issues be set down for trial on the 7TH DAY OF DECEMBER, 1937, and that this order and the substance of said issues, to wit:

1. Are the caveators the next-of-kin or heirs-at-law of the deceased, Henry Schmid? 2. Was the paper writing filed in this court and bearing date of the 14th day of June, 1935, the last will and testament of Henry Schmid, deceased? 3. Was the said Henry Schmid, at the time of the making and subscription or of the acknowledging by him of the said paper writing, of sound and disposing mind and capable of executing a valid deed or contract? 4. Was the paper writing dated the 14th day of June, 1935, obtained or the execution thereof or the subscription thereto procured from the said Henry Schmid, deceased, by the undue influence or coercion practiced upon the said Henry Schmid by any person or persons?

shall be published once a week for four weeks in the Washington Law Reporter and twice a week for the same period in The Washington Post. DANIEL W. O'DONOGHUE, Justice. Attest: (Seal.) VICTOR S. MERSCH, Deputy Register of Wills for the District of Columbia, Clerk of the Probate Court.

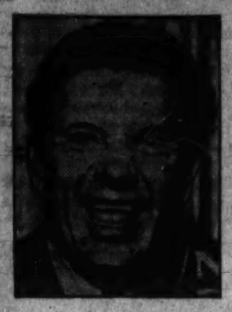
Bob Burns Says—



I honestly believe these directors and producers out here in Hollywood are the finest and most kind-hearted bunch of men I have ever seen. They usually turned me down by tellin' me I was too tall and handsome for the part. When a woman goes in to get a part in a picture, she always comes out beaming because the director has told her she's much too young for the part.

I believe Grandpaw Snazzy would make a good moving picture executive because he can always think of a good excuse. I remember one time a neighbor came over and wanted to borrow Grandpaw Snazzy's new rope and Grandpaw Snazzy says, "No, I've got to use that rope today to tie up some sand." After the neighbor left, I says "Grandpaw Snazzy, you know you can't tie sand with a rope!" Grandpaw Snazzy says, "Remember, my boy, you can pret' near do anything with a piece of rope if you don't want'ta lend it."

'Controversy.'

An authority on women in the Government service, Mrs. Lucille F. McMillin, of the Civil Service Commission, re-opens the ancient controversy on who was the first feminine employe of Uncle Sam, and, like so many others, finds her able self against a blank wall.

She finds the story of women's progress in the Government an interesting one, and indicates that it doesn't matter particularly who the pioneers were when one views the larger work all of them have performed.

"There were isolated instances of their employment even before the adoption of the Constitution itself," she stated. "In the succeeding century, their numbers seemed to increase very slowly, so much so that many different women have been designated at various times as 'the first woman Government employe.'"

But just who the first one was, remains a matter of dispute, and perhaps of some little research. "Too many early records have been destroyed or lost and those that have survived are not always satisfactory from a research standpoint," the commissioner stated. "Even when records have been preserved, the anoymity of a surname preceded by one or two initials makes it impossible to determine whether the employe was a man or a woman."

Again, she points out, "the varied character of Government work may be one reason for the number of claimants to the title, 'the first woman.' Occupations ranging from unskilled laborer to highly trained specialist and administrator are included in the range of Government employment. As women have gained entry into one after another of the grades, they have seemed at each step to be making an initial entrance, so that the pioneer woman in these advances have often been given the title of 'first.'"

There is no greater indication, Mrs. McMillin says, that women have arrived than "the relative absence of that once-familiar term, 'the first woman' this or that. Women have found themselves in so many varied fields that to a large degree their pioneering days are over." The remarks were made in a recent address here.

Indians.

These lines appear in a recent issue of that attractive bulletin, Indians at Work: "Through cooperation between the Indian Service, the State of Minnesota, the Works Progress Administration and the War Department, about 125 Minnesota Chippewa Indian children were given a complete camping experience this past summer." Undoubtedly you see what we saw. This thing of taking an Indian to a camp sounds as incongrous as taking a gold fish to a bowl of water, or an office boy to a baseball game, or a sea-weary sailor to a cabaret. We tenderfeet thought the Indians lived in camps. And why did it require all those forces to get the Indians to the camp; there seems to have been a gang-up between the Indian Service, the State of Minnesota, the W. P. A. and the War Department. They had everything but two regiments of Marines.

Random Writing.

It seems an attractive send-off they gave Edward C. Anderson when he retired after 41 years of service in the Internal Revenue mail room. On behalf of associates, Frederick I. Evans presented him a white-oak desk and in each drawer was a gift, such as a bill-fold with currency, a box of cigars, tobacco pouch, lighter, etc. . . . The Federated Government Employes Association announces their Halloween ball will be held November 26 at the Pythian Temple. A floor show will be one of "e attractions . . . Some enemy of the A. F. G. E. calls in to tell us that the organization is losing members; said that the slump had been noticeable since the Philadelphia convention . . . Dr. M. L. Nichols, inventor of the Nichols Terrace, as assistant chief of research for the Soils Conservation Service, is announced. There he will assist Dr. W. C. Lowdermilk, chief, soil conservation research, in developing and directing the service's program of investigation into the ramifications of the soil erosion problem. In 1934, Dr. Nichols received the McCormick medal given annually by the American Society of Agricultural Engineers for outstanding contributions to agricultural research . . . U. F. W. A. Local No. 8, (General Accounting Office), has elected new officers, as follows: Glen Wiltrout, president; Julius Silverstein, vice president; Sam Maryn, financial secretary; Gladys Morris, corresponding secretary; Philip Smith, treasurer, and A. Robinson, sergeant at arms . . . Dr. R. Y. Winters, who since 1925 has directed the North Carolina experiment station, has been appointed principal experiment station administrator in the Office of Experiment Stations, it is announced by Dr. James T. Jardine, of Agriculture Department. He is a native of Society Hill, S. C.; was graduated from Clemson College in 1906; received his master's degree at the University of Florida, 1909; was awarded his doctor's degree at Cornell in 1911, and since then has been engaged in agricultural research in North Carolina. He will assist in the planning and co-ordinating of research at the experiment stations . . . The In-Com-Co Club explains how it is able to afford its members so many social and other features, all for a dollar: "It is a result of collective effort," the leaders state . . . And so saying, the club announces another affair: The Harvest Moon dance will be held in the Willard Hotel ballroom on Monday, November 1. The hours are 9 to midnight . . . "The Purpose, Planning and Production of the Office Manual" will be the subject of an address by John F. Pierce, director of the TVA's office service department before the American Management Association conference in New York tomorrow morning. Pierce, incidentally, is the author of a mimeographed work, "The Application of Industrial Management to Filing," which should be of interest to Uncle Sam's file experts.

By the Associated Press.

Chief Justice Hughes smiled broadly at the remark by Paul A. Freund, a special assistant to Attorney General Cummings.

Freund made the comment—in fun—in response to a humorous statement by the Chief Justice that the court was not a "game."

The repartee took place in a two-hour argument as to whether jig-saw puzzles—remember them?—were a game and taxable under the Federal revenue laws.

While arguing in favor of taxation, Freund said there were rules for jig-saw puzzles which could be waived in the same manner that the Supreme Court sometimes waived rules for argument.

The arguments were on a case appealed by the Government in an effort to collect $37,021 of taxes on jig-saw puzzles manufactured in 1932 and 1933 by the Viking Manufacturing Co., Inc., of Boston.
